GSLIS MOST HIGHLY ESTEEMED LIBRARY SCHOOL

According to a 1986 perception survey conducted by Herbert S. White, the University of Illinois Graduate School of Library and Information Science has the library program most highly esteemed by library educators and administrators.

The survey, which is a follow-up to an almost identical survey conducted by White in 1980, sought the opinions of faculty members at ALA-accredited schools and directors of academic libraries belonging to ARL. Respondents were asked to rank "which library schools they perceived as providing the highest quality of education at the master's and the doctoral levels, and which schools' faculties 'presently contribute most significantly to the advancement of the profession through research, publication, and leadership.'" Educators gave Illinois top ranking in all three categories, while administrators

Herbert Goldhor Retires

When Herbert Goldhor first came to the Library School some forty years ago, he brought with him the dedication of purpose, reputation for rigorous experimental research, and innovative ideas that have persisted throughout his illustrious career. As a student in the Library School during those early years, I was caught up in the discussion of his far-reaching ideas for curriculum revision. His zest for having a curriculum to meet changing needs has prevailed. When he became director of the school, top priority was always given to continual curriculum review and course and program evaluation.

His course in library administration was the most difficult course I ever enrolled in but enduring principles learned there have never left me. Students

A Day of Celebration for Alumnus James Still (BLS '31)

Hindman, Ky. — It was a most unusual thing in Eastern Kentucky—this all-day celebration of a poet, a writer.

There was a time when James Still understood his adopted compatriots did not know or care much about his writings.

But on this day, his 80th birthday, the Alabama-born author who has made his home for 47 years on Knott County's Dead Mare Branch was visited by college presidents, newspaper publishers and Grady Stumbo a candidate for governor from Hindman.

About 400 came to the Hindman Settlement School yesterday to listen to stories about the man and share in his birthday celebration. Perspiration moistened faces and funeral-home paper fans provided some relief from the heat. But the people stayed six hours.

And laughed at the tales.

And gave standing ovations.

Former Hazard Mayor Bill Morton gave Still a key to the city and commissioned him commodore of the town.

Gov. Martha Layne Collins sent a proclamation declaring the day "James Still Day."

"I'm bowed down today with all these honors," Still said as the celebration drew to a close. "I don't know whether I can hold up or not.

"Maybe I'm not alone after all. I do feel—have felt a little sense of aloneness—and this will be good for me."

Still won acclaim on the nation's literary scene in 1940 with publication of the novel "River of Earth."

His other books include "Pattern of a Man & Other Stories" and "The Run for the Elbertas." His works have also been published in The Atlantic Monthly, The Yale Review, The Saturday Evening Post and many other magazines, journals and collections of short stories.

But he remained largely unnoticed in the state he calls home.

Still said he understood that indifference from his neighbors in the hollows of Eastern Kentucky.

"I know why they don't read me. They don't read anything," he said.

"I understand it perfectly, and I was not put out by it."

But the lack of support from friends did have an effect. "I went for 20 years without writing a book...I didn't think anybody was reading me," Still said.

Now "River of Earth" is on many colleges' required reading lists, and Still receives invitations and honors.

The attention spread to Kentucky about 10 years ago, and "then almost all of a sudden it's been too much," Still said.

Many of those who spoke yesterday shared stories from a time before the author won such local notice.

Berea College President John Stephenson told of receiving a copy of Still's "Pattern of a Man & Other Stories" and falling in love "right there" with Still's work.

He was so impressed, Stephenson said, that he arranged to meet Still in Hindman for lunch. He had been told to expect Still to be modest, reclusive and self-denying—"and believed it," he said—for their first 30 minutes together.

Tennessee author Wilma Dykeman said she was introduced to Still's work in 1940 and then traveled across the country sharing it with others.

London newspaper publisher Al Smith said that, during his days as chairman of the Appalachian Regional Commission, he often reached for Still's work as a way to make outsiders understand the people of Appalachia.

Appalshop filmmaker Joe Gray told what an awakening it was for him to meet the author who uses dialect in his work.

Gray said he had been reared on a farm, went away for a city education and had learned to be ashamed of the language of his people.

Poet Jim Wayne Miller described Still as an enigmatic man—never more open than when he seems to conceal and never more concealing than when he seems to be open.

Still's strength, Miller said, was in the wildness of his choice to live and write in Eastern Kentucky. Since 1939, Still has lived in a remote log cabin and written his stories and poems. "He's always been a seeker and rover," Miller said.

Still appeared robust yesterday, wandering in and out of the event with the assurance of a man who has lived long enough not to concern himself always with other people's opinions.

He patiently autographed his books, running his hands over the handsome cover of his new book of poems, "The Wolfpen Poem." The book, just published by Berea College Press, was presented yesterday by Stephenson as a birthday gift.

Mike Mullins, director of the Hindman Settlement School, said the day was planned as a combination celebration-celebrity roast.

"We wanted to bring him home—have him home for this celebration," Mullins said.

Being honored in your own area, by your neighbors, is one of the most difficult things, Mullins said. "You're often taken for granted.... But I don't think people here are taking him for granted now."

Still said he was surprised at the number of people who turned out. "I thought there'd be at best 50."

"It's too big for me to even think about," he said later. "It kind of reassures me in a sense."

The author says he still is writing, even though progress has brought changes in the rural culture and area he has spent years describing.

"It's not the same place," he said of Eastern Kentucky. But, "in a way, I swear my neighbors don't seem very changed in their way of thinking, in their attitudes, in their fatalism, especially in their fatalism."

After the celebration, Still signed more autographs and met more admirers in a school room decorated with quilts and canned goods.

Despite all this, he did not seem tired. But he did not seem especially happy at the prospect of being 80.

"I was 80 when I woke up this morning, and I didn't like it. I don't have time to be 80," he had said earlier.

"I'm glad this thing happened," he said at the end. "And I'm glad it just happened once."

Intellectual Freedom Award Bestowed Upon Dorothy Broderick

Dorothy M. Broderick, renowned author, educator, and leader in librarianship, was awarded the 1986 "Robert B. Downs Intellectual Freedom Award." Broderick was nominated by the Intellectual Freedom Committee of the ALA for her lifetime commitment to intellectual freedom advocacy and thought.

Her career since 1949 has been characterized by public service and scholarship devoted to the elimination of censorship. She is much in demand as a speaker, and her books and articles are well-known and some of the most important contributions to the issues of censorship, book selection, and intellectual freedom in library literature.

As a co-founder and editor of Voice of Youth Advocates she is a continual proponent for the rights of young people and of library services to young adults. In restating the basic premises of the magazine, the editors said: "As First Amendment advocates... we also believe that the possible unproved harm caused by information can never equal the harm caused by its suppression. We feel very strongly that 'rights have to be watered,' that today's adolescents will not grow up caring about one of our most fundamental Constitutional liberties—free speech—without ever having experienced it. We are especially committed to reviewing overlooked, ignored, controversial, and censored points of view usually withheld from adolescents."

Goldhor

never escaped the hard questions or tasks in his courses. As an educator and research director, he made many future library leaders face up to the hard realities of decision making and rigorous research.

As the director of the school, he took a personal interest in both faculty and students. He helped faculty achieve goals that we never expected we could achieve. He presented many ideas to us as a faculty, but in true participatory management style, realized that we must make (and live with) many of our own decisions. If we differed with him, that never affected his relationship with us, and he gave us every support to make our ideas work. He told each of us when he was pleased with our performance, but never hesitated to tell us when our performance needed improvement. He always made sure that we understood that our goals were to educate, research, publish, and improve the profession through service. By his own example, his actions spoke as loudly as his words.

He reached outside the school especially through his research efforts and speaking engagements. Public libraries were his first "love" and his research in that area is well known. The school's Library Research Center prospered and grew under his direction.

As much as one can admire all these contributions, one can not overlook perhaps his biggest contribution—that he remains a friend to many. His straightforward honesty and integrity are a legacy that those of us who have had the privilege of knowing and working with him will always treasure.

Donald Krummel Presented with GK Hall Award at ALA

The "G. K. Hall Award for Library Literature" was presented to Donald W. Krummel during the ALA Annual Conference in San Francisco.

Krummel's winning book, "Bibliographies: Their Aims and Methods" (Mansell, 1984), was judged "an important and well-written study of the background and role of bibliographies, as well as a concise manual for successful planning and execution."

The award, which consists of a $500 cash prize and a citation, is presented to the individual who makes an outstanding contribution to library literature during the three years preceding the presentation. The award is given only when a title merits such recognition.

Krummel, who is professor of library science and of music, has been at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign since 1970. He is the author of numerous books, articles and reviews in music and historical bibliography and library history, including the 1987 "Bibliographical Handbook of American Music."

He has lectured widely both in the United States and in Europe, and he has served as a consultant on the organization, collection development, resources, and appointments for leading institutions in this country. His numerous awards and honors reflect the 30 years of service that began with three library graduate degrees granted from the University of Michigan; his awards include a Guggenheim fellowship, three project awards from the National Endowment for the Humanities, and ten travel awards from the American Council of Learned Societies, the Rockefeller Fund and the Council on Library Resources.

Upcoming Conferences

Allerton Park Institute

The upcoming 1987 Allerton Park Institute conference, "Critical Issues in Library Personnel Management," will address the policies, practices, and theories related to personnel management in both public and academic libraries.

The conference, to be held November 6-8, at the Allerton House in Robert Allerton Park, features a weekend-long series of workshops and lectures that will provide current information and training on specific issues in personnel management and an opportunity to share ideas and problems of common interest related to personnel in libraries. The keynote presentation, "Building Job Commitment Among Employees," will be delivered by Professor Martin Machr, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

Workshops will be conducted on collective bargaining, controlling employee turnover, conducting performance evaluations, developing wage and compensation systems, and conducting effective disciplinary and termination processes. Some of the workshops are split into two sections—one for public librarians, the other for academic librarians.

Lecture topics include "Recruiting Library Personnel," "Understanding the Role of Supportive Staff," "Training Library Staff," "Managing Resistance to Change," "Employee Productivity and Work Redesign," and "Stress in the Library Workplace."

Data Processing Clinic

Professor Martin A. Siegel is planning the 25th Annual Clinic on Library Applications of Data Processing; the clinic will be held on the UIUC campus April 17-19, 1988. The theme is "Computer-Human Interface Evaluation and Design."

Topics to be explored include how best computers can be used for teaching; what types of interaction can computers be used for; how PLATO has been developed; what the future holds for computer-based education.

Dr. Siegel is author (with Dennis M. Davis) of Understanding Computer-Based Education. Dr. Siegel is Assistant Director of the Computer-Based Education Research Laboratory in charge of PLATO; and he teaches a course on Interactive and Systems Design for Library Science and Educational Psychology students.

Robin Caton Retires

Robin Caton, Assistant to the Dean for Student Affairs, retired in April after ten years of devoted service to GSLIS. Student petitions, practica, theses, job-hunting, and innumerable other important functions were facilitated by Robin over the span of those years. Her advice and counsel were sought by students, faculty, deans, and University officials because of her great knowledge of the institution and the larger environment of libraries and communities.

The pot-luck party-reception for Robin on April 30 drew a crowd that spilled out of the lounge into most of the hallway and back into offices throughout the fourth floor of David Kinley Hall. She is currently occupied with concert-going, flowers and visits to grandchildren. The best wishes of many hundreds of GSLIS students and faculty, past and present, go to her.

Alumnus Receives Lippincott Award

Edward G. Holley, librarian at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, is the recipient of the Joseph W. Lippincott Award for 1987. The award was presented to Holley during the ALA Annual Conference in San Francisco.

Holley, who received his PhD in library science from the University of Illinois in 1961, is currently the president of Beta Phi Mu, the international library science honorary society, and also was recently elected to the Online Computer Library Center (OCLC) board of trustees. "Ed Holley is a thorough, insightful, and dedicated researcher and scholar. His career as a professional leader includes the presidency of the ALA and service on its Executive Board," states the award citation.

GSLIS

assigned Illinois to second place in all categories, behind Michigan and UCLA.

In his report, "Perceptions by Educators and Administrators of the Ranking of Library School Programs: An Update and Analysis," (Library Quarterly 57:3, pp. 252-268), White takes great pains to address the controversial nature of perception studies. One criticism is that perception studies tend to favor well-established and well-known programs rather than making a realistic assessment of present-day characteristics. By administering the 1980 survey again in 1986, White hoped to determine if there was any foundation to that criticism. The two tables reprinted here show the comparative rankings from earlier studies: the results show startling evidence of shifts in prestige for several schools. The ranking for GSLIS, however, is consistently excellent and far above that of other schools.

In assessing the factors that contribute to Illinois' status, White notes the age of the school, the visibility and prominence of our alumni, and considers the impact of "a new dean who is both assertive and highly visible."

Richard Chapin (MS '49, Phd '55), director of libraries at Michigan State University, will be enhancing his position in the book world by adding on a quarter-time appointment as director of MSU Press. Chapin's goal is to produce "at least 10 books a year over the next 2 to 3 years. My emphasis will be to pick up on the academic strengths of the University."

Susan Schultz Rose (BS '46, MS '49) retired in 1978 as director of the library at the Asbury Theological Seminary in Wilmore, Kentucky. She went on to develop various theological collections for seminaries and theological libraries in the Philippine Islands and Indonesia from 1978 to 1986. She also served as a consultant to the Biblijsko Teoloski Institute in Zagreb, Yugoslavia. On December 27, 1986 she was married to Dr. Delbert Rose, a retired theological professor.

Donald A. Redmond (MS '50) retired from the Queen's University Library in Kingston, Ontario in May 1987. His new book, Sherlock Holmes Among the Pirates: The Sign of Four in America, 1890-1930 (an analytical bibliographic study) is to be published soon. An earlier book, Sherlock Holmes: A study in sources, is available through McGill-Queen's University Press.

Anna Whitworth (MS '57) was recently honored by Northeastern Christian Junior College of Villanova, Pennsylvania, for her special contribution as the College's first librarian, 1959-1965. A new portrait of Miss Whitworth was unveiled and she was given special recognition at the College's Tenth Annual Friendship Dinner. Upon Miss Whitworth's retirement from Northeastern in 1965, the Board of Trustees, in appreciation for her dedicated service, named the library in her honor. Her tasks as first librarian included organizing hundreds of volumes donated for the new college and the selection and cataloging of the additional books and materials needed for the new institution. Friends and alumni from the early years of the college were on hand to greet Miss Whitworth and share in honoring her. Said Vice President Larry Bills, who made the presentation, "Miss Anna saw the job at Northeastern as an investment in the lives of young people."

Miss Whitworth began her teaching career in 1918 in a one-room school in Lick Skillet and embarked upon a 32-year career in elementary teaching. Shortly after completing her degree in library science, Whitworth diverted plans for public library work to move to Pennsylvania to serve as the first librarian for Northeastern Christian Junior College.

David A. Smith (MS '61), former chief of the Special Materials Cataloging Division of the Library of Congress, has been appointed chief of the Decimal Classification Division. Smith joined the Library of Congress in 1963, and was appointed head of the National Union Catalog Publication Project in 1975. In 1981, upon completion of the project, he became chief of the newly created Special Materials Cataloging Division where he implemented online cataloging for music and audiovisual materials, and he revised manuscript cataloging rules in preparation for automating the compilation of the National Union Catalog of Manuscript Collections.

In the Decimal Classification Division, Smith will oversee the development and publication of the Dewey Decimal Classification schedules, indices, and manuals and the application to books, serials and other library materials.

Susan (Strow) Cady (MS '68), associate director for technical services at the Lehigh University Libraries, has been elected to represent the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania on the Council of the American Library Association. She will serve a four-year term. Cady joined Lehigh in 1980 and is responsible for the library's acquisition and circulation of materials, its new computer catalog, and the bibliographic and serial control operations in the libraries. She is currently completing a term as president of the board of trustees of PALINET—a non-profit cooperative organization of more than 250 libraries in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, and Maryland.

Marion T. Reid (MS '68), assistant director for Technical Services at the Louisiana State University Library, was elected incoming chair of the American Library Association's Resources and Technical Services Division.

Paul Richert (MS '71) has been promoted to full professor by the University of Akron. He remains the Law Librarian of the School of Law Library at that university. He also has an article entitled "Oral Competence Testing in Legal Research Techniques," which appeared in volume 77 Law Library Journal, pages 731-736 (1984-1985). He is currently serving as vice president/president elect of the Ohio Regional Association of Law Libraries.

Celia Wall (MS '74) has written a book entitled "Newspaper Libraries: A Bibliography, 1933-1985," published by the Special Libraries Association. Wall is associate professor in the libraries at Murray State University in Kentucky, and head of the circulation department at Waterfield Library. Before joining the faculty at MSU, she was head of the library at the News and Observer Publishing Co. in Raleigh, NC.

Marilyn L. Norstedt (MS '75) has been appointed head of the cataloging department at Virginia Tech's Carol M. Newman Library. Her earlier positions included acting head of the humanities department and assistant systems librarian.

Janice K. Summers (MS '75) has served as Newsroom Librarian for the Columbia Daily Tribune for three years. She is currently also serving as president of the Mid-Missouri Chapter of the Special Libraries Association.

John Law (MS '77) has been appointed reference librarian in the Learning Resource Center of Richland Community College. Law was previously the reference librarian at Rolling Prairie Library System in Decatur and a medical librarian at Decatur Memorial Hospital.

Michelynn McKnight (MS '81) has been named the 1987 chair of the Hospital Library Interest Section of the South Central Regional Group of the Medical Library Association, and will be the 1988 president of the Oklahoma Health Science Library Association.

John Bruce Howell (PhD '84) has written a book entitled, "Third World Iowa: Books, Journals, Maps, and Microforms about 138 Developing Countries Acquired by the University of Iowa Libraries Through 1986," published by the University of Iowa and the Center for International and Comparative Studies. Howell has been the International Studies Bibliographer at the University of Iowa since 1985.

Danny P. Wallace (PhD '85) has been appointed assistant professor in the Indiana University School of Library and Information Science. Wallace was formerly on the faculty at Louisiana State University.

Mid-Winter Alumni Reception

Please plan to attend the GSLIS alumni reception at the mid-winter ALA in San Antonio, Texas. In addition to a chance to visit with all your old friends, the 1988 Downs Intellectual Freedom Award will be presented.

The reception will be held on Saturday, January 9, 1988 from 5-7 pm. The place will be announced in the mid-winter program. We hope to see you there.

Noteworthy Faculty Activities

The GSLIS faculty are energetic in their pursuit of activities beyond their already full schedules of publishing and teaching. Here is just a small sampling of their projects.

Larry Auld went to the People's Republic of China as a guest lecturer. He gave talks on the past, present, and future of library and information science education, basic research methods, electronic spreadsheets for libraries, and the use of radio, broadcast television, and cable television by American libraries.

Leslie Edmonds coordinated the 1986 Allerton Institute Conference, "Managers and Missionaries: Library Services to Children and Young Adults in the Information Age," which proved to be one of our most successful conferences ever.

Dean Leigh Estabrook is president-elect of the Association for Library and Information Science Education (ALISE). Among her many committee positions, Estabrook is chair (and initiator) of an ad-hoc Commission on Accreditation of Public Libraries, and chair of the University Search Committee for UIUC University Librarian.

Herbert Goldhor gave this year's Samuel Lazetow Memorial Lecture, "Experimentation in Library and Information Science Research," at North Texas State University. The lecture series was established by the Institute for Scientific Information in 1983. He was also chosen "Librarian of the Year: 1987" at the April 1987 annual conference of the Illinois Library Association.

F.W. Lancaster undertook a lecture tour of South Africa in August of 1987, participating in discussions and delivering papers at universities around the country.

Robert Molyneux worked with the Library Programs section of the Department of Education during this past summer, investigating library statistics and learning about the workings of Washington D.C.

Selma Richardson, while on a trip to the UK to deliver a paper at the IFLA conference, visited the House of Commons Library in the Parliament Building, London, and viewed an exhibit, "Children's Books from the Opie Collection" at the Bodleian Library, Oxford.

Terry Weech was appointed by the Secretary of State and State Librarian, Jim Edgar, to the Task Force for Rural Library Service to study service to rural libraries in Illinois.

Professor Emerita Alice Lohrer Honored

Joining a distinguished line-up of recipients that began with Ernest Hemmingway, Alice Lohrer was one of four persons selected to receive the 1986 Oak Park-River Forest High School "Tradition of Excellence" awards.

Professor Emerita Lohrer graduated from Oak Park High School in 1924 and became a member of the National Honor Society. From those auspicious beginnings she went on to receive her BS in library science from the University of Illinois in 1937; her graduate work was done at the University of Chicago where she received her AM in 1944 and was admitted to PhD candidacy in 1951. Professor Lohrer served as a member of the University of Illinois faculty of the Graduate School of Library Science from 1941-1974 and was named Professor Emerita in 1974.

Alice Lohrer has had a long and distinguished international career. She was awarded a Fulbright Lectureship in Chulalongkorn University in Bangkok, Thailand in 1955-56, and another Lectureship at the University of Tehran, Iran in 1966-1967. In both cases she helped establish the university's two year Graduate Library School. In 1959 she received a Rockefeller Grant to Japan Library School, Keio University, Tokyo, Japan.

"I'm rather proud of the legacies I'm leaving for my 58 years of professional work. It has been a very fulfilling life and very busy," writes Alice Lohrer. Referring to the Oak Park "Tradition of Excellence" award she said, "I think I am more pleased with this honor than others I've received. It is home and my home school. Sixty-two years ago I graduated...and now this honor." Her name will be inscribed on a bronze plaque and hung in the main corridor of the school.

GSLIS Teachers Rated Excellent

Each semester, the Daily Illini posts a listing of those teachers their students rated as excellent. We are proud to note that the fall 1986 and spring 1987 lists included the following GSLIS teachers:

Leslie Edmonds for her course, Library Materials for Children.

Kathryn Luther Henderson for her Introduction to Services Relating to Organization of Library Materials.

Donald Krummel for his class on Bibliography.

F. Wulf Lancaster for two courses, Measurement and Evaluation of Library Services, and Advanced Study in Librarianship.

Linda Smith for her class on Scientific and Technical Literature and Reference Work.

Smith Chosen Outstanding Teacher

The American Society of Information Science (ASIS) and the Institute for Scientific Information (ISI) selected Professor Linda Smith to receive the "Outstanding Information Science Teacher" award.

Professor Smith, a longtime member of ASIS, was selected to receive this award due to her active pursuit of publications and her participation in conferences and proceedings that advance information science. Testimonials of students and colleagues alike praise her abilities to impart new and synthesized knowledge in a field of rapid and significant developments.

The award will be presented to Professor Smith at the 50th Anniversary Dinner and Awards Ceremony during the Annual Conference of ASIS in Boston on October 7, 1987.

First Commencement Ceremony for GSLIS Graduates

Graduates from GSLIS were honored in the first commencement ceremony to be held by the library school in many, many years (if ever). Those students who graduated between August 1986 and May 1987 were given their degrees on May 24, 1987, in a ceremony attended by many guests and family. Degrees awarded included 6 PhDs, 1 CAS, and 95 MS degrees.

Dean Emeritus Robert B. Downs presented the "S. R. Shapiro Award" to Nancy Turner Els who, in the opinion of the faculty, exhibits the greatest professional promise. The "Francis B. Jenkins Award," for outstanding student in science librarianship, went to Charles Huber; Professor Linda Smith presented the award. Professor Don Krummel presented the "Donald G. Wing Award" to Carol Leibiger, whose bibliography paper was judged to be the best of the year. The "Berner-Nash Award" for the most outstanding doctoral dissertation was awarded to Richard Rubin; Professor Kathryn Luther Henderson presented the award.

The commencement ceremony was appropriately held in the East Lobby of the Main Library, with many honored guests attending. Herbert Goldhor, retired Director of the Library Research Center and former Dean, delivered the commencement address. Faculty wore the colors of their alma maters. The ceremony was followed by a reception; a string trio performed.

Distinguished Alumnus Award

Another first was the presentation of the first "Distinguished Alumnus Award" to alumna Beverly Lynch, University Librarian of the Chicago Campus of the University of Illinois. Library School Association President Betsy Wilson presented the award.

The purpose of the award is to recognize an individual alumnus making an outstanding contribution to the field of Library and Information Science, to the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign (UUC) Library School Association, or to the UUC Graduate School of Library and Information Science (GSLIS).

Message from the Dean

Congratulations to you for your contribution to our number one ranking. The quality of your work in the profession as a graduate of the University of Illinois is obviously one of the factors people consider in evaluating the quality of our program. I am convinced GSLIS deserves its reputation for excellence. Thank you.

I look back on the past year with pride at the work of our faculty; with respect for the high quality of our student body; and with pleasure at the success of such events as the Allerton Park and Data Processing Clinic conferences and the School's commencement.

This coming year we face the changes brought by Herb Goldhor's retirement and the addition of Debora Johnson to our faculty. New staff in both the Library Research Center and the Publications Office are working to enhance the activities of those units. Our efforts to meet the current challenges to the profession are exciting and a little frightening. I hope you will join with us as we work to meet those challenges and to maintain our standards for excellence.

A HEARTFELT THANKS TO GSLIS GRADUATES

You Made the Phonathon a Big Success

To help make the 1987 phonathon a success, I offered to match any gift of $50 or more, up to a total contribution from me of $5,000. This appeal worked so well that the $5,000 was exhausted before the end of the drive, and I raised my total to $7,200, which was also all used up by the time the drive was over. I want to thank all those loyal alumni who made me eat my words and who pledged $50 or more to the annual fund of the school. Several persons asked to be remembered to me, and I was glad to hear from each.

In my experience as director of the school from 1962-78, I found that discretionary funds were in short supply and in constant demand. That is to say, the university takes care of our basic needs with state appropriated funds in most years, but is rarely able to provide us with money for unanticipated expenditures and it is these latter which go far toward giving us the edge of excellence.

Let me give you three specific examples. Financial aid to students has always been a high priority item in this school, and I suspect that we help a higher percentage of enrolled students than most other U.S. schools do. Even so, it often happens that an unusually promising person comes along late or lacks certain formal requirements for the established types of financial aid; it is highly desirable that the dean have some funds available with which to help that person.

Research by faculty and doctoral students is a fragile thing more dependent on a person's insight and ability than anything else. But when a faculty member or graduate student has devised a good piece of research, it almost always takes some money to be completed—perhaps for clerical help, computer programming, or

The Placement Office is Ready to Help

The Placement Office has developed a "Placement Data Profile," which records background and career interests. The profiles will be used to assist students and alumni in obtaining employment now and in the future. Call or write the Placement Office to have a "Placement Data Profile" form sent to you.

The information contained on these profile forms will be entered into a database which will be used to identify persons meeting the requirements of specific positions. The Placement Office won't be doing a search for every position that comes into the office, but they will do a search for those employers specifically requesting the school's help in suggesting qualified candidates, for positions requiring unique or scarce skills, or for entry-level jobs for which recent graduates who

Children and Adults Are Entertained by Storyteller Marcia Martin

When Marcia Martin tells the story of the frog that shook the hands of so many men that its hands flattened permanently, her eyes grow big, her gestures grow wide and the drama in her voice calms the fidgety children in her audience.

Martin is among about 10 professional storytellers in Champaign-Urbana, and according to an instructor who teaches the art of storytelling at the University of Illinois, one of the best.

"She's professional," says Leslie Edmonds, associate dean of the UI's library and information science graduate school. "She has some drama in her background, and she really brings a dramatic presence to her storytelling."

Martin, 25 and a librarian at the Douglass Branch Library in Champaign, has brought members of her audiences, both adult and children, to tears and elicited screams of fear.

Adults have wept at her telling of "The Clown of God," a story about a juggler who dies trying to entertain a statue of the Christ child, and at her Martin Luther King Day presentation at Washington School last month. When Martin once fashioned a fictional story about a sorority hazing as something that happened in her own life, listeners actually screamed in terror at its climax. And Martin frightened a bookmobile audience so badly that at least one child requested she not return.

Intense, emotional reactions tell Martin that she's doing her job right. "It makes me feel really good, like I've really given something to somebody," she says. "With children, it's a lot harder to do because their attention span is shorter."

"I almost like telling stories more to adults. There aren't as many behavior problems, and most adults aren't used to being entertained that way. It's something kind of new for them, and I always try to include some kind of trivia, interesting tidbits of information, for them," she says.

Martin has taken her five- to seven-minute stories on the road—to Washington School in Champaign, to the Rantoul Public Library, to storytelling classes at the UI, to the Krannert Center for the Performing Arts and to WILL Radio audiences.

She generally asks $50 per program, which is the standard base fee of storytelling in the area, Edmonds says.

The demand for skilled storytellers is on the rise here, based on the number of reference requests Edmonds takes from clubs, libraries, and schools. "Especially around the holidays, there are a lot of groups who want storytellers—scout groups, schools. It seems to be something they are more attuned to," Edmonds says.

She attributes the upswing in part to an increasing interest in folklore and ethnic art. "My (storytelling) class is extremely popular. I limit each class to 20 students, and I have to turn away 50 others," Edmonds says.

Martin fell into storytelling after she'd given up her dream of having a career in theater.

"I wanted so much to be an actress, but when I saw the life they have to lead, I decided I didn't want to sacrifice that much," she says. She decided to study library science and, in the fall of 1986, wound up sitting in Edmonds' storytelling class. "In class, I learned how to plan for a story, how to pick appropriate age groups, how to use a picture book in a presentation; things like that," Martin says.

She instantly liked storytelling, and having studied acting for a year at Cornell University, Martin demonstrated that she has a knack for making a plot come to life. "She has all the technical parts down because of her theater background, and her knowledge of literature gives her a good sense of what type of story to tell to a particular audience," Edmonds says.

Martin says she also chooses her stories with a mind for not offending anyone. She therefore fills a lot of requests from children for Dr. Seuss tales. "I like Dr. Seuss, too, and I think that's somehow transferred in the storytelling to the children. The stories have a moral without being heavily didactic," Martin says.

One particular audience of second through fifth graders at the Douglass Branch library last week heard the Liberian folktale about the frog and then listened to the spooky tale of "The Golden Arm."

The story involves the ghost of a strange, old woman who's haunting her husband for stealing her golden arm after her death. Martin played the part to the hilt. "Wheeeeeeeeee My GooOooOlden Arrrrrrr!" Some children gasped and giggled; some found nothing at all funny about the story.

Martin says her movements and expressions during a story presentation are unplanned.

"I won't choreograph a gesture unless I think it will help. If I memorize gestures and story line and the story word for word—in some stories, the language has such a richness that I know I couldn't improve it—it stifles interaction," she says.

During last week's story, one young listener was asked to leave the room for causing disruptions, but Martin willingly and often stops the flow of her stories to answer questions and hear comments.

"I was thinking about my grandmother's hands and all the nice things they used to do for me," Martin begins. "She made me cookies with those hands, she..."

"She made you cookies?" a boy interrupts.

Martin is patient, she says, because the children are just learning to behave as an audience. "When I started, I was very prepared and precise. I had to learn how to be more flexible, to plug in some fun activities when kids get restless," Martin says.

She does often read the stories from a book, but in formal presentations to groups larger than 10, she prefers to have the plot memorized, and she likes to have heard the story told by someone else.

"I've seen stories in print and thought, 'This wouldn't be a good story to tell. It's got no life in it.' Then I hear a storyteller do a wonderful job with it. It just needed to be told in a certain way," she says.

Given that, Martin's storytelling may live happily ever after.

Donald Krummel Honored by the MLA

Donald Krummel, professor of library and information science and of music was awarded a citation by the Music Library Association. The citation was presented on 12 February 1988.

Krummel received the award in recognition of his continuing and distinguished service as a scholar, educator, and librarian.

A past president of the Music Library Association, music bibliographer, and proponent of American music, Krummel has furthered an understanding of the documents of the music trade. His enthusiasm for teaching and continuing commitment to the professional development of music librarians has brought countless students in touch with the resources of our American musical heritage.

Krummel's most recent book, Bibliographical Handbook of American Music, was published in January 1988 by the University of Illinois Press. He received the "G. K. Hall Award for Library Literature" from the ALA last July for his earlier book, Bibliographies: Their Aims and Methods.

Chinese Scholar Visits GSLIS

Dr. Feizhang Peng, President of the College of Library and Information Science, Wuhan University, Wuhan, Peoples Republic of China, visited GSLIS from February 6-11. As a part of his visit, Dr. Peng delivered a talk on "Libraries, Education, and Society in China" in which he described the development and current status of Chinese libraries. The division of responsibility among different ministries for the management of various types of libraries was particularly interesting. An informal reception followed the talk.

Dr. Peng's visit was an opportunity for Profs. Lancaster and Auld to welcome him to central Illinois in return for his having been their host during their visits to China in 1986 and 1987. Five campus units shared in sponsoring Dr. Peng's visit to the University of Illinois: The University Library; the Russian and East European Center; the Center for East Asian and Pacific Studies; the U.S.-China, African Studies Exchange Committee; and the Graduate School of Library and Information Science. Because Dr. Peng does not speak English, we were particularly fortunate to have Dr. Chengren Hu, a recent Ph.D. graduate of GSLIS, serve as interpreter. Dr. Hu, on her return to China, will be the first library and information science Ph.D. in China to have been trained in the United States.

Mary Kinney — She Exerted the Kind of Leadership that will be Greatly Missed

Mary Kinney (BS '29, MS '37), Associate Professor of Library Science, Emerita, Simmons College, passed away in St. Petersburg, Florida on 27 January 1988 after a long illness.

Kinney received her AB in history from the University of Illinois and then enrolled in a year of graduate study in library science, graduating with honors in 1929. Her first position was in the Cossitt (Public) Library in Memphis, Tennessee where she became head of the Catalog Department.

In 1935 she returned to school, this time in the master's degree program; her thesis, Legislation for Library Service in State Penal Institutions has been cited as the first thesis on prison libraries. After receiving her degree, Kinney taught at the University of Illinois Library School as a member of the faculty.

In the summer of 1942, Kinney went to teach cataloging courses at Simmons College in Boston. She liked it so much there that she agreed to return in the fall as teacher of reference methods. During her thirty year teaching career, Kinney specialized in reference services, research in bibliographical methods, government publications, and the reference literature of the humanities.

She served in various capacities in the ALA, the ACRL, the SLA, and was a charter member of Beta Phi Mu when the library society was formed at Illinois.

As one of her colleagues stated, "In the classroom, [Kinney's] presence and her knowledge and enthusiasm for her subject commanded the respect and admiration of her students. As a faculty member, she excited the kind of leadership that will be greatly missed."

ALA Student Chapter Activities Fall 1987-Spring 1988

The ALA Student Chapter at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign, is one of 16 student chapters in the U.S. and the second chapter formed after the ALA instituted student chapters in 1981. Our goal is to provide library students with an organizational vehicle that advances issues in librarianship. The University of Illinois chapter has 71 ALA student members.

The first organizational meeting of the academic year was held 4 September 1987 with faculty advisor Dr. Leslie Edmonds presiding. The following officers were elected: Carol Bowman, president; Kim Hale, vice president; Pam Lefler, secretary; Lynn Schmit, treasurer; and Gayle Wood, public relations. ALA membership forms were distributed and future activities were discussed. All GSLIS students were invited to attend any ALA student chapter activity; however, membership in the ALA parent organization was not required.

A reception for all GSLIS students and faculty was held October 9 at the Champaign Public Library and Information Center. The event, co-sponsored by the library and the student chapter, included staff-conducted tours of the library and refreshments.

Dean Leigh Estabrook hosted a Halloween party in her home for all GSLIS students and faculty, with assistance from the SLA, ASIS, and ALA student chapters. "Dictionary" proved to be a popular game, and refreshments were served.

Mr. Thomas Galvin, Executive Director of ALA, was invited to speak on campus 11 February 1988. His presentation, entitled "Information Equity," was attended by GSLIS students and faculty and other library professionals in the area.

The ALA Student Chapter sponsored three successful career seminars for GSLIS students on February 25, March 3, and March 10. Areas covered included career planning, the GSLIS placement office, writing effective resumes and cover letters, and the interviewing process. Presentations were given by Leslie Edmonds, Associate Dean; Gary Rolstad, Assistant Dean; Kathy Russavage, Placement and Alumni Relations; Richard Rubin, Visiting Assistant Professor; Pat Stenstrom, Library and Information Science Librarian and Associate Professor of Library Administration; and Eugenia Brumm, GSLIS doctoral candidate.

T-shirts and sweatshirts were offered for sale by the chapter to GSLIS students during the fall and spring semesters. A catalog card describing a GSLIS student graced the fall edition of the T-shirt. A design contest was held for the spring edition. Karen Hewitt, Assistant to the Dean for Publications, submitted the winning design, which depicted the integration of books and computers.

Future ALA student chapter activities tentatively scheduled include sponsoring an essay contest for GSLIS students (the winner will receive an ALA scholarship to attend the ALA Conference in New Orleans (July 8-12), a pre-ALA conference meeting, a program featuring local library professionals, and a picnic.

A Librarian Suggests...

Betty O. Chism (BS '40) wrote us a delightful note after the phonathon. Included was her suggestion to any and all retired librarians that they volunteer their services to some nearby library. Whether it turns out to be books to shelve, or something to do with the catalog—or maybe a special project they have no time for (or that you invent)—libraries are so chronically short of hands and money that they'll love you for it!

Let Us Hear From You

Contributions to this column come from the University of Illinois Alumni Association, from your own correspondence to the GSLIS, and from our faculty as they hear from you or notice your names in the news. Send us newspaper articles, press releases, business memorandums regarding your accomplishments, or just drop us a note to let us and your colleagues know how you're doing. We want to hear from you!

Laissez les Bons Temps Roulez at the ALA Convention in New Orleans

The annual GSLIS LSA Alumni Reception at the American Library Association convention will be held this year on Monday, 11 July.

A Continental Breakfast meeting has been planned for GSLIS alumni who will be attending this year's ALA convention in New Orleans. The GSLIS reception will be held from 7:30 to 9:00 AM. Unfortunately, the ALA has not yet made room assignments, so please check the Conference Program when you arrive at the convention to find the location.

We'll hope to see you there!

The 1988 LSA Nominating Committee (Ray Gant, Chair) presents the following single slate of officers and directors for 1988-1989 terms:

- President Sylvia Justice '82
1st Vice-President Pat Stenstrom '57
2nd Vice-President Jenny Holmberg '83
Secretary-Treasurer Judi Blaford '81
Director (1988-1989) Betsy Wilson '78

Proposed LSA Bylaws Change

The Executive Board of the Library School Association proposes that the Bylaws be amended as follows:

1. Where University of Illinois appears in the Bylaws, it be changed to University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

2. Where University of Illinois Library School Association appears in the Bylaws, it be changed to University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign Library School Association.

By making these changes, the Library School Association's Bylaws will be consistent with other University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign alumni constituent associations. The proposed changes will be put to a vote of the membership attending the annual business meeting. Amending the Bylaws requires a three-fourths vote of those present at the meeting.

Coming Soon . . . A GSLIS Alumni Directory

As the centennial of GSLIS approaches, our thoughts are turning to keeping in better touch with our former students. In an effort to improve the lines of communication and the services we can provide, we have focused our attention on putting the database into good working condition.

One of the immediate benefits of our labors will be the publication of a complete Alumni Directory. We will be printing approximately 5,000 copies of the directory for the exclusive use of GSLIS graduates.

The listings will be comprehensive (not confined solely to alumni association members) and conveniently organized. The directory will be alphabetically arranged with local home addresses listed; several handy indexes also will be compiled. Included will be a fully cross-referenced name index, and indexes by state and by class.

If you would prefer not to be listed in the alumni directory, please let us know by May 31.

GSLIS will distribute the directories free of charge to all alumni. Provision has been made to include advertising to offset some of the expense of publication; we would like to encourage you to inquire if your employer would like to place an ad. Likewise, contributions will be cheerfully accepted.

printing and postage. The established sources of funds should be and are approached first, but if none of those can respond, it is incumbent on the dean to find the money in question.

As a final example, travel funds are always in short supply (and particularly so this year). Faculty and doctoral students need some help to get to professional association conferences and to other meetings especially relevant to their major areas of interest.

Because I often lacked the funds for these and other purposes when I was head, it occurred to me that the best thing I could do to help Dean Estabrook was to offer the challenge to match alumni gifts of $50 or more. I am very grateful to all the many alumni who responded to this year's solicitation. The next time this school is rated first in the nation, you can say to yourself "I helped make it so!"

Please note that the Fall 1987 issue of this newsletter was, indeed, Issue 1. Sorry for any confusion that might have arisen by omitting that piece of information.

Also, please accept our apologies for any misspellings and inaccuracies in the donor rolls. The donor information comes to us through the university alumni foundation, and unfortunately, we do not have the staff to cross-check the listings against our records. Second Annual GSLIS Commencement

The school's second annual commencement ceremony for GSLIS graduates will be held on 22 May 1988. Degrees will be presented to graduates of the masters, doctoral, and advanced studies programs.

The ceremony once again will be held in the East Foyer of the Main Library on the University of Illinois campus. We welcome any and all alumni who are in the area and would like to attend the celebration. The program will be held on 22 May 1988, beginning at 2:00 pm.

Edward Holley Distinguished Alumnus Award Recipient

The Distinguished Alumnus Award Committee of the Library School Association is pleased to announce the selection of Edward Holley as this year's Distinguished Alumnus Award recipient. Dr. Holley will receive his award during the GSLIS commencement ceremony to be held 22 May 1988.

Dr. Holley receives the distinction in recognition of the outstanding contribution he has made to the field of library and information science. Receiving both his masters and doctorate degrees in library science from UIC (in 1952 and 1961 respectively), Dr. Holley has served the profession through his leadership, research and publications.

He served as Dean of the Library School at the University of North Carolina—Chapel Hill from 1972 to 1985. Presently he is Professor of Library and Information Science at North Carolina. The Distinguished Alumnus Award is not the first honor to befall Dr. Holley. He received the ALA Schermer Press Award in 1964, was the Beta Phi Mu Visiting Scholar at the University of Hawaii in 1978, and was awarded the Melville Dewey prize in 1983. He received the Joseph W. Lippincott award at the ALA in 1987.

Nominations for 1989 Welcomed

The Library School Association Distinguished Alumnus Award Committee welcomes nominations for the Distinguished Alumnus Award for 1989. Nominations may be submitted no later than 1 November 1988. To submit nominations or for additional information, contact: Dean Leigh Estabrook, Graduate School of Library and Information Science, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, 410 David Kinley Hall, 1407 West Gregory Drive, Urbana, IL 61801.

Message from Dean Estabrook

Although budget uncertainties in the Illinois state legislature are a cloud at the University (see article on p. 7), the support from GSLIS alumni and from the profession fuel my optimism for the school.

The generosity of your contributions to the annual fund drive cushioned us from this year's reduction in state funding and allowed us to offer several additional assistantships to our students. At the same time, the large number of contributors provided an important indication of how strongly our alumni support this school. Thank you.

The support of the profession—particularly from residents in the Chicago area—has been critical to our beginning a new venture. Beginning this fall, we plan to offer the entire master's program in Chicago. The program is designed for working students and will meet on alternate weekends (Friday and Saturday). Professor Leslie Edmonds has been named Associate Dean and has taken a leave from the teaching faculty to administer the Chicago program through its first year.

Assistant Dean Gary Rolstad has resigned to become Adult Services Consultant at Queens Borough Public Library in New York. His ease with students and his ability to wend his way through the University bureaucracy will be missed. A current student, Curtis McKay, will take over many of those activities when he becomes Assistant to the Dean at the end of the summer. My only regret in offering the new position to Curt is that he would make a terrific librarian. I feel somewhat guilty about keeping him to ourselves.

In recent months I have had the opportunity to get to know an increasing number of you. In early March, Gus Herrer and his wife welcomed me to the Gainesville, Florida community. In October, Maybelle Swanlund was on campus for the rededication of the Swanlund Administration Building, named in honor of her husband. I continue to welcome the opportunity to meet others at conferences, alumni events, and through correspondence. I hope to see many of you in New Orleans.

Because of the extent of alumni news, this newsletter does not include information about current faculty activities. In our fall newsletter, we will update you on their publications and other activities and introduce you to the new faculty who will be joining us in August.

The New Alumni Database is Up and Running

The past six months have been particularly rigorous for Kathy Russavage, Placement and Alumni Relations, and Kent Yates, Computer Services Manager. In that span of time they have created a complete alumni database and entered records for approximately 5,000 alumni.

Through trial and error and successive refinements, Russavage and Yates worked with the database until it was capable of storing an incredible amount of vital information all in one place. Information that previously was logged on cards, stored in boxes—or otherwise kept "in a safe place"—is now conveniently stored on our new computer database.

This is the first time the database has been used for a comprehensive mailing, and we hope you will alert us to any changes that may be necessary to bring your information file up-to-date.

New Faculty Are an Impressive Group

Four new assistant professors can be seen in the corridors of GSLIS this year—Bryce L. Allen, Prudence Dalrymple, Brett Sutton, and Debra Johnson. Johnson joined the faculty last year as a lecturer but was never formally introduced in the newsletter.

We are pleased to welcome this fine group of professionals to the school—their talents in research, teaching, and public service will be an excellent addition to our program. Instead of listing their accomplishments with the other faculty in our "Faculty Footnotes" column (see pages 6-7), we have chosen instead to provide a little background information about them.

Our wintres are not likely to be a problem for Bryce L. Allen who comes to the University of Illinois via Ontario, Canada. Allen has been teaching courses at the University of Western Ontario while he completed his PhD, "Bibliographic and Text-Linguistic Schemata in the User-Intermediary Interaction."

His subject interests include library public services, cognitive studies of information users, library automation and library administration. He will have a chance to express his views on these topics this year in two of the classes he is teaching—Library Administration, and Techniques for Managerial Decision-Making in Libraries. He is also scheduled to teach Foundations of Library and Information Science, the basic introductory course for incoming graduate students. We are certainly pleased to have Allen with us.

Prudence Dalrymple is not transferring allegiances by coming to the University of Illinois, she is just changing locations. Until this semester, she has been working as the Health Sciences Librarian at the University of Illinois-Chicago, College of Medicine in Rockford. But she is not originally from this area; Dalrymple grew up in Massachusetts, got her MS from Simmons

Second Annual GSLIS Phonathon Scheduled

GSLIS students, faculty, alumni, and local librarians will start dialing the phone numbers of our 5000 alumni at 5:00 PM, Wednesday, 19 October, as the second annual Phonathon begins.

Expect to hear from one of our callers sometime between 6 and 9 PM (your local time), October 19, 20, or 23-27, as we seek to answer your questions about the school and secure your pledge to help us provide additional resources to enhance the work of GSLIS.

Your support, even through small gifts, is important to the students and faculty. This is not the same fundraiser as that conducted by the University of Illinois Foundation or the University Library, which may also call you. We receive no funding through them.

Our callers thoroughly enjoyed talking with you last November, and we were deeply appreciative of your generosity. You will be looking forward to talking with you again this October.

Storyteller Beth Horner Tells Her Tale

Storyteller Beth Horner and her autoharp.

Name: Beth Horner, 34

Occupation: Storyteller

Background: Horner had storytelling as her career goal when she earned a B.A. in theater and child development from the University of Missouri and a master's in library science from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign (MS '80). She performs for adults, teenagers, and children across the country on "gigs" that include company banquets, business meetings, family reunions, school and park district programs and storytelling festivals. She and her husband, Paul Jose, a psychology professor at Loyola University, live in Evanston, Illinois.

Years in present position: 6

I get many different reactions to the same story because everyone sees a different story in his or her own mind. When I tell to 500 people, there are 500 different "movies" going on in the minds of the listeners. If the story has a prince, that prince looks different to each person. If the story has a monster, that monster takes on the character of what each person is coping with at that time.

People often think storytellers read the stories. But it's not reading, it's telling. I suppose a definition would be the oral communication of a narrative. I communicate the story with my voice, my face, my hands and the listener's imagination. Storytelling is a powerful form of communication because there isn't any barrier between the teller and the listener. There's no screen, stage or book. There's an incredible rapport that gets established. In the Middle Ages when a balladeer was captured, his ransom was higher than that for a soldier. In a time when print was not available, oral skill was very valuable. Today storytelling is a folk art and so not so highly regarded.

I'm on the road for two weeks, in the Chicago area for two weeks. I keep a pretty basic schedule year round, but there are different seasons for different kinds of events. Halloween and holidays are busy because those are times people think of special programs. During the winter there are school gigs, office banquets. Spring, summer and fall, a lot of outdoor festivals.

Anyone who likes to have a good time would be attracted to storytelling festivals. Usually, 5 to 10 storytellers from across the nation are invited to tell for a two-day period, outdoors, under tents. Festivals have helped in the revival of storytelling in the last 15 years.

One of the biggest misconceptions about storytelling is that it's just for children. Yet most of my gigs are for adults. Adults tend not to react overtly during a program, except with applause and laughter. They're usually embarrassed by tears. They are outwardly inhibited, but inside it's like fireworks. One woman said to me, "This is better than therapy." Children tend to be very uninhibited listeners, and I encourage that with stories they can get involved in, with movement and song.

The toughest audience at first is junior-high-school students because storytelling is associated with childhood in our culture, and this is a group trying to associate itself with adulthood. They immediately look bored and punch their buddies to show they are more adultlike. That's why I start with a ghost story because ghost stories are not necessarily associated with childhood. I find that once they enjoy that first story, they know it's all right to like the program.

Another misconception about storytelling is that every story has a moral. But storytelling is not the handing out of morals. When you tell a story, people will get the point. Each person gets something different out of each story. One time I told a story to a high school audience about an older woman who starts out weary and then continues questing in her life. Afterwards a teenage girl came up to me and said, "That woman really reminds me of my mother!" For the first time she saw that maybe her mother was a person and wanted to live her life also.

I design each program for the specific audience. I think about their age, their intellectual development and the life experiences they bring to the telling. It's vital to understand and respect the audience. For example, when I tell stories at a battered-women's shelter, I never tell a story with any kind of physical abuse, that makes light of a man and woman hitting each other, unless the situation is resolved or we are going to follow it up with discussion. When I tell to high school students, I try to include a story with romance. It might be a myth. Myths have everything: sex, romance, powerful characters, conflict, suspense, danger—like a prime-time soap opera. When I tell at a senior-citizen center, I like to include a Vietnamese story that shows how in your life there is a time when you are cared for, times when you care for others and a time when you are cared for again. Another story, "The Mousedeer and the Buffalo Chip," is liked by all ages because it's humorous and also because the little guy, the mousedeer, outwits a tiger.

I spend at least 30 hours preparing for a 20-minute story. Learning the actual words is only one part of it. I research each story fully. I read and listen to recordings of as many different versions of a story as I can. For example, I first heard the mousedeer story from an Indonesian student, and I spent hours and days with him listening to other mousedeer stories and asking him about his country and how he heard the stories. Then I went to the library and found as many written versions as I could. Then I took all this information and told the story, representing the culture as best I could and still making an interesting story. Another example is the Cinderella story, which has more than 700 recorded versions, including Scotland's Molly Mop Top, Japan's Beni Sara, the Appalachian Ash Pit. I look at the constant thread in each culture to understand why the story continues to be entertaining and psychologically satisfying.

When you look at the stories of a culture, you are looking straight into the heart of that culture. You don't want to misrepresent a culture. For example, I was working on a Japanese story and kept adding historical detail from my research, but when I tried it out on a Japanese historian, he said, "Don't put in a lot of clutter. This is a spare culture." So I just left the bare essentials, the most important images and plot elements, and I like the story much better.

After the research, I spend a lot of time working on words and images. Usually I work on it orally first and then write out what I like. I work with a tape, talk to myself. Since I'm making my living at this, I have trouble trying out a story on an audience, so I try out versions on storyteller friends and at guild meetings, and I get feedback. I charge between $250 and $500, depending on the nature and length of the programs. My shortest story is 90 seconds, the longest is 45 minutes. A program can run anywhere from 30 minutes to 2 hours.

I have a repertoire of about 100 stories that continually varies. I work with folk tales, myths, legends, ballads, hero tales, ghost stories, all kinds of stories. Some of my program titles are "Stories to Chill Your Spine and Tickle Your Funny Bone," "Women with Guts" and "Hairy

Allerton Institute Conference Conserving and Preserving Materials in Nonbook Formats

The 30th Allerton Institute conference, Conserving and Preserving Materials in Nonbook Formats, will be held November 6-9, 1988 at the Chancellor Hotel and Conference Center in Champaign, Illinois near the U of I campus.

The topic is of critical importance as we come to recognize the increasing variety of nonbook materials that are routinely added to the collections of libraries, archives and museums. Each format has its own special problems relating to its conservation and preservation. In addition, many formats are paper based or have some components that contain paper and are, therefore, subject to all the problems related to paper.

Presentations by practitioners, preservation specialists, conservators, and vendors will cover sound recordings, computer-based and computer-generated records, moving images, newspapers, black-and-white photographic records, color photography, art on paper, textiles, archives and manuscripts, and cartographic materials. The role of vendors and suppliers in preservation will be discussed and there will be demonstrations and exhibits.

The three-day Allerton Institute conference price of $200 includes all sessions, exhibits, and most meals. The conference is supported, in part, by a grant from the Council on Library Resources.

For more information, contact co-chairs: Kathryn Luther Henderson (217) 333-6191 or William T Henderson (217) 333-0757. Or contact Annetta Holt at the Graduate School of Library and Information Science, 410 David Kinley Hall, 1407 W. Gregory Drive, Urbana, IL 61801, (217) 333-3280.

The Big Uneasy—GSLIS Students Look for Jobs at the ALA Conference in New Orleans

The annual American Library Association (ALA) conference can be a unique experience for library school students. It's a chance to interact with future colleagues, attend a variety of programs on current library issues, meet vendors and obtain information about their products, and, perhaps most importantly, use the Placement Service to search for that first professional job.

Employment was the goal for me and three fellow students as we left Champaign by car on Friday, 8 July, at 5:30 a.m., headed for the Big Easy, New Orleans, and the annual ALA conference. We had attended a pre-ALA conference meeting conducted by Professor Leslie Edmonds, where we were told about conference logistics, program etiquette, how the Placement Service functions, and what to wear.

We had preregistered for the Placement Service in June by filling out ALA-provided forms describing our education/employment history and selecting one of seven categories—administration-academic libraries, special libraries, or public libraries; reference and subject specialists; other user services; technical services; school library; library school; special materials; information systems; and non-library settings—in which we were most interested in working. We had also booked rooms at Tulane University, which, although not as luxurious as the conference hotels, were easily affordable on our student budgets.

So, armed with fresh copies of our resumes and dressed in our professional best, we went to the Hilton on Saturday morning to attend an orientation workshop for Placement Service users. Job seekers and employers were given a half hour presentation by the ALA Office for Library Personnel Resources (sponsors of the Placement Service) describing how the service operated. Employers described their openings on the same forms we had used and assigned the positions to one of the seven categories. Each applicant or position was assigned a unique ID number. Forms were then placed in binders according to classification category and separated into applicants and employers. If employers saw an applicant they were interested in (or visa versa), an index card was filled out with the name, ID number, classification category, and dates and times available for interviewing. The cards were left in the message center provided by the Placement Service; both applicants and employers were to check their boxes and then proceed with setting up interviews.

We left the workshop wondering if this seemingly bewildering scheme could ever help us find a job!

After the workshop, we walked to the Convention Center where the Placement Service was located. The Center was also the site of the Exhibition Hall, ALA Store, conference registration and message center. We registered for the conference and picked up our name badges and an even heavier and more intimidating Conference Program than the one we had received in June. We glanced through it, making mental notes of the programs we thought we would like to attend.

At 12 p.m. the doors of the Placement Service opened, and for the next four days this cavernous room was to be our raison d'être. Inside, tables were set up for applicants and employers to peruse the binders. The interview area was cordoned off from the rest of the room and contained tables in an open area for conducting interviews. Employers such as OCLC, the Chicago Public Library, and the New York Public Library were provided with their own areas for recruiting and interviewing. We quickly set about reading each job description in our respective category or related categories, filling out the index cards, and checking our mailboxes every 15 to 20 minutes for responses. My companions and I were looking for jobs in the areas of academic reference, cataloging, and automation, and we each received a fair number of interviews. We were all pleasantly surprised at how well the service was organized and run.

Between interviews, we would visit the exhibition hall and try to fill as many bags as possible with convention booty. Not wanting to miss a single interview, we all stayed close to the Placement Service, and unfortunately failed to attend any programs. This was perhaps a mistake on our part, but our goal was to utilize the Placement Service to its fullest, and to that end we felt we were successful. We did make it to the Opening General Session and All Conference Reception, though.

We left for home on Tuesday, after the Placement Service closed. Two of us received second interviews and landed jobs as a result of the conference and two of us are still looking. We would recommend that all library school students attend the annual conference. It was not expensive—I spent only $135.00 which included the room, gas, food (including one dinner at a fine restaurant in the French Quarter), and the conference registration fee. However, do attend some of the programs (there are many to choose from) and take comfortable walking shoes. And especially take advantage of the Placement Service. It was good experience in interviewing, and even if you are not offered a position, you will have that experience to draw upon in future interviews.

Class Notes

Estrilla M. Daniels (BS '38) passed away on 6 January 1986 in Toledo, Ohio.

Ellen Schultz Johnson (BS '41) retired from her position, Librarian of the Archive of Recorded Sound, University of Kansas, Lawrence, in June 1988. The archive, which she administered since its establishment in 1982 specializes in early opera and vocal recordings, jazz and symphonic recordings, and John Philip Sousa and concert band recordings. She publishes on copyright law, musicians, and discography.

Johnson is copyright chairman of the International Association of Sound Archives and is the author of its "Copyright Guidelines for Audio Visual Archives, 1987." She is principal investigator with the Association for Recorded Sound Collections' Associated Audio Archives Committee Preservation Project sponsored by the National Endowment for the Humanities, and she made presentations at the ARSC Conference in Toronto in May and the Mountain Plains Music Library Association in October of 1988. Her latest article on the Paul Bierley John Philip Sousa Collection at KU is in the latest CBDNA Journal.

Harriette E. Hitt (BS '42) passed away on 28 November 1987 in Chapel Hill, North Carolina.

Ruth Lowenthal (BS '46) retired from her position as director of the Colby Community College Library, in Colby, Kansas, at the end of the spring 1988 school semester.

Lowenthal was the first director at the H.F. Davis Memorial Library. During her 22 year tenure, she had several major achievements. In 1968, due in part to the efforts of Lowenthal, the college library was designated as a Federal Government Depository Agency. "It was rather a coup at the time for a community college to have a government depository for documents. I understand we are the only one," said Lowenthal. Colby Community College is a selective depository and has only about 20 percent of what is available; the materials are sent by the government without expense to the college or the community.

Lowenthal graduated from Russell High School and Fort Hays State University, and then went on to the University of Illinois. After completing her studies in library science, she worked as a cataloger at the Fort Hayes State University library in Kansas.

Upon retiring, Lowenthal has plans to remain in Colby except for the traveling that she and her husband are planning. "I have at least five years of projects that I postponed for retirement," says Lowenthal.

Wilmet Squire Leak (MS '56) began a new position in July 1987 on the staff of the Malden Public Library, Malden, MA. Most of the work is reference, which is her first and favorite choice in the library field. She has had a challenging year learning a new community, new collection, and a new staff, but it has been enjoyable.

Marilee Foglesong (MS '62) is now Coordinator of Young Adult Services, The New York Public Library.

Carol M. Kelley (MS '69) has won the Samuel Lazerow Award for Research in Technical Services. The award ($1,000) was presented at the ALA conference in New Orleans. Her research is integrating CD-ROM into Acquisitions workflow. Kelley is also the News Editor for CD-ROM Librarian.

Sister Marion Schrader (MS '69) passed away on 26 April 1988 in St. Louis, Missouri. Sister Schrader was a graduate of Notre Dame College, St. Louis. She received a master's degree in classics from St. Louis University and a master's degree in library science from the University of Illinois. She also studied at Loyola University, The University of Notre Dame and the University of Kansas.

She worked as a cataloger and assistant professor at the University of Illinois from 1969 to 1970 and from 1972 to 1980. She served as head librarian of Cardinal Ritter Library at Notre Dame College from 1970 to 1972. In 1980, she moved to Maryville, Mo., where she lived at Mount Alverno with the Sisters of St. Francis and served as a cataloger at Owens Library of Northwest Missouri State University.

John "Jack" R. Hermann (MS '70) has retired from his position as Senior Reference Librarian, Fairfield County District Library, in Lancaster, Ohio. "It hardly seems possible that almost 20 years have passed since I retired from the Air Force and came to the University of Illinois to attend graduate school. I'll always have fond memories of that time, the school, classmates, and faculty."

Jo K. Potter (MS '72) has recently been appointed Director of the Alpha Park Public Library District in Bartonville, Illinois. For the past 8 years, she has been the Children's Librarian at the same library. For the 6 years prior to that, she was Unit District Librarian of the Spoon River Valley Schools, in Fairview, Illinois.

Christine Andrews (MS '76) has changed her name to Christine Johnston. She is currently at the Chemistry Library at the University of Texas-Austin.

Helen M. Latham (CAS '76) received her PhD from Texas Woman's University, Denton, Texas, in 1986. Her dissertation was "Dominican Nuns and the Book Arts in Renaissance Florence." She is now employed as Associate Librarian at Austin College in Sherman, Texas.

Audrey Powderly Newcomer (MS '76) was the first recipient of the Medical Library Association's Estelle Brodman Award for the Academic Medical Librarian of the Year. The award recognizes health sciences librarians who, at mid-career, have significant achievements while showing potential for leadership and continuing excellence.

Newcomer was selected because of the high quality of her record in a number of endeavors. For example, through her efforts, the McGoogan Library at the University of Nebraska acquired and installed an integrated system. She conceived the project, wrote the grant application, won an award, and installed the system. She also has made admirable contributions to the profession through her memberships, offices, and publications, and is currently serving on the MLA Board of Directors.

Janice L. Platt (MS '76) recently received her law degree, graduating Cum Laude from Salmon P. Chase College of Law, Northern Kentucky University, Highland Heights, Kentucky. She is currently head cataloger at the University of Cincinnati Law Library in Ohio.

Emily Johnson Batista (MS '77) has been promoted to head of circulation services for the University of Pennsylvania Libraries. Batista was previously reference librarian at the Lippincott Library of the Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania. (This bit of news came to us via David Batista—MS '82—the proud husband.)

Gail Inman (MS '77) has joined the Lincolnwood Public Library as Coordinator of Adult Services. Her responsibilities include book collection development, adult programming, reference services, interlibrary loan coordination, personnel scheduling and bibliography work with the Oakton District Public Library Literacy Coalition.

Prior to joining the Lincolnwood Library, Inman, who is active in Christian volunteer work, was employed in Emporia, Kansas working in the specialized field of Bible library work. There she taught research courses in special library work and worked with a team to help restore the Anderson Library, the first college library donated by industrialist and philanthropist, Andrew Carnegie.

Nancy R. Shaffer (MS '77) resigned in August 1987 as Director of the Franklin County Library in Louisburg, North Carolina. She accepted a position as Assistant Director of the H. Leslie Perry Memorial Library in nearby Henderson. The Perry Library serves all of Vance County.

Her new position is half-time, which gives her much more time with her husband and their five-year-old twin daughters, as well as more time in the new solar home they completed last year.

Michael S. Montgomery (MS '79) has been promoted to Librarian III in the General and Humanities Reference Division of the Princeton University Library.

Michelynn McKnight (MS '81), Health Sciences Librarian at the Norman Regional Hospital in Oklahoma writes:

"Whenever I see John Graham at OK SLA we regularly do a few bars of 'Oskie Wow Wow' which everyone around here seems to think is 'Boomer Sooner' (as long as there are no Yalies present!)"

"I've been busy. Last year I was Chair of the Hospital Library Interest Group of the South Central Regional Group of the Medical Library Association (Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, and New Mexico) and for the next two years I will represent Oklahoma on the Regional Advisory Committee of the National Library of Medicine's South Central Regional Library Program — TALON (same states). This year I also am President of the Oklahoma Health Sciences Library Association and worked hard to bring about the affiliation of that organization with the Oklahoma Hospital Association. Next year, I'll be Local Arrangements chair for the 1989 Annual Meeting of the SCRG/MLA (see above) in Oklahoma City. It's the centennial year for the famous Oklahoma Land Run...and should be a lot of fun. (After that I think I'll become a hermit and learn to say 'no'.)"

Martha Childers (MS '81) has accepted the position of Head of Cataloging at San Diego County Law Library.

Valerie Gondek (MS '83) resigned her position as Assistant Health Sciences Librarian-Urbana (University of Illinois at Chicago) in July 1988 and has accepted a position as Director of the National Medical Library, United Arab Emirates University, Al Ain, UAE.

Zaenal Arifin Toy (MS '84) has served as Chief Librarian of the State Institute of Islamic Studies, Jakarta, Indonesia since September 1984, a few months after he returned from his studies at GSLIS. He has been active in the Indonesian Librarian Association since that time, holding the position of Vice-Chairman of the association's Jakarta Selatan Branch from 1984 to 1986.

In July 1986 he was appointed Chairman of the Organizing Committee for a 3 month course in librarianship; Toy was responsible for conducting a course for would-be librarians coming from 14 State Institutes of Islamic Studies throughout Indonesia. Thirty participants took part in this program. In July 1987, and again in October 1988, he undertook the same responsibilities.

Toy has written a bibliography, A Bibliography of Master's Theses of IAIN "Syarif Hidayatullah" Jakarta, 1966-1983 and he is finishing another work, Library Research Guide. In October 1986, he took part in COMLIS II (Congress of Muslim Librarians and Information Scientists) held in Universiti Utara Malaysia at Kedah, Malaysia Utara, presenting a paper, "Library Cooperation in the Field of Social Sciences and Humanities."

He and his colleagues have constructed the thesaurus of Islam in accordance with BISIS (Bibliographic Information Services of Islamic Studies). Since August 1987, he has functioned as Project Officer for the Information Networking System of Islamic Studies. His first task is to compile a Bibliography of Islamic Studies, drawing from libraries joining the networking system.

Since his return home from his studies in the U.S., Toy has made a great effort to develop and promote the role and function of libraries affiliated with the State Institutes of Islamic Studies throughout the country, with the private Islamic colleges and universities, and with the Islamic junior and senior high schools as well.

Danny P. Wallace (PhD '85) was presented with the first Jesse H. Shera Award for Research at the ALA conference in New Orleans. The award is offered by the ALA's Library Research Round Table.

Wallace shared the award with Bert R. Boyce for their paper "Holdings as a Measure of Journal Value."

David E. Carpenter (MS '86) was married to Michael Ann Williams on July 22 in Nashville, Tennessee. He has relocated there from Athens, Georgia.

Beta Phi Mu Award Presented to Samuel Rothstein

Award recipient Samuel Rothstein

Samuel Rothstein was selected to receive the American Library Association's prestigious Beta Phi Mu Award for distinguished service to education for librarianship.

Rothstein served as director of the School of Librarianship at the University of British Columbia from 1961 to 1970. "His name is one of the most widely recognized of all library educators for he has a long and distinguished record of scholarship and teaching," said Jane Robbins, chair of the Beta Phi Mu Award Jury.

Rothstein holds a bachelor's degree in library science from the University of California-Berkeley and a PhD ('54) from the University of Illinois. In addition, he holds bachelor's and master's degrees in French and English from the University of British Columbia and a master's in Romance Languages from University of Washington, Seattle.

Many of Rothstein's articles have been selected for inclusion in anthologies of library literature. He has been awarded an Honorary Doctor of Letters from York University and received the Helen Gordon Stewart Award from the British Columbia Library Association.

The Beta Phi Mu Award, consisting of a citation of achievement and a $500 cash award, was presented to Rothstein at the Inaugural Banquet on 13 July 1988 during the ALA conference in New Orleans.

ALA Mid-Winter Alumni Reception

Please plan to attend this year's GSLIS alumni reception at the ALA mid-winter meeting in Washington, D.C. The Downs Intellectual Freedom Award will be presented at the alumni gathering.

The reception will be held on Saturday, 7 January 1989, from 5-7 PM. The location will be announced in the conference program. In the past we have had some difficulty getting accurate listings, so please feel free to contact the GSLIS office if you have any questions.

We hope to see you there.

College and did her PhD, "Retrieval by Reformulation in Two Library Catalogs: Toward a Cognitive Model of Searching Behavior," at the University of Wisconsin.

She continues to explore areas of information retrieval and use, user-system interfaces, and the information seeking behavior of individuals. She will teach a course in Online Searching, as well as an Introduction to Information Sources and Services. Among her current projects, Dalrymple will be chairing a panel session on clinical users and uses of CD ROM Medicine systems at a national conference sponsored by the National Library of Medicine and speaking on user-centered measures of retrieval effectiveness at the second national conference of LITA. We are very happy to have Dalrymple join the UIUC faculty.

Sometimes it must seem to Brett Sutton as if he has always been at the University of Illinois. His office in GSLIS is only steps away on one side from the building where he attended nursery school and on the other side from the library where he studied as an undergraduate. He did, however, take a reprieve from the campus to complete a PhD in anthropology and an MLS at the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill.

His subject area interests include library automation, the organization and representation of knowledge, and libraries in society. This year he will get an opportunity to teach in those areas too; he will be offering a doctoral seminar, The Social Basis of Library and Information Science, as well as an introductory course on library administration. Needless to say, we are glad Sutton decided to return to UIUC.

Debra Wilcox Johnson is familiar to the faculty and students of GSLIS but new to the position of assistant professor. Last year she came from the University of Wisconsin-Madison to be a lecturer at the University of Illinois. She was promoted to her current status following the defense of her dissertation, "Variables Associated with Public Library Involvement in Adult Literacy Education." In addition to her teaching responsibilities, Johnson is also the associate director of the Library Research Center.

Literacy is Johnson's primary research interest—at Madison she was the project coordinator for the Libraries and Literacy Education Project, she has published "Literacy and Libraries: A Planning Manual" with the ALA, and she received the 1987 ALA Whitney-Carnegie grant to generate a research guide on libraries and literacy. We are proud to welcome Johnson into her second year at GSLIS.

The Things We Find in Our Files!

Library School Jingle Jangles

(Sing to the tune of "Clementine")

At the college, seekin' knowledge
Do we lib'ry students pine
'Tis no fable, we are able
To improve our feeble minds.

O Doctor Stieg, dear Doctor Stieg,
'Tis for you this song we raise;
Not for favors, nor for praises,
But for jobs in later days.

Cataloging is no problem,
Courage you must ne'er resign;
Use some gumption, hang indentions,
On the author entry line.

O Miss Bond, dear Miss Bond,
'Tis for you this song we raise;
Not for Dewey, nor for L.C.
Nor for rules of A.L.A.

Reference is quite specific,
But remember to use Mudge;
She will help you find the answer,
While Miss Phelps removes the drudge.

O Miss Phelps, dear Miss Phelps,
'Tis for you this song we raise;
Not for Hutchins, nor for Hirschberg,
Nor for bibliographic aids.

Administration is important,
You must always be prepared;
When you're pounced on for an answer,
Quote from Jeckel, find it there.

O Miss Spencer, dear Miss Spencer,
'Tis for you this song we raise;
Not for principles, nor objectives,
But for everyone an A.

Children's work is now emerging,
To evaluative stage;
Each child a unique creation,
Reach him at an early age.

Miss Hostetter, Miss Hostetter,
'Tis for you this song we raise;
For your work with little children,
You should have a vote of praise.

If it's pamphlets, or selection,
Of the best books at the least,
Evaluation is the substance,
Of Miss Boyd's course sixty-three.

O Miss Boyd, dear Miss Boyd,
'Tis for you this song we raise;
Not for Sabin, nor for Evans,
Nor for mimeographic aids.

L.S. sixty gives us hist'ry,
Trends and movements of our time;
Education for the old folks,
Is the latest nursery rhyme.

Doctor Goldhor, Doctor Goldhor,
You are 'way beyond the times;
When the kids come in your lib'ry,
Throw them out on their behinds.

All our futures are quite doubtful,
But someday we hope that we
Will bring honor to Alma Mater
And be famous like Dewey.

O Miss Finger, dear Miss Finger,
'Tis for you this song we raise;
Not for slides, nor microfilming,
But for smiles through stormy days.

Children's work or book selection,
Cataloging or reference,
Administrators, readers' advisers,
We're prepared to meet the test.

O Doctor Downs, our director,
You are busy we all know;
With Miss Bull's expert assistance,
You can carry on the show.

When at ninety we are famous,
As the leaders of our time,
We'll ne'er forget these days of toiling
At the U of Illinois.

Local Paper Looks to Librarian for Summertime Reading

Whether you tote a bestselling paperback to the beach or pour over a new murder mystery poolside, reading can be a fun leisure pursuit in the summertime.

Debbie Owen, head librarian of the Fairview Heights Library, said that trashy, junky, pulp fiction is perfectly acceptable when the heat is on. "That's what people read in the summer!"

So forget "War and Peace"—unless, of course, it's on a required reading list for school.

Owen, who is anxiously awaiting the opening of a new library building, doesn't have the time she once did for her favorites. "Personally, I lean toward the Civil War. I'm weird," she stated, laughing. "I like nonfiction."

When she's home in the evening, she's often reading children's books to her 3-year-old son Joseph. "I'm very intimate with Dr. Seuss. I can quote whole stretches of Green Eggs and Ham."

Owen, who grew up in Chicago, has lived in the metro-east with her husband Thomas since 1976. She holds a master's degree in library science from the University of Illinois (MS '76) and has worked at the Fairview Heights Library since 1979.

Here is her list of favorite summer reading:

1. Blue Highways, by William Least Heat Moon
"One of the best travel books ever written."
2. Aztec, by Gary Jennings
"Gripping historical fiction."
3. Gorky Park, by Martin Cruz Smith
"A most interesting mystery set in Russia."
4. Cast of Killers, by Sidney Kirkpatrick
"A 50-year-old murder solved!"
5. Chickenhawk, by Robert Mason
"A chopper pilot's view of Vietnam."
6. Any Stephen King novel
"But especially his early ones."
7. Mila 18, by Leon Uris
"A sad tale of the Warsaw ghetto."
8. Hawaii or The Source, by James Michener
"Still the master of this genre."
9. Any Danielle Steele
"For romantics of any age."
10. The Lord of the Rings, by J.R.R. Tolkien
"Escape to a magic land—fantasy at its best!"

Lancaster Receives ASIS Award of Merit

F. Wilfrid Lancaster has been selected to receive the 1988 American Society for Information Science Award of Merit.

The Award of Merit, the highest honor the Society can bestow, is given annually to an individual who has made noteworthy contributions to the field of information science; among the considerations are the development of new ideas, devices, and techniques, and professional devotion to information science. A jury of Society members selected Lancaster from a list of nominees.

The award will be presented to Lancaster at the annual ASIS conference to be held in Atlanta, Georgia from October 23 to 27, 1988. This year's meeting, "Information and Technology: Planning for the Second 50 Years," will close the year-long ASIS 50th anniversary celebration; the anniversary was heralded in 1987 by a retrospective look at the transformation of information that has occurred in the last 50 years. Lancaster will give a short speech on receipt of the award at the Awards Banquet, which typically is the highlight of the conference.

The Award of Merit is not the first honor to be given to Lancaster by the American Society for Information Science. He is also a three-time past winner of the prestigious ASIS Best Information Science Book Award.

Higham Named Librarian of the Year

Clayton Highum, director of libraries at Illinois Wesleyan University, received the Academic Librarian of the Year award from the Illinois Association of College and Research Libraries (IACRL). The association's highest award was presented at the annual conference in Chicago.

Higham was honored for his years of service to the profession and the association. He served as association president in 1977 and continues as a member of the executive board, Liaison Committee of the Illinois Board of Higher Education, and Program Planning Committee.

Higham is a graduate of Mayville (North Dakota) State College and has master's degrees from St. Cloud (Minnesota) State College and the University of Illinois (MS '63). He was head librarian at Parkland College from 1967-69 and undergraduate librarian at Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, from 1969-72.

Edward Holley Wins ACRL Academic or Research Librarian of the Year Award

Edward Gailon Holley (PhD '61) was chosen to receive the $3,000 Academic or Research Librarian of the Year Award from the Association of College and Research Libraries (ACRL), a division of the American Library Association.

Holley received the award on 11 July 1988 at the ACRL president's program during the ALA conference in New Orleans. ACRL President Joanne Euster presented the cash award and citation.

In naming Holley to receive the award, Donna M. Goehner, chair of the award jury said, "Dr. Holley was selected not only for the significant and numerous contributions he has made to the published literature and library education programs but also for his leadership role and consulting activities. His has been an exemplary career, and throughout he has served as a role model and mentor for academic librarians. Dr. Holley has without question distinguished himself in virtually every major area of our library profession."

Holley, who received his PhD ('61) from the University of Illinois, served as professor and dean at the School of Information and Library Science, University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill from 1972 to 1985. He continues to the present time as professor at the school.

A past president of the ALA, Holley has also received the prestigious Melvil Dewey Medal and the Joseph W. Lippencott award for notable achievement in librarianship. He was also the recipient of the 1988 GSLIS Distinguished Alumnus Award given by the University of Illinois.

Storyteller

Creators and Faithful Dogs." Many storytellers write their own stories. I have just started to. I've also started collecting stories from people in central and southern Missouri near the Ozark Mountains. This role of folklorist is a skill I am developing.

I don't use costumes or props, and I don't include dance or mime, but I do use an autoharp. Music stretches the age interest of a story. At a telling geared to adults, children will often be there, and if I include music, kids can hook into the story, too. Also, music can provide structure for a story, and it can provide a break for the listener. You have to be careful it doesn't detract, but music is something everyone connects to.

A good day is when I'm introduced to a story I never heard. What's discouraging is to present stories in a setting that's not conducive to listening, perhaps a school with no mike or a bar with no time set aside for the stories. People have to be able to concentrate.

The actual act of telling a story is extremely satisfying. I believe we vicariously experience whatever the character in the story is experiencing, and if we can live out our dreams, our concerns, our fears and our anger through those characters, we are more likely to cope with life rationally. And it's enjoyable to make someone laugh or to give them a perspective on life they had never considered. At adult gigs, people always come up afterwards and tell me something, a story, from their own lives. Then I know my stories meant something to them.

Since this story was reported, Horner has come out with a recording, "Beth Horner—Storyteller: An Evening at Cedar Creek." The hour-long stereo cassette was recorded in front of a live audience in Columbia, Missouri and contains eight different stories for adult listeners. The stories are accompanied by Horner on the autoharp and by Paul and Win Grace of Wellspring Music. Copies can be ordered from Beth Horner—Storyteller, P.O. Box 540, Wilmette, IL 60091. Departmental Profile: The Learning Resources Laboratory

Most days from 8:00 AM until 10:00 PM GSLIS students can be found diligently working in the student operated Learning Resources Lab at tasks including the creation of papers on PC's, searching OCLC, constructing CD-Rom database searches, programming using TurboPascal, or even playing PLATO games.

Located at the south end of the fourth floor hall in DKH, the Lab is fast becoming a center of student activity as a result of a two-year, $50,000 Student Computer Fee grant and an excellent response from students to a plea for volunteer staffing.

The grant allowed the establishment of five CD-ROM stations that provide students with opportunities to develop sophisticated database searching strategies using new compact disc technology. Online searching through DIALOG is also possible, and the stations can also be used as PCs or for TurboPascal programming. CD-ROMs for the complete files of ERIC are available, and a number of vendors have provided demonstration discs for student use. Additional database subscriptions are anticipated this year.

Also available in the Lab are three terminals that are connected to the GSLIS AT&T computer network, a demonstration terminal for WilsonLine OnDisc, two OCLC dedicated terminals, and an Apple IIe terminal.

Completely staffed by students, the Lab is currently open 75 hours weekly, and Lab Coordinator Sam Pathy says that he has additional student volunteers preparing to extend lab hours even further.

Four teaching assistants provide tutorials in basic word processing and use of electronic mail; additional tutorials and workshops will be offered as the year progresses. The Lab staff also meets the audiovisual needs of the faculty, scheduling films and videotapes and providing overhead projectors and other AV equipment for classroom use.

Currently assignments requiring use of the Lab are given in at least six different GSLIS courses. As library automation continues to burgeon, the Lab will provide potential librarians with the experience needed to move smoothly into professional positions requiring increasingly more sophisticated computer skills.

On-Campus Recruitment

The GSLIS Placement Office is currently setting up a schedule for on-campus recruitment and interviewing. We have initiated contacts with seventy-one public libraries (each employing more than fifty professionals), inviting them to send representatives to campus for general presentations and individual interviewing. Any library, regardless of size or type, is also invited to come to campus to interview candidates for position vacancies.

Libraries are encouraged to forward to the Placement Office informational materials on their organizations and notices of vacancies for listing in our placement bulletin.

Any alumni seeking positions in large public library systems may call the Placement Office (217-333-0734) to obtain information on the schedule of libraries sending recruiters to campus, and are welcome to come to campus for presentations and interviews. All alumni who are currently seeking positions of any type are encouraged to subscribe to our placement bulletin and update their credentials files.

If you are aware of any vacancies in your own system, please send (or ask your personnel staff to send) a copy of the position notice to our office. If your library publishes a newsletter, please request that our office be placed on the mailing list. We'd like to make our placement service as comprehensive as possible; any suggestions are welcome and encouraged.

Also, if you move, are promoted, or change employers, please let us know. We'd like to keep track of you and share your good news with fellow alumni in the next newsletter!

If You Want to Evaluate Your Library . . . Then Read this New Book by Lancaster

If You Want to Evaluate Your Library, a new book by F.W. Lancaster, has just been published by the GSLIS Publications Office.

Lancaster's earlier book, The Measurement and Evaluation of Library Services, for years has been used as the standard guide to conducting evaluations. That book received the American Library Association's "Ralph Shaw Award" as an outstanding contribution to the literature of library science. Lancaster brings to this new book his twenty years of experience teaching courses on evaluating library services.

Advance reviews have been laudatory:

"Yes, if you want to evaluate your library (or information service) this is the book that will provide the conceptual framework and the practical advice to do so. Lancaster has deftly woven a non-sense introduction to evaluation into a rich tapestry that includes lucid examples, substantial reference to seminal studies and an abundance of illustrative exhibits...."

"This book is one of the few volumes in library and information science that every faculty member and practitioner will want to own. It will be the starting place for all of us in our continual quest to provide accountability for the services we provide." Reviewed by Kathleen M. Heim, in Journal of the American Society for Information Science.

"...Written in clear, precise language, the text provides advice on how to evaluate most effectively such aspects of library service as collection development, usage of materials, delivery of information, reference work, and resource sharing. Useful case studies appear at the end of each chapter. Administrators contemplating a systematic evaluation of services will find this book most valuable in determining which criteria and methods to use." Booklist.

If You Want to Evaluate Your Library is available now from the University of Illinois, Graduate School of Library and Information Science, Publications Office, 249 Armory Bldg, 505 E. Armory Street, Champaign, IL 61820, (217) 333-1359. $34.50 plus $2.50 postage. Orders must be prepaid to the University of Illinois.

ALA Accreditation

The school is currently involved in a self-study undertaken every seven years as part of the process of maintaining ALA accreditation. This study seeks faculty, staff, administrative, student, and alumni evaluation of the school's program. The ALA Committee on Accreditation says, "The purpose of a self-study is to encourage a candid evaluation of the goals of the school, the objectives of its graduate program, and the degree to which these goals and objectives have—or have not—been realized."

It is important to involve alumni in this process. We are interested in your evaluations of both your own experience at GSLIS and your experience as an employer of GSLIS graduates. Please help us by writing down your impressions of the quality and relevance of our program to you as a graduate and/or employer.

Send your responses to Curt McKay, Assistant to the Dean. Your name isn't necessary, but it is important that we know when you received your degree. Thanks for being part of the ongoing process of reviewing and building our programs.

Research Associate Hired to Develop School Library Program

The Graduate School of Library and Information Science has addressed a long-standing need in the department with the recent appointment of Janie Schomberg as Research Associate for School Library Media Studies.

Schomberg comes to the University of Illinois from the Roseville area school district in Minnesota where she was an elementary school specialist. She has been an elementary school teacher as well as school librarian and media specialist for the district. She is also affiliated with a number of associations geared toward library services to children: American Association of School Librarians, Association of Library Service to Children, National Education Association and several regional education associations.

While with the Roseville school district, Schomberg served on advisory committees for such programs as computer literacy, elementary studies, media studies, and curriculum development.

In her role as Research Associate for School Library Media Studies, Schomberg will work with members of the faculty and with outside agencies to develop a plan for educating school library media personnel by GSLIS.

She will concentrate in particular on entitlement, working with GSLIS faculty, the University of Illinois College of Education, and the State of Illinois Department of Education to complete the entitlement process for the GSLIS school media program.

Schomberg will also work with the faculty to evaluate and revise, if necessary, the current curriculum for youth services librarianship and she will develop a plan for continuing education and off-campus programs to serve the needs of school library media personnel.

Through her professional activities, Schomberg hopes to strengthen GSLIS ties with the Illinois school library media community.

Message from Dean Estabrook

There is a wonderful energy and excitement around GSLIS this fall. We have been joined by three new faculty members, the quality of students continues to rise, and the opportunities for library and information science professionals abound. We are involved in a dynamic profession and GSLIS is fortunate to have faculty, staff, and students with the ability to shape its growth.

In light of these opportunities, I am disappointed to announce that the school's masters program in Chicago, mentioned in the spring newsletter, did not begin this fall. The staff of the Illinois Board of Higher Education has not yet recommended that site approval be granted. It is their belief that the existing resources in the Chicago area are adequate to meet the market demand for librarians and for programs in library and information science education.

My own disappointment is shared by members of our faculty, the 52 students who applied to the Chicago program, the 400 hundred others who inquired about the program, and the UIUC administrative staff who worked with us to develop a program that would meet the needs of working professionals in the Chicago area. We continue to hope that a strong case can be made to the Board to persuade them to place the issue on their agenda. Letters presenting additional evidence of demand for the program have been sent by some of our alumni to the Board; we are encouraged by this show of support and believe it will have a positive effect.

This question of demand is another reminder that many people still view our profession in a most traditional fashion. But the application of our work to settings outside libraries and the rapid growth of the broader information profession is gaining increased recognition. A recent issue of Working Woman cited librarianship as one of the "25 hottest careers." Only last year it was listed as one of the 25 worst.

In my work with architect Helmut Jahn on the Chicago Public Library design/build competition, I saw another aspect of the disjunction between the public view of librarianship and our current practice.

Public members of the jury chose a 19th century style building that they felt looked like a library. Several of the professional library consultants had discussed the vitality and diversity of public libraries in their presentations to the jury; but when one jury member began talking about the "silent temple" of the library of his youth, it was clear that the public still has much to learn about the new role the library plays in society.

The excitement and energy at GSLIS contribute to, and are reflections of, the new vitality in the profession. The media may have promoted the notion of the "information society," but media hype aside, the importance of our work is real. The increasing public need for access to information and the increasing organizational need for effective management of information are only two reasons one could cite. I feel fortunate to be a part of this work and hope you share this optimism for our future.

Charles Bunge 1989 Distinguished Alum

The Library School Association is pleased to announce that Charles A. Bunge is the 1989 recipient of the Distinguished Alumnus Award. The Distinguished Alumnus Award recognizes an alumnus making an outstanding contribution to the field of library and information science, to the U of I Library School Association, or to the Graduate School of Library and Information Science. Charles Bunge is being honored for his significant leadership in the field of library and information science both as a practitioner and educator.

Since 1967, Charles A. Bunge has been a Professor of Library and Information Studies at the University of Wisconsin at Madison. At Wisconsin he has made significant contributions to the field through extensive research, publications, public presentations, and leadership in national organizations. He is a noted expert and valuable resource in reference services and evaluation. He received his bachelors of arts in philosophy from the University of Missouri, and both his masters and doctorate from the U of I in library science. He received the Mudge Citation from ALA in 1983 and the Librarian of the Year Award from the Wisconsin Library Association in the same year. A past president of the Wisconsin Library Association, the Association for Library and Information Science Education, and the Reference and Adult Services Division of the ALA, Professor Bunge has given unselfishly of his time, energy and expertise to the library profession at large.

Professor Bunge will be honored during the School's commencement ceremonies on May 21, 1989. Bunge is the third recipient of the award. The first award was presented to Beverly Lynch in 1987 and Edward Holley in 1988.

Placement Database Now Available to Alumni

The new GSLIS Online Placement Database, which was developed in conjunction with the Placement Bulletin, is now on line and available for use by alumni and current students. The system is accessible from any location using computer and modem; it is compatible with most PC systems currently in use.

The Online Placement Database includes all positions received by the GSLIS Placement Office. Searches may be done for positions in specific state or region, by library type, experience level, available date, salary, or a combination of these criteria. To learn how to gain access to the system, write or call the GSLIS Placement Office.

As a result of a realignment of administrative assignments, Assistant to the Dean Curt McKay is now responsible for placement activities. Kathy Russavage will continue working in placement. Both Curt and Kathy are now located in the GSLIS office, 110 DKH.

We are continuing to bring library representatives to campus to interview current students and alumni. The New York Public Library, the Public Library of Columbus and Franklin County (OH), the Free Library of Philadelphia, and St. Louis Public Library have already scheduled spring semester visits. For information on specific schedules, please write or call Curt or Kathy.

If you are considering a change of position and it has been more than five years since you last used your GSLIS placement file, please ask us for update information and materials before requesting a copy of your file to be sent to an employer.

Thanks to all alumni who have sent positive comments and suggestions for further improvement in our placement service. If you have a special request or need, please do not hesitate to call or write. With your suggestions and continued support, the Placement Office will continue to increase and improve its services to you.

Gallagher and Other Archivists Preserve Posterity

There is history and there is junk in Senator Robert T. Stafford's cartons of letters, newsletters, speeches, memorandums, reports, schedules, notes, statements, photographs and press clippings. It is Connell B. Gallagher's job to decide which is which.

Mr. Gallagher's mission is to spare Senator Stafford the burden that befalls most senators and their states: how to deal with senatorial records collected over years of public service. Mr. Stafford, a 75-year-old Vermont Republican, is retiring at the end of this session after 34 years of statewide office, including 16 years in the United States Senate.

Mr. Gallagher, the staff archivist in Senator Stafford's office, is one of a small but growing number of people on Capitol Hill hired to sort and catalogue lawmakers' papers for archival collections before they leave office, not afterward.

In the past, the question of a senator's papers has often been an afterthought, as it was with another Republican Senator from Vermont, George D. Aiken. When he retired in 1974 after 34 years in Congress, he simply ordered his files packed and loaded onto trucks. A few days later, 1,000 crates were virtually dumped on the doorstep of the library at the University of Vermont.

Mr. Gallagher, who is on sabbatical leave from his job as the university archivist, remembers with a trace of horror that "it took us 10 years to absorb that."

A senator's collection can be both a boon and a bane to a university. It gives the institution prestige and valuable resources. But to be confronted with keeping unsorted papers that have been stored for years is a nightmare for a library staff.

"The Senate historical office for the past decade has tried to urge the senators to think about selecting a repository and perhaps hiring an archivist earlier in their careers instead of waiting till the last minute," said Karen Paul, the Senate archivist, a position that was created in 1982 out of just such a concern. "I think the consciousness started to become more apparent around 1975, 1976, when we had the Bicentennial," Ms. Paul said.

Indeed, many of this year's retiring senators are well along in the archival process already. One of them is Senator John C. Stennis of Mississippi, who has been sending papers to Mississippi State University for a decade. At 87 and with nearly 42 years in office, Mr. Stennis, a Democrat, is the nation's oldest and most senior Senator.

For the last few months an archivist from the University of Florida has been traveling to Washington to go through the files of Senator Lawton Chiles, a Democrat who is retiring this year after three terms. And Senator William Proxmire, a Wisconsin Democrat who has spent nearly 32 years in the Senate, has been organizing his files for transfer to the Wisconsin Historical Society.

Connell Gallagher poses among a portion of the 600 total cartons of the Stafford papers.

Carla Kemp, the archivist working with Senator Chiles's collection, said, "It's a huge collection, and to receive it unbeknownst on the loading dock would be an incredible burden on the system."

Senator Lloyd Benetsen of Texas, the Democratic Vice-Presidential nominee, will not have a problem if he finds himself leaving the Senate for the White House. In April 1987 he added an archivist to his staff.

Still others are beginning to consider their legacy early in their careers. Senator Frank H. Murkowski, an Alaska Republican only two years into his second term, brought in a summer intern to begin organizing his papers. When the intern leaves he plans to hire a permanent archivist and records manager.

Rex Buffington, an aide to Senator Stennis, said he believed the libraries themselves were also beginning to urge members of Congress to give them access to their files before they depart from office. "I think they are realizing it gives them a lot of opportunities to have the person who is giving the papers give some perspective on it, and some oral history to supplement that."

Mr. Gallagher agrees. "The way we're doing it now, I have access to all the staff members as well as all the files," he said.

"When this is shipped to Vermont it will be labeled and the contents listed, and I will have filled in the gaps by interviewing staff members. After I came here I got new angles to pursue: the role of the staff in running the office, how the staff contributed to making policy and legislation. That's been something that's been lost in collections before."

He concluded: Everyone is pleased with my role in this. My institution is pleased because it's going to receive a collection pretty much fully cataloged. His staff is happy because they don't have to go up to the attic and throw boxes around. And I've learned a tremendous amount. I thought I understood how Congress worked, but I didn't have an inkling."

Hostetter Endowment Established

A new endowment for doctoral education has been established with the bequest of Marie Miller Hostetter (1892-1988), who was both a student and a faculty member at the University of Illinois Graduate School of Library and Information Science. Marie Hostetter died on February 18, 1988.

"My life in the field of education for librarianship and that of my sister, Anita, have been guided by the belief that the primary importance of library service is in its human enriching and educational dimensions." Marie Hostetter specified in her will that the income from the Anita and Marie Hostetter Scholarship Fund be used for fellowships for doctoral students and intended that 75% of the recipients be women. The text of her will continues "it has been my observation that women faculty members in the past have been more successful in stimulating students to understand the fundamental importance of this point of view."

Herbert Goldhor, emeritus professor of the GSLIS, commented: "When I joined the faculty of the University of Illinois library school in 1946, I found a small group of women instructors who were its backbone, e.g., Anne Boyd, Ethel Bond, Rose Phelps, and Marie Hostetter. Ms. Hostetter taught courses in school librarianship, and had had relevant work experience as well as a master's degree in education from Northwestern University. Like the others, she was dedicated to the profession and specifically to library school teaching; like the others, she taught here a long time, in her case from 1926 to her retirement in 1960. From then until her death she lived in Claremont Manor in Claremont, CA. Her sister Anita was for many years the executive secretary of the ALA Board of Education for Librarianship, and died in 1963. Marie left her estate to this School for the Anita and Marie Hostetter Doctoral Fellowship."

Kaufman Receives 1988 Intellectual Freedom Award

Paula Kaufman has been frequently cited recently with raising library consciousness regarding the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) Library Awareness Program. In recognition of the long-term impact of her activity, the faculty of the Graduate School of Library and Information Science awarded Ms. Kaufman with the 1988 Robert B. Downs Intellectual Freedom Award.

In June 1987, while Director of Academic Information Services Group for Columbia University, Paula Kaufman wrote to the American Library Association Intellectual Freedom Committee outlining a visit to the Math Science Library at Columbia by two FBI agents who requested information from a clerk about the use of that library by foreigners. Kaufman explained to the FBI that "we were not prepared to cooperate with them in any way, described our philosophies and policies respecting privacy, confidentiality and academic freedom and told them they were not welcome here."

Ms. Kaufman alerted the library community to a Library Awareness Program which the FBI initiated in the New York area research libraries seeking information about library patrons from countries "hostile to the U.S., such as the Soviet Union." Later research revealed that the program has been in existence since the mid-Sixties

Ethics and the Librarian

Ethics and the librarian is the theme of the Allerton Conference organized by the Graduate School of Library and Information Science, University of Illinois, to be held October 29-31, 1989, in Urbana, Illinois.

The topic is timely because the increasing complexity of the world is putting new pressures on the librarian, as it is on others. For example, the FBI's Library Awareness Program raises a possible conflict between one's professional responsibilities and one's responsibilities as a citizen of the United States; the fact that automated systems can gather comprehensive data on use of library materials creates a possible conflict between individual privacy and the need for better management information, and the rapid growth of minority groups in various areas raises issues of how much of the library's budget should be allocated to the support of minority interests.

Such broad issues will be addressed at this conference along with related specific issues, including ethical considerations in reference service, in the relationship between library and vendors, and on personnel management. The role of the library schools in inculcating ethical values, and the role of the professional associations, will also be addressed.

For further details write or call the School at 217-333-3280.

and that the FBI prefers to approach library clerks rather than librarians, because clerks are easier to intimidate.

At the Downs Intellectual Freedom Award reception in Washington, D.C. during the ALA Midwinter Conference, in January 1989, Ms. Kaufman, now the Dean of Libraries at the University of Tennessee, was recognized as the 1988 Downs Intellectual Freedom Award recipient. Although she could not be on hand to acknowledge the award personally, alumni, faculty and staff paid tribute to Kaufman's invaluable efforts on behalf of intellectual freedom.

The Robert B. Downs Intellectual Freedom Award, established in 1968 to honor Downs, Dean Emeritus of Library Administration at the University of Illinois, recognizes individuals or groups for their efforts to oppose censorship or to further intellectual freedom in libraries and information centers. Dean Downs was active throughout his career in defending intellectual freedom in libraries and is co-author of First Freedom Today: Critical Issues Relating to Censorship and to Intellectual Freedom. Greenwood Press of Westport, CT, supports the award by providing a $500 honorarium to the recipient and by helping fund the annual award reception given at the ALA Midwinter Meeting.

William Aguilar (PhD '84) took over in January as library director, California State University, San Bernardino.

Yun Xia (CAS '89) begins a position as systems analyst for East Stroudsburg University Library, East Stroudsburg, PA, in March.

Brent Allison (MS '84) was elected Chair of the Map and Geography Round Table of ALA, 1989-90. Previously a librarian in the Map Division of The New York Public Library, he is now head of the Map Library at the University of Minnesota.

Lucy Ann Barron (MS '87) is a Serial Cataloger at Harvard University's Widener Library and is taking classes at Harvard Extension School with hopes of getting a second Master's in English Literature.

Kathleen V. Joyce (MS '87) is a children's librarian with Indianapolis—Marion County Public Library.

Daniel Jon Keefe (MS '87), working with the University of Maryland at Baltimore's Health Science Library, is "on loan" for a year to the National Library of Medicine to work on an information retrieval experiment.

Harriett Steuernagel Library Dedicated

In September 1988, the Washington University School of Dental Medicine in St. Louis dedicated The Harriett L. Steuernagel Library. Mrs. Steuernagel is Librarian Emeritus of the School. She received her Library Science degree at the U of I in 1937. Since joining the staff of the Dental School in 1946, she has held many committee appointments and offices in the Special Libraries Association, Medical Library Association, and the American Association of Dental Schools. After retiring in 1981, she developed and directs the School's career counseling program as a full-time volunteer.

Choldin Appointed

Marianna Tax Choldin, head of the UI Slavic and East European Library and director of the Russian and East European Center, was appointed the first C. Walter and Gerda B. Mortenson Distinguished Professor for International Library Programs by the University's Board of Trustees.

The goals of the professorship, according to Choldin, are to:

- create international cooperative efforts among libraries.

- further international exchanges of library material.

- extend the UI library faculty's involvement in international programs.

- promote scholarly research and teaching.

Choldin is working to establish visiting appointments at the library for librarians from other countries and graduate assistantships for foreign students to the GSLIS.

Alumni Care about the Program

The school is completing a self-study which is part of the process of maintaining ALA accreditation. As an attachment to the study, and to aid the new Assistant to the Dean for Research and Development, a short phone survey was conducted in February asking 40 alumni about their impressions of the program and what activities might draw them back to campus. The following sampling is shared in response to the request of an individual interviewee who desired to know the results:

- 80% of the respondents felt that the UI GSLIS education adequately prepared them for their first professional position. Several indicated that they had never gone on to a library position.

- 78% named subject area(s) which they wanted to know more about after graduation; topics included budget, management, automation, personnel management and grants.

- 65% of respondents did specialize to work in a particular type of library.

- 78% of respondents are aware of the school's Placement Service; 60% have not used the service since graduation.

- When asked if they would consider returning to the Urbana-Champaign campus, 58% responded positively toward a continuing education event sponsored by the school or for an alumni reunion of their class. 68% replied that they would not return for a sporting event!

Respondents were scattered from Connecticut to California, Virginia to Wisconsin with graduation dates from 1946 to 1987.

Phoneathon, Fund-Raising and Friend-Raising!

The Graduate School of Library and Information Science wishes to publically acknowledge our gratitude to the contributors who have responded to the envelope enclosed in the last issue of the newsletter and those who donated after a telephone call in October.

Your gifts are invaluable to sustaining the excellent program of study at the University of Illinois. The support, if undesignated, is used to aid in student scholarships and assistantships, faculty research and travel, and curriculum development. Because your support is critical to the school's on-going program, another envelope is attached to this newsletter. We feel it is important to provide another opportunity for those who we were unable to contact during the Phoneathon to consider the needs of the School. Please plan to participate once a year in a contribution.

The Graduate School of Library and Information Science is only partially supported by the State General Revenue Fund. In the last two years, Illinois has been in 46th place for increased appropriations for higher education. For the last decade, Illinois has ranked 49th among the 50 states for increases in spending for its college and university students.

Tapas: A Nuevo Tradition for Illinois

The annual reunion of the Graduate School of Library and Information Science and the Library School Association will feature architecture by I.M. Pei, sculpture by Henry Moore, and tapas on Sunday, June 25, 1989 in Dallas, Texas. The reunion will be held at the Dallas City Hall from 7 to 9 pm.

Tapas are traditional Spanish appetizers; a literal translation might be "small foods." Menu will include mesquite grilled shrimp, mini lamb brochettes, crab cakes and margaritas! Tapas were chosen to allow guests to mingle and eat at the same time.

The Dallas City Hall, 1500 Marilla, is located across from the Dallas Convention Center. The view from the Flag Room on the fifth floor is "spectacular." Please plan to join Illinois friends, alumni and faculty for leisurely conversation and a "movable" feast.

Tickets will be required and are on sale now for $25 each from the Graduate School of Library and Information Science Office. Price includes beverages. Write and request tickets now, reserving Sunday night during ALA conference for good company and good conversation at the Dallas City Hall.

What Do Faculty Do In Their Spare Time?*

F. W. Lancaster

Professor Lancaster published a new book in August 1988, If You Want to Evaluate Your Library . . ., which is distributed by the Publications Office of the School. In October he visited Atlanta to receive the Award of Merit of the American Society for Information Science, the highest award offered by the Society. His main research interests continue to lie in two broad areas: the evaluation of information services and bibliometrics. He is working with the staff of the Milner Library, Illinois State University, on an evaluation of their reference services and is performing a study of the sources cited by East European scientists.

Working with Tschera Connell and Cal Elliker, two GSLIS doctoral students, he recently completed a draft of a chapter on Subject Analysis to appear in the 1989 Annual Review of Information Science and Technology. He is now working on a textbook on indexing and abstracting.

* This column will feature a different faculty member in subsequent newsletters

The Alumni Directory is in the Mail!

Copies of The Alumni Directory for the University of Illinois Graduate School of Library and Information Science were distributed in March to all alumni for whom the School has current address information. A limited number of copies are on hand; if you are a graduate of the '11 program but not presently on our mailing list, please contact the GSLIS office, 410 David Kinley Hall.

If the information about you is incorrect or if you know a current address for any of the alumni listed in the back for whom we do not have up-to-date information, please let us know.

The directory was printed using the online alumni database developed by Kent Yates, Yun Xia, and Kathy Russavage.

By the time you read this, the School will have completed writing its self-study for the ALA accrediting team—a process that allowed us to examine the strengths and weaknesses of the program and its responsiveness to students and the profession. On behalf of the faculty and staff who prepared the report, I want to thank those alumni who provided a thoughtful critique of our work. The site visitors will be in Urbana-Champaign on September 17-21, 1989. An open meeting for alums and employers will be scheduled during that time. Please let us know if you would like to be included in that session.

Participants explored the special problems relating to the format of each nonbook collection in archives, libraries, and museums. There were 130 participants at the Thirtieth Allerton Institute held in Champaign, November 6-9, 1988. The conference speakers addressed the care and preservation of a wide range of nonbook materials including sound recordings, black-and-white and color photographs, film and video, art on paper, textiles, computer-based and computer-generated records.

Lambertus van Zelst, Director of the Conservation Analytical Laboratory at the Smithsonian Institution, issued the keynote address; he examined the problems facing preservationists and conservationists of nonbook materials and identified solutions being tried at the Smithsonian. A primary concern is the lack of professional awareness of the problems and the lack of trained conservation scientists. The Smithsonian has offered many training programs, such as internships, special courses, conservation science training, post-doctoral fellowships and a furniture conservation training program.

Other presenters included Dennis Inch, Light Impressions; Gerald D. Gibson, Library of Congress; Gordon B. Neavill, University of Alabama Graduate School of Library Service; Susan Dalton, National Center for Film and Video Preservation at The American Film Institute; Susan Garretson Swartzburg, Rutgers University Library; Klaus B. Hendriks, Picture Conservation Division of the National Archives of Canada; Henry Wilhelm, Preservation Publishing Company; Mary Wood Lee, Graphic Conservation; Sara Wolf Green, The Textile Museum; Mary Lynn Ritzenhahler, National Archives and Records Administration; Mary Lynette Larsgaard, Arthur Lakes Library, Colorado School of Mines; Carla J. Montori, University of Michigan Library. The conference was organized by Kathryn Luther Henderson, University of Illinois Graduate School of Library and Information Science Professor and William T. Henderson, Preservation Librarian, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

Message from Dean Estabrook

Dear Friends:

We talk most often in these pages about professional accomplishments of GSLIS faculty, students and alumni. For those of us in David Kinley Hall one reason it is easy to be so productive is the frequency with which we have the chance to be frivolous together.

Those of you who call GSLIS about conferences, about placement information, about admissions for friends or family or other matters have a chance to work with the first-class office staff—Annetta Holt, Sally Eakin, Kathy Painter, Kathy Russavage, and Cheryl Thompson. Their contributions far exceed their competent support of the academic programs. They also help make the School a pleasant place to work. On Illini game days you will find them [and segments of the office] bedecked in orange and blue. In December, they organize our Christmas potluck. Birthdays and other occasions are also remembered with home-made cakes or thoughtful cards.

Curt McKay, assistant to the dean for recruitment and admissions, and Professor Deb Johnson recently initiated an event to chase away the winter. At the first "annual" pancake breakfast faculty served students. Professor Emeritus Herbert Goldhor, recalling Saturday mornings with his children, kept to the task from 7:30 until all were fed at 10:00 a.m.

Our students also leave their academic work with a variety of activities. Groups have started weekly dinners preceding evening classes—an open invitation is extended to all who wish to join in. Those of you who remember the Friday gatherings at Coslow's will be pleased to know they still continue. The ALA, SLA and ASIS student chapters have had an active series of speakers, visits to conferences, and other field trips. The crew who traveled from Champaign to ALA midwinter in D.C. have some hairy stories about back-seat driving; but the students arrived intact and were a wonderful addition to the alumni reception. The GSLIS "marching band and chowder society" includes two fiddlers, a bass player, and a guitar player.

Finally, alumni receptions at conferences and other events such as the distinguished speakers presentation, have enhanced the sense of GSLIS community, reestablished friendships and built professional connections. All of these remind us that we are engaged in work that is not only important, but also joyous.

Leigh S. Estabrook

Congratulations!

Karen Hewitt, previously Assistant to the Dean for Publications, has accepted a new position with the University of Illinois Press. Introducing Tomorrow's Faculty and Researchers—Ph.D. Students at GSLIS

The Dean and faculty at GSLIS are proud of the students who are working on a doctor of philosophy. The students bring diverse and distinct research interests to the program at a time when there is an urgent need for faculty and researchers in the field.

The Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) program is research oriented and designed to prepare scholars in library and information science. The program consists of general preparation in research methods and four general areas: communications, bibliographic activities, social activities, and management. Subsequent specialization enables the student to explore one particular area and to develop a research focus leading to the writing of a dissertation.

As a representative example of the students, may we introduce the following individuals who started their studies here in August, 1989:

Rosie Albritton, since September 1985, has been Assistant to the Director of Libraries (for Library Research, Grants & Planning), University of Missouri. Her interests include the evaluation of library services. Her recent publications include two in the area of leadership development and one on computer anxiety in libraries.

Maria Floren is here under the auspices of the Fulbright Commission. She is from the Dominican Republic. She is interested in information transfer, management and evaluation of information systems, and management of libraries and information centers. In the period 1979-1983 she was General Director of the Archives of the Dominican Republic. In the period since then she has been the librarian in charge of the health science collection, Library of the Universidad Central del Este, Dominican Republic.

Younen Guo comes from Beijing University where he has been an Assistant Professor since 1986, teaching information science courses. His special interest lies in artificial intelligence in information retrieval.

Eun-Gyoung Han is moving on from our CAS program into the doctoral program. Her interests lie in library automation and information retrieval and she hopes to teach in a library school when she returns to Korea. At present she is working as a graduate assistant in the library of the Hazardous Waste Research and Information Center.

Edgar Jones's primary interest is bibliographic control, especially aspects relating to international standardization. Since 1981 he has been head of the CONSER office in Harvard University Libraries.

Dianne Rothenberg received her MS here in 1978. From 1978 to 1988 she was associated with the ERIC Clearinghouse on Elementary and Early Childhood Education, most recently as Associate Director. Since May 1988 she has been Associate Director of the National Early Childhood Technical Assistance System.

Carroll Varner is at present Associate University Librarian, Milner Library, Illinois State University. He was previously Assistant Director for Technical Services at Northern Illinois University. His interests include resource sharing and the interrelationships between academic libraries and scholars.

Changing of the Guard...

Dr. Larry Auld is now the Chairman of the Department of Library and Information Studies at East Carolina University in Greenville, North Carolina. After 16 years in Champaign-Urbana, Larry and his family relocated to Greenville in July.

As Chairman of the library program at East Carolina University, Auld will continue work toward accreditation by the American Library Association. He estimates the process to be at least 90% complete. While enthusiastically describing the program which specializes in three areas, public, school and the community college librarianship, Larry expressed confidence that the accreditation process will be complete within the next year to eighteen months.

The Department of Library and Information Studies in Greenville serves approximately 75 students, a majority part-time, with 8 faculty members. The department occupies space on the second floor of the library, with a separate entrance.

The community college librarianship specialization at East Carolina University is unique. Larry knows of no other program with this emphasis. As the program breaks new ground in the area of specialization, Larry believes it can serve as a leader for other library schools in establishing targeted, specialized library education programs. The challenge proved irresistible. Auld is scheduled to teach a Seminar on Community College Librarianship in the fall term.

Moving to Greenville required Larry and Rhoda to leave behind dear friends and acquaintances in Illinois. Greenville is similar to Champaign-Urbana in terrain; the area is a flat, coastal plain. The Aulds leave behind an extensive garden in Illinois, but Larry is already planning a new trail through the woods of his backyard. The environment will require a different kind of gardening, but Larry already envisions North Carolina as the family's new and welcome "home." Photography and bird-watching, favorite but sometimes neglected entertainments, will thrive in the new locale!

During his time at the University of Illinois, Larry's responsibilities evolved from doctoral student (1973) to teaching assistant, from Assistant to the Director to Assistant Dean, and Assistant Professor.

Auld estimates that he had contact with more than 2,000 GSLIS students in the last 16 years at the University of Illinois. Alumni may especially remember him for his work on admissions, financial aid, student affairs. He cites the doctoral seminar (LIS 473) on education for librarianships as a favorite GSLIS course to teach.

Auld received his Master of Science degree from Columbia University, School of Library Service, in 1958. He completed his dissertation, "The Effect on Public Library Circulation of Advertising Via Cable Television," at the University of Illinois in 1978. He proudly asserts that at the end of the PhD program "he didn't owe anyone a penny and his family was still intact!"

Larry Auld

Research interests include three dimensional spreadsheets. Larry is working on a new edition of his book, Electronic Spreadsheets for Librarians, (Oryx Press, 1986).

Please note Larry's new address: East Carolina University, Department of Library and Information Studies, P.O. Box 2547, Greenville, North Carolina 27858-1353.

The entire faculty, staff, student body and alumni of the Graduate School of Library and Information Science wish Larry and Rhoda every success and happiness in North Carolina.

Third Annual GSLIS Phonathon Scheduled

The students and alumni of the Graduate School of Library and Information Science will be calling GSLIS alumni during October to answer your questions about the school and to secure your pledge to support the program. The School relies on the on-going support of its graduates to enable the school to continue to maintain its leadership position in the library and information science community. Callers will be asking alumni to support the School's Annual Fund. Your support provides aid for student chapter activity, faculty research and travel, and curriculum development. Several graduate assistantships are also funded through the Annual Fund and the generosity of alumni.

We hope you will look forward to the call and take time to bring the student up-to-date on your professional activities, including professional library organizations to which you belong, and your concerns for the school. Our students enjoy the opportunity to meet by phone prospective employers and professional colleagues.

If you prefer to respond before a phone call, watch for a letter which is coming from Pat Stenstrom, President of the Library School Association; it will include pledge information.

Please plan to participate once a year in a contribution.

Your gifts do make a difference!

Dr. Herbert Goldhor presents Larry and Rhoda Auld with a going away gift from the GSLIS.

Artificial Intelligence and Expert Systems Theme for 1990 Data Processing Clinic

"Artificial Intelligence and Expert Systems: Will They Change the Library?" is the theme of a conference to be held by the Graduate School of Library and Information Science, March 25-27, 1990. The 27th Annual Clinic on Library Applications of Data Processing, which will be held at the University Inn, Champaign, Illinois, is designed to give a balanced picture of present and potential capabilities of artificial intelligence expert systems in a wide range of library applications, including factual reference service, database searching, descriptive cataloging, document delivery, and subject cataloging indexing.

For a conference brochure, contact Annetta Holt, Graduate School of Library and Information Science, University of Illinois, 410 David Kinley Hall, 1407 W. Gregory Drive, Urbana, Illinois 61801; 217-333-3280.

Upcoming Alumni Receptions Planned

Alumni receptions are planned for ASIS and ALA Midwinter Conferences. On October 31, 1989, GSLIS will join with other library schools in hosting a joint reception in the Omni Shoreham Hotel in Washington, D.C. during the ASIS conference.

During ALA Midwinter, The Downs Intellectual Freedom Award reception will be held from 5 to 7 p.m. on Saturday, January 6, 1990 in Chicago. The location will be announced in the ALA Conference Program.

Allerton 1990 Theme Set—Reference Evaluation

The theme of the 1990 Allerton Institute will be "Evaluation of Public Services and Public Services Personnel." Plans are already under way, and invited speakers include Charles Bunge, Tom Childers, Wilf Lancaster, James Rettig, Prudence Dalrymple, and Rick Rubin. All librarians, especially reference librarians and administrators who are interested in the difficult problems of evaluating public services and public services personnel should reserve October 28-30, 1990, for this important conference.

The 1990 Conference will be held at Allerton House, Monticello, Illinois.

Announcements

F.W. Lancaster has been selected as a Senior University Scholar at the University of Illinois. This prestigious award is being given to only six scholars at the Urbana campus in recognition of outstanding scholarship, teaching and service to the university.

Selma K. Richardson, GSLIS faculty member since August 1974, has been appointed Full Professor by the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

In April, 1989, Lynne Curry assumed fiscal, managerial and marketing responsibilities for the Publications Office of the Graduate School of Library and Information Science. Lynne previously had served as Assistant to the Director for International Programs and Studies. Lynne has been a part of the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign campus for five years and brings specific knowledge of university accounting practices to her new position.

In May, 1989, Curt McKay, Assistant to the Dean for Recruitment and Admissions, added placement responsibilities to his job description. Placement files and services have been integrated into 410 David Kinley Hall, the School's administrative offices. Shari Grindley works with Curt on the Placement Bulletin.

In January, 1989, Debra Park became Assistant to the Dean for Research and Development. Her responsibilities include alumni relations, grant-writing, fundraising and planning special events.

Assistant professor Prudence Dalrymple has been selected as one of six 1989-90 Lilly Fellows at UIUC. Because of a generous grant from the Lilly Endowment to the University of Illinois, selected faculty will be able to devote a portion of their time to activities related to instructional and course development and/or to research on teaching. Selection was based on excellence in teaching scholarship, feasibility of the applicant's proposal, plans to design or redesign a course and commitment to the teacher scholar role model in the applicant's career development.

LITA/CLSI Scholarship in Library and Information Technology has been awarded by the Library and Information Technology Association to Glenn Hoetker for 1989-90, for work toward an MLS degree in an ALA-accredited program with emphasis on library automation. Donor: C. L. Systems, Inc., $1500.

Library School Association News

Mary Hollerich '88 is the new Secretary-Treasurer of the Library School Association. Officers were chosen at the Association's annual business meeting at the American Library Association's Annual Conference in Dallas on June 25. Mary, who also has a BA in German from Illinois, is currently a Bibliographer of Interlibrary Loan Services in the U of I's Illinois Research and Reference Center. Mary enjoys the frenetic pace of interlibrary loan, and works off some of the tension of the job in aerobics classes. In her spare time she enjoys music and movies.

Other 1989-'90 officers of the Library School Association include Pat Stenstrom '57, President; Jeanette Holmberg '83 1st V.P.; Joe Sciacca '78 2nd V.P.; Sylvia Justice '82, Steve Kochoff '73 and Claudia Wheeler '84 are Directors. Pat Stenstrom and Claudia Wheeler, like Mary Hollerich, are members of the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign Library staff. Stenstrom, who is the Library and Information science Librarian, will begin a sabbatical on September 21. Wheeler, who is finishing her first year as an Assistant Undergraduate Librarian, oversees the library's circulation unit and is also involved in bibliographic instruction and reference work. She particularly enjoys starting the Graduate Assistants that she supervises on their professional careers.

The rest of the officers are pursuing widely divergent careers. Sylvia Justice, immediate past president of LSA, is Assistant Corporate Librarian of State Farm Insurance Companies in Bloomington, Ill. She is an active member of the Special Libraries Association, belonging to the Employees Benefits and Business and Finance Divisions of that organization. Jeanette Holmberg is a reference librarian at Lincoln Library, the public library in Springfield, Ill. She has served on the Intellectual Freedom Committee of the Illinois Library Association and is also interested in "library instruction and adult basic education." Steve Kochoff is Director of Marketing and Sales of Turner Subscriptions, a Faxon Company in New York City. He is currently President of the Library Public Relations Council, edits or writes a column for The Bottom Line, and spends his free time at the Metropolitan Opera. Joe Sciacca is a Library Development Consultant at Lincoln Trail Library System. Sciacca, who was a Peace Corp volunteer in Thailand, has a major professional interest in the provision of library service to the unserved.

What Do Faculty Do In Their Spare Time?*

Linda C. Smith

Professor Smith spent the first five months of 1989 on leave in Sweden as gästforskare (guest researcher) and acting director of the Library & Information Science Research Laboratory (LIBLAB), Department of Computer & Information Science, Linköping University. The focus of LIBLAB's current research is design of a HYPER-CATalog, an extended and enhanced library catalog using hypertext. Aided by Paul Kahn of Brown University who joined the lab for three months, projects included an evaluation of Brown's Intermedia system as a basis for the HYPER-CATalog and a comparison of Intermedia with several other systems currently available to support hypertext hypermedia (Guide, HyperCard, HyperTIES, KMS, NoteCards). Her other LIBLAB activities included thesis supervision, editing, translating (from Swedish to English), proposal preparation and exploration of funding possibilities, conference planning, and presenting seminars. She spent one week in Vienna in May attending the 17th Consultative Meeting of the International Nuclear Information System (INIS) Liaison Officers as an outside consultant, reviewing current developments in expert systems of possible relevance to INIS. Throughout she used electronic mail to stay in touch with colleagues and students at Illinois as well as others in the U.S. and Canada.

Martin Siegel, Assistant Director of the Computer-Based Education Research Laboratory and Associate Professor at the Graduate School of Library and Information Science.

Computer Spares Feelings Teaching Adults to Read

A special computer program developed at the UI helps solve perhaps the biggest problem in teaching illiterate adults to read: their embarrassment.

Those using the UI's program may do so privately, and with minimal participation by an instructor, easing any embarrassment the non-reader might feel, said Martin Siegel, assistant director of the University's Computer-based Education Research Laboratory. The laboratory recently received a five-year grant from the state of Illinois to combat illiteracy throughout the state.

"The student feels an intimate relationship with the machine," Siegel said. "If he or she makes a mistake, nobody knows except the computer. That saves face, and eliminates the embarrassment students may remember from classroom situations."

The program helps students find their own level, from third through sixth grade, and then helps build skills until they can read at a high school level.

The special computer-based instruction will be available in Illinois libraries, high schools, community colleges, dropout retrieval centers and correctional institutions.

The first two sites participating in the effort this summer were Project READ (Reading Education for Adult Development) in Decatur and the Decatur Public Library.

Computer-based learning, first developed at the UI with the invention of PLATO in 1960, allows students to learn at their own pace and repeat lessons and problems as necessary. The development of NovaNET, the laboratory's education network that uses satellite communications technology, expands the use of the literacy instruction materials, Siegel said.

Even if program participants are not familiar with computers, they adjust with only a brief orientation period, Siegel said. Many who have tested the program in the UI's research laboratory have recommended it to friends in a similar situation.

"They're manipulating a small piece of their environment; they're controlling something," Siegel said.

The Doctor of Philosophy program at the Graduate School of Library and Information Science is well-established and well-respected. In Herb White's 1987 study "Perceptions by Educators and Administrators of the Ranking of Library School Programs: an Update and Analysis," in Library Quarterly, July 1987, the School ranked first among schools providing the highest quality education for librarianship at the doctoral level. The School also ranked first in providing master's level education and having faculty who contribute significantly to the advancement of the profession through research, publication, and leadership.

Many of these people "don't have much of an opportunity to control anything in their lives," he said. "Here, they're working on a machine; they're moving forward. They're feeling good about their learning."

Library Research Center—Expanding, Growing, Changing

Since 1961 the Library Research Center (LRC) has operated as a self-supporting unit within the Graduate School of Library and Information Science. Its primary purpose has been to conduct studies in the field of library and information science for libraries, librarians, and related organizations throughout the United States.

Recently, LRC staff have renewed their commitment to the Center's three roles of research, service and teaching. These roles are carried out through a variety of activities that include:

- advising on the design of studies and evaluations
- designing and executing telephone and mail questionnaires
- planning and evaluating library services
- presenting workshops on statistics, research, planning and grantsmanship
- connecting a client with the resource people needed for a project
- participating in grant proposals that include the services of the LRC
- entering data
- analyzing data
- interpreting data
- preparing graphics to support research and consulting reports
- writing reports

—sponsoring a colloquium series that features researchers from the field of library and information science —conducting tutorials for graduate students on the use of statistical software

LRC staff feel that producing quality products and helping clients get the best possible results from their research studies is a positive and needed contribution that we can make to the field of library and information science.

During the past few years, the LRC has been working with clients such as the Illinois State Library, the American Library Association, and the Medical Library Association. Additionally, the LRC conducted 61 community surveys for public libraries in Illinois. These surveys were required for all public libraries seeking per capita grant funding from the Illinois State Library. Surveys were done for communities ranging in size from 1,000 to 100,000 and consisted of both mail and telephone interviews. These surveys provided valuable information on interests of users, reasons for nonuse, and level of satisfaction with the public library's performance. An article detailing the findings of these community surveys is forthcoming.

Another area of emphasis, promoted by the Illinois State Library, has been the production of color charts and graphics for over 600 public libraries in Illinois. Data for these charts were drawn from the Illinois Public Library Annual Report forms and include comparisons of operating expenditures, income, and circulation expenditures across six years of data. These charts are useful during board meetings, presentations to community groups, and for internal planning purposes. This service which is provided is unique to the state of Illinois; staff at the LRC are pleased to have been able to initiate this service and hope to promote its use to other interested agencies and individuals.

Future plans for the LRC include the National Shelflist Project, a survey for the Illinois School Library Media Association, and statistical services for the Illinois State Library. Poster sessions at ALA and ILA will be used to publicize the services that we offer. We look forward to meeting alumni of GSLIS and hope that you will contact us if our services meet your needs.

Luce Scholars Program Applications Available

Exceptional alumni are encouraged to apply to the Luce Scholars Program, a one-year paid professional apprenticeship in Asia, offered annually by the Henry R. Luce Foundation, New York. The program is open to recent graduates from all fields and is designed to provide participants with both a broader professional perspective and a sharper perception of Asia, of America, and of themselves.

Applicants must be American citizens, under 30 years of age, with no previous experience in Asia. The ideal candidate has both outstanding academic and professional credentials, as well as a commitment to and demonstrated leadership in his/her field. Applicants need not presently be on campus. Language proficiency is not necessary. The final application deadline is November 2, 1989.

Interested individuals should contact Ms. Isabel Wong, Director, East Asian Exchange Programs, 307 Coble Hall, 801 S. Wright Street, Champaign, Illinois, 61820. (217)333-1990.

Beta Phi Mu Elects New Officers, Initiates Members

The Alpha Chapter of Beta Phi Mu initiated new members from among the Graduate School of Library and Information Science at its annual meeting in October, 1988. In addition to initiating new members, the chapter presented the Anne Boyd Award to Carolyn Hesler, a May, 1988 GSLIS graduate. The Anne Boyd award is given judged to be outstanding. The award is in honor of Anne M. Boyd, a distinguished and beloved member of the faculty of the Graduate School of Library and Information Science.

New officers were elected for 1988-89. They are:

President:	Susan Bekiares
Vice-President:
President Elect:	Priscilla Smiley
Treasurer:	Monica Downey
Secretary:	Debra Johnson
Past President:	Linda Bial
Faculty Representative:	Debra Johnson
Representative to National Assembly:	Diane Caruthers

At the vote of the board, an unrestricted gift of $500 was given to the University of Illinois Library and Information Science Library. The gift was accepted on behalf of the Library by Pat Stenstrom, LIS librarian. The funds are being used to purchase special items for the collection.

Those attending the annual meeting were skillfully entertained and educated by Elizabeth Klein, author of the novel Reconciliations. Ms. Klein described her personal journey in writing Reconciliations and her current work. She read from her work in progress that draws from the Jewish experience in Germany and the United States. As an expressive and effective reader, Ms. Klein entranced the audience with her story.

Selected Excerpts from May 21, 1989 Commencement Address

I feel, of course, greatly honored to receive this award, and I thank the Library School Association for choosing me for it. I am especially pleased to be recognized by the institution that gave me such a good start in 1960 on what continues to be a very satisfying career and then gave that career a boost and new direction in 1967....

...The faculty of this school has always been of a quality that did not need the guidance of clever or faddish course titles to impart their wisdom or enhance the learning of their students. That was true when students learned from the legendary Miss Bond, Miss Boyd, Miss Hostetter, and Miss Phelps; it was true in my master's days, when I learned from people like Frances Jenkins, Rolland Stevens, and Harold Goldstein; and I'm sure it has been true for you....

Another part of my preparation for today's remarks was browsing through a volume of reminiscences compile on the occasion of the 75th anniversary of this School in 1968....As you may know, the beginnings of the School were quite auspicious, having been founded by Katherine Sharp, a graduate of Dewey's library school in New York. The story is that the President of Armour Institute in Chicago, where this school began, told Dewey that he wanted the best man in America to start a library school for him. Dewey is said to have replied, "The best man in America is a woman...." and, as they say, the rest is history....

Also in that volume of reminiscences is an article by Elizabeth Windsor, the daughter of Sharp's great successor, Phineas Windsor. In that article, she provides the outline for Windsor's talk to the 1939 Library School graduates. The outline contained three pieces of advice: Early on in your career develop a professional interest to which you can make a strong personal commitment; early on, join and work in a professional association; and keep up your library school contacts, because they will be the beginnings of important contacts throughout the profession.

...Let me share my own twist on Windsor's outline.

First, having a professional interest to which I could make a real personal commitment has been very important for me, and it is part of my hope for you. It doesn't have to be an aspect of the profession that is central to your daily work; some would say that it better that it not be. But it should be something about which you can keep learning, can deepen your appreciation, and can make a source of pleasure and pride—if only on an intermittent basis. Some people collect books representing an aspect of the field; some try to be especially knowledgeable and skilled in a specific area of practice....

Second, Windsor's advice about professional associations and contacts. My twist on that advice is to urge you to keep learning from others. There are many reasons for this, one of which is that learning from others, including our clients, requires a kind of humility that is becoming to a professional. Also, a good way to enhance your self-confidence is to know that you are as knowledgeable and skilled as you can be, and constant learning contributes to that knowledge. For me, an important aspect of such learning from others is to choose as role models persons that I think are especially skilled and who always strive for excellence. As I observe those I admire, I try to pass from envy to emulation and from competition to cooperation and dialogue.

The other side of this coin is the importance of sharing our knowledge and insights with others. Nothing refreshes our mind and sharpens our perceptions better than teaching or writing about something we know or can do well....

Now, let me add a couple of my own pieces of advice that were not in Windsor's 1939 outline. The first of these might seem curious, following urging to share your knowledge and skills with others, but it is that you learn to say "No." Ours is a profession that is rife with committees, task forces, working groups, and more work to be done than there are people to do it. In order to accomplish anything with excellence, it is crucial that we focus our energies and resist being stretched so thinly as to lose our effectiveness....

And finally, have fun. Try to make the practice of your profession a source of joy. In a profession so diverse as ours, with so many different kinds of tasks to be done and so many different kinds of people to do them, there is no need for people to be mismatched with their jobs and unhappy in them. Donald Schön, in his provocative book, The Reflective Practitioner, says that part of the professional's constant reflection on his or her practice should be to ask, "What, in my work gives me real satisfaction?" and then to ask, "How can I produce more experiences of that kind?" I encourage you to include these questions in your own continual dialogue with yourself about your practice of your profession and to have the courage to act on the answers to them. Beyond that, cultivate your sense of humor and your ability to have fun....

.... My wish for you then is that, whatever you choose to do with this degree, it be as satisfying as my own career has been and that it be based on continued learning and reflection: that you share your ideas, feelings, and skills with others; that you maintain a focus and integrity in your work, saying "yes" with commitment and "no" when you have to; and that you reach out for joy and fun. As one of the books that I recommend in my stress management workshops says, "those who laugh last...."

Library NEH Challenge Grant

During the past year the Library at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign has received seven major endowed funds and estate gifts which qualify for the National Endowment for the Humanities Challenge Grant. These endowments ensure continuing support for the Library's humanities collections. Through the three to one matching provision of the Challenge Grant, an additional one-third of the private gift total will be received from the Federal government.

In addition to the major endowments and bequests received, hundreds of donors have contributed to the Challenge Grant through the Library's telefund and annual funds efforts. The Library has now raised $1,500,000, half the required $3,000,000. Because of the demonstrated support, staff feel confident that the goal will be met by July 31, 1991.

Centennial!

What would you plan for a 100th birthday party? Help us prepare to give the greatest party ever to celebrate the School's 100th year! The program will actually turn 100 on September 13, 1993, but we plan to celebrate throughout the 1992-93 school year.

Join down YOUR suggestions for what kinds of events you would like to see take place, either on campus or in your area. Share your inspirations—pretend you were planning a party without any restrictions. Just for the fun of it, think wild and creative thoughts about an extra-ordinary GSLS celebration!

Take a moment to propose what would make this occasion special and memorable for you. (Of course, we also welcome your ideas on any other School matter.) Forward your thoughts to: Debra Park, Graduate School of Library and Information Science, 410 David Kinley Hall, 1407 W. Gregory Drive, Urbana, IL 61801.

Here's my idea: _____

Yes, I'd like to be involved in planning Centennial events.

Dear Friends:

In asking some alums what they would like me to write about, I was told by each that they wanted to know more about our students. In past issues of this newsletter, we have given a profile of the current student body [e.g., average age, fields of study]. The cover story provides a profile of our incoming doctoral students. In this letter I want to give a flavor of the types of people we are attracting to the M.S. program.

A student who, prior to coming to GSLIS, spent several years cataloging legal documents after work in professional rodeos, education, welding and repair, medicine and art, wrote in her application essay:

I enjoy the nature of specific library tasks; in a broader context is the pleasure I feel from being able to have daily involvement with materials that chronological and comment upon the human presence. The collection and dissemination of information is worthy work and vital to a progressive society.

Another individual, one of the officers of the ALA student chapter was a recipient of a Thomas J. Watson Fellowship with which he studied the effects of automation on libraries in Australia, Singapore, Hong Kong and Japan prior to enrolling in our program. He also has a National Science Foundation Fellowship to study Japanese concurrent with his GSLIS studies. In his essay he noted:

I envision several possibilities for my career. I might work for one of the several joint U.S.-Asian country corporations active in the information industry. Several countries in the region have large scale international information gathering projects underway in which I might become involved. I can also foresee the possibility of furthering my strong background in mathematics and applying it to librarianship in a technical environment.

A woman who is helping establish an informal group for women in the program has a background in publishing. She majored in English and minored in mathematics at UIUC where she was Phi Beta Kappa. In her essay she states, "I would hope to inform people of all the opportunities that a library has to offer: reading for pleasure as an exciting and integral part of a child's life, a source for the answers to the most difficult questions, and a link to literacy programs.

A former research analyst intern for the Michigan Legislative Service Bureau has been working with me on a study of technology and the library labor force. In his essay he stated:

In my undergraduate curriculum, I tried to develop a broad base of knowledge in a discipline which is often predicated on specialization [Environmental Science]. This required a crossing of departmental lines in most cases to pick rigorous courses from several areas...[At GSLIS] I intend to develop a program which emphasizes the use of computer services as applied to scientific data, not only as an organizational tool but as a means to provide more open access to the public. Areas in which I hope to apply these principles professionally include centers of technology and information throughout the country such as The Library of Congress and major universities.

The School needs you to help us continue to recruit students of this caliber. If you have employees or friends who are interested in a professional career, please encourage them to contact me to find out more about the School.

Information Service Expands Under New Name and Director

For several years, the Library Research Center has housed a relatively unknown but special service: the Library Information Service (LIS). This service was a one person information bureau run by Chris Jocius ('78), who had a small but steady base of clients.

In October 1989, Chris accepted a position at the Illinois Math and Science Academy. Another GSLIS alum, Kathy Corley ('88), replaced Chris and directs the service under a new name: Information Retrieval and Management Service (IRMS). IRMS continues to serve the broad range of information needs of corporate, institutional, and individual clients.

On the basic level, IRMS provides information from articles, online databases, technical reports, and government publications.

On an intermediate level, IRMS synthesizes and analyzes topical information (e.g., manufacturing trends in Illinois and nationwide) and provides selective dissemination of information (SDI) to corporate clients without their own technical information centers.

At the advanced level, IRMS provides consultation on the structure, design, and management of information services.

The IRMS has grown rapidly. A three-month study of the new IRMS showed a growth of over 200 percent, part of which can be attributed to the availability of a wider variety of resources, including subject specialist searches.

IRMS hires professional librarians as consultants for specialized information searches. Among them is Marilyn Moody ('79), formerly at Iowa State University library and a member of the GSLIS summer session faculty in 1986 and 1988.

Another recent addition to the staff of IRMS is GSLIS alum Ann Ricker ('79). Ann has extensive reference experience on the UIUC campus and at the University of Kentucky in Lexington. She has also worked at the Beckman Institute library. As IRMS matures, other faculty, alumni, and students of the School will have opportunities to be involved.

A recent and exciting development for IRMS is the partnership between GSLIS and the Department of Mechanical and Industrial Engineering (MIE) at UIUC. In this partnership, IRMS has contracted with MIE to serve as the information arm of the Institute for Competitive Manufacturing (ICM). ICM was established by UIUC to serve small- and medium-sized manufacturing firms in the State of Illinois by promoting continuing education and facilitating technology transfer.

ICM asked GSLIS to work with them because of the School's reputation and long history, through the Library Research Center and Library Information Service, of serving a variety of clients.

Dean Leigh Estabrook is enthusiastic about this strategic alliance of industry, labor, government, and higher education.

Says Estabrook: "Instead of waiting for these industries to discover the IRMS, we in partnership with the ICM will now be able to reach out to help those organizations analyze their information needs and use information more effectively to enhance productivity."

Professor Linda Smith (MS '72) is using her expertise in science reference and online information systems to assist in developing the role of IRMS within ICM.

She remarks: "Efficient and effective access to engineering and business information is a key factor in the success of technology transfer. The information specialists at IRMS will cooperate with ICM to locate and provide the specific information needed by Illinois manufacturers."

IRMS sees its role as complementing all types of libraries. The service frequently refers clients to library sources when those sources may be the best equipped to answer a particular question. In turn, especially during this period of growth, IRMS will be looking for ways in which its staff can build effective alliances with community, institutional, and state libraries, and welcomes suggestions, comments, and feedback from librarians who serve in those settings.

Kathy Corley discusses LRC Project with Prof. Linda Smith

"We now mass-produce information the way we used to mass-produce cars."

—John Naisbitt, Megatrends

"Information is not knowledge. You can mass-produce raw data and incredible quantities of facts and figures. You cannot mass-produce knowledge, which is created by individual minds, drawing on individual experience, separating the significant from the irrelevant, making value judgments."

—Theodore Roszak, author of The Cult of Information, quoted in This World (5:21-87)

Allerton Institute Scheduled Evaluation of Public Services and Personnel

Bryce Allen, GSLIS Professor, has announced plans for the 32nd Allerton Conference entitled "Evaluation of Public Services and Public Services Personnel" to be held at Allerton Park near Monticello, October 28-30.

According to Professor Allen, conference chair: "The 1990 Allerton Institute will explore one of the most important issues facing public services today: How to evaluate library services and service providers." In the past 20 years, techniques for evaluating the quality of reference services have evolved; among them, unobtrusive testing and questionnaires administered to users, non-users, and librarians. Results obtained by these techniques have led to an acknowledgment of a "crisis" in reference work. At the same time, awareness has grown that one essential component in providing high quality public service is in employing high quality public service personnel.

James Rettig, Assistant University Librarian for Reference and Information Services, The College of William and Mary, will present the keynote address and introduce the many issues involved in evaluating the quality of public services in the 1990s. Other speakers include reference practitioners and library educators.

Cosponsored by the Reference and Adult Services Division of the American Library Association and the Graduate School of Library and Information Science of the University of Illinois, the conference will be held at Allerton Park, near Monticello, Illinois. The $350 registration fee includes registration, room, and meals (including snacks). Registration is limited.

Commencement Note

The Graduate School of Library and Information Science will hold its fourth annual commencement ceremony on May 13, 1990, at 1:30 P.M. in Smith Music Hall auditorium. A reception will follow in the East Foyer of the Main Library. All August and October '89; January, May, and August '90 graduates are invited to participate. Alumni and guests are welcome to attend. For information about ordering cap and gown, please write or call Annetta Holt (217/333-3280), 410 David Kinley Hall, 1407 W. Gregory Drive, Urbana, Illinois 61801.

Kruse Accepts Downs Intellectual Freedom Award

Editor's note: Ginny Moore Kruse, Director of Wisconsin's Cooperative Children's Book Center, made the following remarks upon accepting the 1989 Downs Intellectual Freedom Award on behalf of the Center at an alumni reception at ALA-Midwinter in Chicago. The Center was honored for the work of its Intellectual Freedom Information Service.

I am pleased to accept the 1989 Robert B. Downs Intellectual Freedom Award on behalf of the Cooperative Children's Book Center (CCBC). It is challenging to consider making an appropriate expression of gratitude to the faculty of the Graduate School of Library and Information Science of the University of Illinois and to the Greenwood Press. It's especially daunting when one thinks about the person in whose name the award is given, or of the distinguished recipients honored in previous years.

The [CCBC] ... is a children's and young adult literature library for adults. The CCBC is funded ... by the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction Division for Library Services and by the University of Wisconsin-Madison, primarily by the

Ginny Moore Kruse

UW School of Education. The CCBC offers many information and program services based upon its contemporary and retrospective children's and young adult literature collections. According to our Executive Committee and our Advisory Board, the CCBC Intellectual Freedom Information Service honored today is the priority outreach service of the CCBC. This award is theirs, for their support, and for that of their predecessors.

I particularly thank you on behalf of the CCBC professional and graduate student staff ... they represent the people who made this service the consistently reliable Wisconsin link to information about challenged books that the Downs Award honors. Without their total commitment to providing information ... there would be no Downs Award for the CCBC today.

There would be no Downs Award for the CCBC today without the initiative and steady support of our administrators ... Charles Bunge [PhD '67], the former Director of the UW-Madison School of Library and Information Studies, wrote the proposal which generated start-up funds for the service from a local foundation, the Evjue Foundation. Jane Robbins, Director of the UW-Madison School of Library and Information Studies, and John Palmer, Dean of the UW-Madison School of Education, are steady supporters of the CCBC and of our Intellectual Freedom Information Service ... There would be no Downs Award for the CCBC today without the long-term, visionary leadership of Dianne Hopkins; she understood as early as 1977 that the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction could provide companion services with the CCBC in the area of intellectual freedom. Dianne put into place the DPI network which is such an effective aspect of what the CCBC can offer to Wisconsin librarians and teachers facing censorship attempts. Believe it or not, this priority CCBC service lost its funding three and one-half years ago. There would be no such service today without the stop-gap assistance of an anonymous benefactor who believes in the CCBC and in the need to continue the service. This award is theirs. We owe them all many thanks.

I thank you, also, on behalf of the Friends of the CCBC, Inc. ... they are dynamic advocates for what the CCBC is and does ... Likewise, many organizations such as the Wisconsin Library Association, the Wisconsin Educational Media Association, and the Wisconsin State Reading Association deserve credit for their endorsement of this CCBC service.

There are others in Wisconsin who will also take pride in this award ... When librarians, teachers and administrators contact the CCBC and ask us to participate in the conduct of the book challenges they face, we are humbled by their thoroughly professional responses to all manner of attempts to limit the books to which Wisconsin youth have access. Their living out of intellectual freedom principles and their steadfast defense of First Amendment rights are beacons of encouragement and hope for us all. This award is theirs, too.

This award acknowledges that the CCBC has "been there" for ... [librarians, administrators, teachers] in the past in continuing education, inservice and preservice ways, as well as when trouble is pending. The Robert B. Downs award offers assurance to them that we may be able to be there in the future, as well!

Elizabeth (Wyant) Martin (BS '29) sends best wishes to members of the Class of '29 and would be glad to hear from any of you at 54 Churchill Avenue, Palo Alto, CA 94306.

1930s

Ethel (Donahay) Cohoe (BS '30) has just completed 28 years of volunteer classification, cataloging, and reference service in the Kennerston Library, Museum of Fine Arts, in St. Petersburg, Florida.

Gretchen Howell Colehour (BS '31) is finally having an inventory made of her books. She was too busy cataloging other libraries to think of her own!

Lillian Skeele (BS '31) is active in church work and the Worthington and Dublin Historical Societies.

James B. Still (BS '31) has had an endowment named in his honor given to the Still Fellowship at the University of Kentucky.

Library Research Colloquium Series Activities Continue

The Library Research Colloquium Series continues to bring librarians, researchers, students and faculty together for informative presentations. These seminars are a joint effort sponsored by the Library Research Center (GSLIS) and the University Library Research and Publications Committee (University of Illinois Library). Speakers are drawn from GSLIS faculty and from library and information science researchers from around the country.

During the 1989-90 academic year, the series is focusing on particular applications of different methodologies to research problems in the field of library and information science. During the fall semester, presentations included:

- "Singing the Body Eclectic: Immigrant Resources in American Libraries"—Don Krummel, Professor, GSLIS
- "The Real World of Library Research"—Mary Jo Lynch, American Library Association Office for Research
- "Archival Preservation Issues"—Paul Conway, Preservation Program Officer, Society of American Archivists

Alumni Help Sought in Recruiting

Alumni can provide a valuable service to GSLIS by actively recruiting highly qualified persons for our programs. As GSLIS attempts to maintain the quality of its student body and enlarge its numbers, we must increasingly rely on our alumni to provide a pool of bright new students.

You are our best source of students because you have experienced the program itself, and you are in daily contact with prospective students in your workplaces. You can talk authoritatively with potential students about course offerings and the quality of instruction, the superb resources of the University Library, the excellent financial aid possibilities, life in Urbana-Champaign, and other aspects of graduate study here.

As professionals already working in libraries and information centers, you have immediate direct contact with coworkers and others interested in the information profession. Approximately one-third of our students come to us from jobs in libraries; another third are recent college graduates. In both cases practicing professionals have the opportunity to provide considerable input on the choices of schools made by these potential students. Also, you can provide us with names of prospective students so that we can contact them directly.

Even though library school students tend to choose the graduate program nearest their homes, we can offer incentives to make GSLIS their choice. Our faculty continue as leaders of our widely diverse,

With the assistance of the University Library administration, an all-day workshop was also held for 20 University librarians. Conducted by Prudence Dahlymple, Assistant Professor at GSLIS, and Katy Sherlock, Project Coordinator of the Library Research Center, this workshop guided potential researchers through the formulation of individual research ideas and the processes involved in survey research methodology.

This year's presentation by John Berry will replace the Library School Association's Distinguished Speaker Series and will be cosponsored by LSA and the Library Research Colloquium Series. Plan now to attend this event on April 18, 4 P.M. to 6:30 P.M. at Levis Faculty Center, University of Illinois, Urbana, Illinois. A reception will follow the presentation.

The Colloquium series is open to the public. If you have additional questions about the Colloquium, please feel free to contact the Library Research Center (217 333-1980) or the Graduate School of Library & Information Science (217-333-3280).

We offer excellent opportunities for financial aid; over 80 percent of our MS students receive some sort of aid that includes a complete waiver of tuition and service fee. The University Library provides much of that aid in the form of graduate assistantships that allow students to acquire preprofessional experience as they pursue their studies. The Library accepts responsibility for part of the educational process as well. Bart Clark ('70), Director of Departmental Library Services, emphasized to two recent prospective students that the Library provides graduate assistants with significant educational experiences that complement coursework to prepare them for professional careers.

Additionally, the School supports a number of students with research assistantships and fellowships and keeps applicants aware of other funding opportunities, such as the Illinois State Library scholarships, a fellowship offered by Champaign Public Library and Information Center, and preprofessional employment opportunities available at local public libraries.

We are happy to provide you with additional information to pass on to prospective students or they to make direct contacts ourselves. We don't expect that many of you will go to the lengths Kim Hale (MS '88) did in February when she accompan-

Thanks to all students, faculty, and alumni for your support in the annual fall Phonathon, held in October 1989. Your gifts are essential in maintaining the School's commitment to excellence. Contributions are used for student assistantships, faculty research and travel, curriculum development, as well as for assistance to student organizations in planning special tours and presentations.

Student callers commented favorably on the conversations they engaged in during the phonathon with alumni; one of the strongest values of the calling being made by current GSLIS students is to build communication between library practitioners and future job-seekers. Both caller and alum enjoy the interaction!

Dear Friends:

For me, one of the most exciting roles of the deanship has been that of fostering research among faculty and students and trying to work with the profession to make our research findings meaningful. An earlier page of this newsletter invites applications for the Library Research Center's Advanced Research Institute to be held this summer. The institute represents the most recent of the School's many efforts to improve the quality of research in our field. As members of the community of the University of Illinois, our faculty share in the research mission of the institution. As members of the profession of library and information science we are concerned that our research addresses issues of concern to the field.

A sampling of current faculty and LRC work gives a sense of this relationship between research and practice. Three professors are involved in projects funded by OCLC. Professor Lancaster seeks to identify barriers to effective subject access in library catalogs. Professors Smith and Henderson are working on the development of procedures for transforming the output of online searches of bibliographic databases into a form that can be matched to online catalogs and OCLC.

As part of the annual contract with the Illinois State Library, staff of the Library

Research Center are now producing "management profiles" for public libraries. The profiles give select library statistics for individual libraries and for libraries to which it is comparable in budget. We also provide current and retrospective data for comparison so that a librarian can, for example, examine shifts in sources of revenue for his or her library.

The Coalition for Public Library Research—another LRC project—is expanding its scope as it completes a study of long-range planning. At the suggestion of coalition member libraries, the LRC will now enlist annual memberships to support research on public libraries and its dissemination. The value of that effort was noted in a recent letter responding to my solicitation for membership in the coalition. "There is no more pressing need for public libraries than for the unredding of the research of the past 100 years."

GSLIS is fortunate to have had Herbert Goldhor as the School's director and later as the director of the Library Research Center. His vision led to the creation of the Center 29 years ago. With the resources it provides and the talents of our faculty and students we seek to continue to make significant contributions to research in the field. If there are ways in which the LRC can be helpful in the work of your library, please let me know.

Plans for GSLIS Centennial

The Graduate School of Library and Information Science is rapidly approaching its Centennial. As part of the celebration, the School is planning to issue an updated edition of Reminiscences: Seventy-five years of a library school, published in 1969. Robert F. Delzell (MS '72) and Walter C. Allen (emeritus faculty) will serve as editors. Publication is scheduled for Summer 1992. The editors request the assistance of alumni. Contributions are requested for:

1. an updated version of an article in the 1969 volume;
2. suggestions for new articles; or
3. personal reminiscences of happenings involving the School, faculty, students, or anything else pertinent, please send them to Walter Allen in care of the GSLIS.

Finally, if anyone could donate a copy or two of the original edition for the editors' use, it would be greatly appreciated. Please contact the GSLIS before sending any contributions, and we will confirm whether copies are still needed. Thank you!

GSLIS Admissions Increase for Fall 1990 Semester— National and International Students Represented

A dramatic increase of 47 percent over last year's fall admissions to the MS degree program has required Graduate School of Library and Information Science faculty and staff to prepare for greater numbers of advisees, larger classes, and increased use of reserve materials and the Learning Resources Lab.

MS degree admissions for the fall 1990 semester rose to 126 prospective students. Using last fall's actual enrollment rate of 76 percent, ninety-six students are expected to begin study in August, an increase of thirty-one students over last fall. By early August of this year, eighty-six students had already indicated that they planned to attend. While the School's marketing efforts may account for part of the significant increase, national trends show that enrollments are swelling in library and information programs.

New enrollments for spring and summer semester also increased, although not so dramatically. Enrollments in the spring rose from twenty-one in 1989 to twenty-four in 1990, an increase of 14 percent. Summer enrollments for 1990 increased 25 percent, from twenty students in 1989 to twenty-five this summer.

This fall's applicants represent forty-six different undergraduate major fields with perennial favorites history and English still leading the list. Also represented are such diverse fields as agriculture, communications, history of science, fine arts, and advertising. Foreign languages are well represented, as are education, music, and the social sciences.

Thirty-six students hold advanced degrees in fields ranging from home economics to cinema production to philosophy. Four of these hold a PhD and two have law degrees.

The average age of new MS students is thirty with an age range of twenty-two to forty-eight. Women make up 72 percent of the fall group. Men are more significantly represented in the spring and summer groups, where they are 43 and 52 percent respectively. Of the total group, 66 percent are women, a somewhat lower percentage than usual. Illinois residents make up 46 percent of the new fall student group, but twenty-five other states are also represented. New students come from Hawaii, Alaska, and all other sections of the nation. Minnesota, which has no library school, has the next largest representation with six students attending; three new students come from Puerto Rico. International students have arrived from six countries with nine from the People's Republic of China, The Republic of China, Korea, Hong Kong, Spain, and Japan are represented with one student each entering this fall.

New Faculty Member Joins GSLIS

The newest member of the GSLIS faculty is one of our own graduates, Jana Bradley, who will be joining the faculty upon completion of her doctoral degree in January 1991. Jana's dissertation, a study in the organizational culture and the meaning systems of an academic library, makes extensive use of qualitative research methods, with an emphasis on participant observation and on-site interviewing.

Jana has degrees in English from Bryn Mawr College and the University of Pennsylvania, and received her M.L.S. from UCLA. Her most recent position before coming to GSLIS was Director of Libraries at DePauw University in Greencastle, Indiana. She also has experience in medical and public libraries. In addition to her library expertise, Jana is an experienced writer and editor. She is coauthor of Improving Written Communication in Libraries (ALA, 1988) and coeditor of Hospital Library Management (Medical Library Association, 1983), and has served as associate editor of the Bulletin of the Medical Library Association. She has also conducted a number of workshops on writing and communication for the library community.

Jana's initial teaching assignments will include the doctoral seminar on library administration, as well as LIS 300, the foundations course. Other teaching interests include courses in communications, public services, collection development, and social sciences and humanities reference.

Carney Smith Gives Commencement Address

"Three Talismans for a Journey" was the title of the commencement address presented by Jessie Carney Smith (PhD '64) at the fourth annual GSLIS commencement exercises held on May 13, 1990. Smith, who is University Librarian of Fisk University in Nashville, Tennessee, was presented the 1990 Distinguished Alumna Award from the University of Illinois Library School Association. Carney Smith commended to GSLIS graduates "three talismans," derived from traditional folktales: the acorn of sharing, the inexhaustible purse of scholarship, and a loving heart.

Candidates for the MLS, CAS, and PhD from August 1989 to May 1990 were eligible to attend the ceremony. Many GSLIS alumni, faculty, staff, family, and friends were also on hand. A reception immediately followed the program, and Dean Leigh Estabrook hosted a picnic later that afternoon.

During the ceremony, special recognition went to graduates Frederick Lawrence Gilmore, winner of the R. B. Downs Award, and to Timothy William Cole, recipient of the Frances B. Jenkins Award.

Message from the LSA President

Dear Fellow Alums:
Welcome to the 92nd year of the Library School Association!

Thank you for this opportunity to serve as your president for 1990-1991.

Responses to the survey included in the Spring 1990 issue of the newsletter indicated that you would like to know more about the Library School Association (LSA). LSA is the alumni arm of the GSLIS. All graduates who join the University of Illinois Alumni Association automatically become members of LSA. In addition, alumni holding LSA life memberships at the time LSA affiliated with the Alumni Association in 1981 retained their life memberships; these LSA members are not necessarily members of UIAA.

The aims of LSA are to advance the interests of librarianship, promote the interests of GSLIS, foster cooperation with GSLIS and the Alumni Association, and maintain communication with alumni. To this end, LSA sponsors annually a number of activities and awards.

Behind the scenes this year, LSA will assist in publishing this newsletter, work on a membership brochure and a handbook for LSA Board members, and develop guidelines for an LSA service award. We hope you can join us at these upcoming events:

- *Windsor Lecture Series, November 29 on the UIUC campus. Cosponsored by LSA and GSLIS.

- *LSA GSLIS receptions at ALA Midwinter (Chicago) and ALA annual conference (Atlanta).

- *Presentation of the LSA Distinguished Alumni Award at the GSLIS graduation ceremony, May 12, 1991.

Watch for more information on regional meetings and receptions. Ideas, suggestions, and questions are welcome. The LSA Board meets four times a year, including meetings at ALA Midwinter and the ALA Annual Conference. Join us!

32nd Allerton Institute Scheduled

The 1990 Allerton Institute is scheduled for October 28-30, 1990. According to GSLIS Professor Bryce Allen, conference chair, "The 1990 Allerton Institute will explore one of the most important issues facing public services today: How to evaluate library services and service providers."

Techniques for evaluating the quality of reference services have evolved over the past 20 years, including the development of unobtrusive testing and questionnaires administered to users, non-users, and librarians. Results obtained by these techniques have led to an awareness of a "crisis" in reference work. At the same time, it has become evident that one essential component in providing high quality public service is the employment of high quality public service personnel.

James Rettig, Assistant University Librarian for Reference and Information Services, The College of William and Mary, will present the keynote address introducing the many issues involved in evaluating the quality of public services in the 1990s. Presenters will include reference practitioners and library educators.

Cosponsored by the Reference and Adult Services Division of the American Library Association and GSLIS, the conference will be held at the Allerton House near Monticello, Illinois. The registration fee of $350 includes conference registration, room, meals (including snacks), and a copy of the published proceedings. Registration is limited.

Data Processing Clinic on Enhanced Networking

The 28th Annual Clinic on Library Applications of Data Processing is scheduled for April 7-9, 1990, at University Inn in Champaign, Illinois. The Clinic will address the issues of enhanced networking among research libraries and the new technologies that have made networking possible. The emerging model of the "virtual library" suggests new roles for research libraries in an increasingly cooperative and interconnected academic environment. The Clinic will include both formal papers and panel discussions examining the opportunities and challenges raised by these new roles.

White House Conference on Library and Information Services

All over the country, librarians and citizens are talking about information needs in conjunction with the White House Conference on Library and Information Services scheduled for July 1991. Illinois is in the process of developing a platform of state issues by defining the information needs of Illinois residents and ways in which libraries may respond to those needs.

Nine regional meetings to be held October 20 and 27, 1990, form the second stage of the process to collect information and set an agenda for Illinois libraries. Bridget L. Lamont, Director of the Illinois State Library and Chair of the Illinois White House Committee, says every person in Illinois has a stake in the White House Conference process. "Library and information services are so important to our residents and communities that we want to develop an Illinois information agenda which will guide us toward the 21st century and then to prepare the Illinois delegation to present effectively the state's priorities at the national White House Conference on Library and Information Services in Washington, D.C. in 1991."

Representation at the regional conferences and of national delegates selected in November will be balanced equally between citizens, governing officials, library trustees, and librarians and information professionals. Students, faculty, and staff from GSLIS are involved with the Illinois White House Conference activities.

Student Chapter News

American Library Association

Student chapter activities for 1989-90 included sponsorship of a number of speakers, participation in the annual GSLIS phonathon, an original cataloging project of 70 titles for the ALA headquarters library, two field trips to ALA headquarters, and a hugely successful tee-shirt design contest and sale.

The year's program of speakers began in the fall with Raymond Bial, director of the Parkland Community College library and local photographer and Fred Schlipl, director of the Urbana Free Library. Spring semester included E. Joey Rodger, president of the Public Library Association, and a program concerning libraries and literacy presented cooperatively by Jean Osborn of the University of Illinois Center for the Study of Reading, GSLIS associate professor Martin Siegel, and Dean Leigh Estabrook.

ALA student chapter also sponsored a series of career workshops for students during both fall and spring semesters. ALA's final student program for the year was a joint presentation by Beth Woodard, Central Information Services Librarian at the U of I, and Curt McKay, Assistant to the Dean at GSLIS, on first time attendance at an ALA conference.

Special Libraries Association

The Graduate Student Group of the Special Libraries Association participated in a variety of events during Academic Year 1989-1990.

During the academic year, several guest speakers graciously gave their time to the group: Lionelle Elssesser (MS '67), Health Sciences Communications Association; Debbie Kreisher and Mary Ellen Torbett, Illinois Power; and Mildred Buhm, Dow Chemical. Ten student members visited the special libraries of Arthur Andersen and the Chicago Sun-Times. Other activities included a picnic co-sponsored with the student chapters of ALA and ASIS; participating in the GSLIS annual phonathon; obtaining membership in the American Youth Hostels organization (for conference lodging); and sponsoring a button-design contest.

Several students applied for awards to attend the annual meeting of the Special Libraries Association. Rosemary Ambora won the Illinois SLA student award and shared part of the stipend by paying registration fees for the other students. Lora Lennertz was awarded a general scholarship at the national meeting in Pittsburgh for continued study toward her Masters degree.

First Advanced Research Institute Held

Students from GSLIS will be calling during the first week of October for the 1990 Phonathon. Please take time to share information with the caller about yourself and your professional activities. Your enthusiasm about your career will offer much encouragement to a current student.

Phonathon Trivia Question: Which decade has been the most generous with alumni giving?

Donation records from last year indicate that the largest average gift ($48) came from those who graduated in the 1950s! The greatest number of alumni gifts by decade came from those who graduated in the 1980s! The largest total dollars donated ($5,250) came from those who graduated in the 1970s! Each and every gift helps. Consider how you can assist GSLIS before you are called this fall. Perhaps alumni from the 1940s or 1960s would like to challenge other classes?

1920s	329
1930s	853
1940s	801
1950s	935
1960s	1,084
1970s	1,544
1980s	9393
1990s	39

PhD in Library and Information Science

The doctoral program at Illinois is research oriented and is designed to produce scholars in library and information science. The program is more generalist than specialist; those students having very narrow interests, who may be unwilling to explore broader areas within the field, are unlikely to find the program suited to their needs.

Selection of students into the doctoral program is made by the School's Advanced Studies Committee. Selection criteria include previous academic accomplishments, professional experience, publications, and potential for scholarship.

The program is divided into three main components. The generalization component consists of completion of at least four doctoral seminars designed to encompass all aspects of library and information science. The specialization component is designed to allow students to take three or more courses in an area of library and information science in which they have special interest. Finally, the dissertation component represents the results of original research performed by the student under the guidance of a faculty advisor.

Since only one doctoral seminar is given each semester (fall and spring), completion of the required coursework takes at least 2½ academic years. Under the best of conditions, a student may complete all requirements for the doctoral degree in three years, but this is fairly unusual. It is more realistic to expect to spend four years in the program.

Those interested in obtaining more information regarding the doctoral program should write or call the Graduate School of Library and Information Science, 410 David Kinley Hall, 1407 W. Gregory Drive, Urbana, Illinois, 217/333-3280.

News from the Library Research Center

In our last column we wrote about the Coalition for Public Library Research cooperative, established by the Library Research Center. Recently, the mission of this group was expanded to include both research and information services. Public Library Watch is the new quarterly publication for members of the Coalition for Public Library Research and its friends. The mission of PLW is to report on research and issues of interest to public libraries. Future quarterly issues of PLW will highlight research on a particular theme such as the role of public libraries in the national literacy effort, and new technologies in the public library. PLW draws its material from a unique multidisciplinary database housed in the LRC. For a complimentary copy of PLW please call 217 333-1980, or write to the Library Research Center, 410 David Kinley Hall, 1407 W. Gregory, Urbana, IL 61801.

The LRC has recently completed several other projects.

LRC staff assisted the Lincoln Trail Libraries System (in Illinois) with a survey of a random sample of registered voters in four communities for the purpose of ascertaining which community would provide support for a combined school public library facility. After the survey and additional qualitative assessment were complete, the system determined which community was best qualified and is in the process of establishing such a facility in that community.

The Illinois School Library Media Association surveyed all public schools in Illinois to determine the status of automation in their libraries. The results of this survey were used to write a final statewide report and to make recommendations for future statewide automation efforts in school library media centers. LRC staff assisted by designing the questionnaire and processing the returns.

The Illinois State Library contracts annually with the Library Research Center to collect and analyze statistics from annual reports submitted by over 600 public libraries in Illinois. The 1989 statistics and analyses were published in a statewide listing and sent along with individual Management Profiles and color graphics to Illinois system directors and public library directors. These products are used by the Illinois library community to track library development on both a statewide and local level.

GSLIS Experiments with Fridays Only Classes

The lives of commuting students pursuing a master's degree will be made somewhat easier this fall as the Graduate School of Library and Information Science initiates a special Fridays Only class scheduling option.

Sections of the three required core courses are scheduled for Fridays on a trial basis. New students are able to register for both lecture and discussion sections of LIS 300, "Foundations of Library and Information Science." Sections of LIS 307, "Introduction to Services Relating to Organization of Library Materials," and LIS 320, "Introduction to Reference Sources and Services," will be offered in a format spread over the full semester instead of meeting twice weekly for the first five weeks. Students are able to take any combination of the three courses.

The Fridays Only scheduling option is an experiment in response to the continual requests received from around the state to offer degree programs extramurally. Prospective students from as near as Decatur and as far as Chicago, Peoria, and Carbondale have sought offerings that would allow them to earn the MS degree without coming to Urbana-Champaign. At present, the School is unable to offer courses off campus, but the Fridays Only scheduling option may make it more possible for some long-distance students to pursue degrees.

One section of LIS 431, "Online Information Systems," is scheduled on Thursday evenings; commuting students could also take that course and spend only one night in Urbana-Champaign.

Most advanced courses meet only once a week, so commuters can often arrange to come to campus only one or two days a week after they have taken the three required courses. The School attempts to help students find inexpensive housing so they can spend extra time on campus or take courses on two consecutive days. The School will attempt to schedule sections of popular advanced courses on Fridays during subsequent semesters. Currently LIS 415, "Library Automation"; LIS 407, "Cataloging and Classification I"; LIS 450AP, "Use and Users of Information"; and LIS 450C, "Interactive Systems Design" are planned offerings on Fridays in spring 1991. In addition, at least two courses are normally offered in the evenings as a service to commuters.

The School can offer the Fridays Only scheduling option only to students who begin study in fall semesters. As part time students, applicants do not qualify for financial aid from the University. Though the Friday Only scheduling option is being offered on a trial basis this fall, the School anticipates offering it again to students beginning the program in fall 1991.

Anyone wishing further information concerning the scheduling option, including members of your staff or friends interested in pursuing the MS degree, should write or call Curt McKay, Assistant to the Dean or call 217 333-3280.

Dean Friends:

As this newsletter goes to press, faculty and staff at the School have been given wonderful news that we have been assigned new space at 501 East Daniel (formerly the Acacia fraternity house). It is a spacious and gorgeous facility that will be remodeled for our use. Classrooms, offices, publications, and the research center will be together. We expect to move in sometime next summer and will put more information about this in our spring newsletter.

Looking forward has also occasioned much looking backward as we begin to prepare for the School's centennial. People have told me wonderful stories including the challenge of answering Rose Phelps' reference questions provided by former students and the way the School was when it was on the third floor of the Library. (Does anyone know when it was moved from Altgeld Hall?) We still use the silver tea service given by Marie Hostetter, but no one has worn white gloves recently. Some of you have sent me memorable pictures of former faculty and students. I hope more of you will share memories with us so that we can weave them into our centennial celebration.

Who are the people you remember? What were the campus and the community like? How has the profession changed for you? What were your classes and faculty like? My historical and sociological orientation make me immensely curious about the answers to such questions. I look forward to hearing from you.

—Leigh S. Estabrook

LSA Board Meets

At the Board meeting held June 23rd at the Oxford House, a $1500 budget was approved for 1990-91. The Board approved support of up to $250 each for three regional alumni meetings to be held in Indiana, Illinois, and the New York area. The coordinator of each event is to submit a written report to the Board in time for its meeting during ALA in 1991. The Board also agreed to use one half of the income from the Hague bequest (approximately $1000) to help support the Windsor Lectures which will be held on November 29, 1990. These funds have been allocated to the Windsor Lectures in lieu of a Distinguished Speaker.

President Pat Stenstrom announced the appointment of a committee to look into a Distinguished Service Award for service to the Library School or to the Library School Association. Members of the committee are: Nancy O'Brien (chairman), Joe Sciacca, and Susan Lucio. This committee is to report by the Midwinter Board meeting, and it is hoped that the award will be given in 1992, which will coincide with the centennial year of the School. President Stenstrom has appointed Ruth McBride to be the Board's representative to the Centennial Committee.

Incoming LSA President Jenny Holmberg was selected to be the representative to the University of Illinois Alumni Association Board, and incoming Treasurer Frankie Moshorg was selected to be the LSA's liaison to the Alumni Association Constituent Groups. Debra Park will continue as the School's liaison to the Constituent Groups and to the LSA Board.

At the annual business meeting held on June 25, 1990 at Columbia College, Chicago, the following officers were elected for 1990-91 and assumed their offices immediately:

President (Representative to UIAA) Jenny Holmberg '83
First Vice-President (President Elect) Joe Sciacca '78

Director 1990-91 (Immediate Past Pres.) Pat Stenstrom '57
Director 1989-91 Claudia Wheeler '74
Director 1990-92 Christine Guyonneau '84

The reception that followed the annual business meeting was underwritten in part by C. Berger and Company, Carol Stream, Illinois.

Robert Bingham Downs, May 25, 1903 - February 24, 1991

On Sunday, February 24, 1991, faculty and staff of the Graduate School of Library and Information Science were saddened to receive word that Robert Bingham Downs died of pneumonia at his home in Urbana, Illinois. He was 87 years old.

Robert Downs was Dean Emeritus of Library Administration at the University of Illinois. He arrived at Illinois in 1943 as Director of the Library and was promoted to Dean of Library Administration in 1958, a position he held until his retirement in 1971. During his tenure, the University of Illinois library grew to its present position as the third largest university library, and largest state university library, in the United States. It was also during his tenure that GSLIS consolidated its position as the leading program in the nation for library education.

"Librarianship has lost a giant," said David F. Bishop, University Librarian. "Robert Downs had a profound influence on the University of Illinois, its library, and on so many librarians across the country and around the world. He will most surely be missed by all of us."

During his long tenure at GSLIS, Robert Downs taught courses in college and university library administration and research of American librarianship. He worked relentlessly to create the nation's first PhD program in library science, eventually chairing many doctoral committees and becoming the mentor of many of the country's leading academic librarians. Herbert Goldhor, Director Emeritus of the School and Associate Director under Dean Downs from 1962 to 1971, testified to Downs' firm support of the School and his encouragement of new ventures. "He participated actively in the operation of the School, teaching usually one course a year; his favorite was 'Resources of American Research Libraries.' He gave the faculty increasing authority and responsibility; and when he retired, he recommended to the campus administration that the school and the library be separated. His was a great and good influence on the school."

Robert Downs was the author of more than 450 books and articles. His 1956 best-seller, Books That Changed the World, sold several million copies and was translated into 17 languages. The book's popularity led to a series of sequels, including Books that Changed America, Molders of the Modern Mind, and Memorable Americans. In 1951 Downs published American Library Resources, considered one of the most important books on librarianship in this century. The book has been updated every ten years, and Downs was at work on his latest revision at the time of his death. William Vernon Jackson (MS '51) will continue the project.

twentieth century," said Patricia Stenson (MS '57), Head of the University of Illinois Library and Information Science Library. "For 28 years, he influenced the direction of research libraries in America, and that influence will be with us for a long time."

Robert Downs was also known as a vigorous defender of intellectual freedom during the height of the McCarthy era. His strong public statement against censorship, made while he was president of the American Library Association from 1952 to 1953, ultimately led to President Eisenhower's 1953 "Don't Join the Bookburners" speech.

In 1960, Downs wrote "The First Freedom," and in recognition of his crusade for intellectual freedom, the University of Illinois Library in 1968 established the Robert B. Downs annual award for outstanding contributions to that cause in libraries. In 1988, the University Library commissioned a portrait of Downs, which hangs above the circulation desk of the main library.

"Among other things, Dean Downs was a distinguished elder statesman in residence," said Professor Charles H. Davis, GSLIS Dean from 1979 to 1986. "His personal qualities were endearing; his contributions will be enduring."

Allerton Institute 1991 Applying Research to Practice

The 1991 Allerton Institute, "Applying Research to Practice," has been scheduled for October 27 through 29 at Allerton Park in Monticello, Illinois. This year's participants will identify the essential components of library research activity, learn how to incorporate research steps into the decision-making process, and explore ways to work with outside research and funding agencies.

Glenn Holt, Director of the St. Louis Public Library, will offer the keynote address. Other speakers are Jana Bradley (University of Illinois), Margaret Kimmel (University of Pittsburgh), F. W. Lancaster (University of Illinois), Keith Lance (Colorado State Library), Jane Robbins (University of Wisconsin), Katy Sherlock (University of Illinois) and Nancy Van House (University of California, Berkeley). Registration brochures will be ready in May. The cost is $350, including registration, room and board. Please contact Annetta Holt, GSLIS, for further information.

GSLIS Convocation

Again this year the Graduate School of Library and Information Science will host festivities to recognize those students who are graduating. The School's convocation will be at 1:30 p.m. on May 12 at Smith Music Hall on campus. The University of Illinois commencement ceremonies will be held on the same day.

Robert Wedgeworth, recipient of the 1991 LSA Distinguished Alumnus Award and Dean of Columbia Library School, will present remarks. Students receiving special awards and honors will also be recognized.

A reception will follow in the east foyer of the Main Library. Alumni and friends are cordially invited to attend. Traditionally a potluck picnic follows at the home of Dean Leigh Estabrook to which GSLIS friends are also welcome.

A Family Gathering

Alumni, students, faculty and friends are cordially invited to attend an informal reception hosted by the University of Illinois GSLIS and the Library School Association at the Illinois Library Association Conference, Thursday, May 2, from 7:30 to 9:30 a.m.

Light breakfast refreshments will be served.

New books by GSLIS faculty and alumni will be featured, including Indexing and Abstracting in Theory and Practice, F. W. Lancaster; Reference and Information Services, Richard E. Bopp and Linda C. Smith, editors; Magazines for Children: A Guide for Parents, Teachers, and Librarians, second edition, Selma K. Richardson; The Carnegie Library in Illinois, Ray Bial and Linda LaPuma Bial.

Advanced Research Institute

GSLIS has received funding from the Council on Library Resources to support its second Advanced Research Institute, to be held on the campus of the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign from July 7 to 26, 1991.

The Institute is designed to enhance the quality of research by individuals who are among the most promising in the field and whose work focuses on the area of the library in transition. Institute staff strive to build a community that is "safe" enough for participants to expose ideas to rigorous review while creating a climate for the free exchange of ideas.

One member of the first Advanced Research Institute, held in 1990 and also funded by CLR, commented, "I envisioned the ARI would be a cross between a mini-sabbatical and summer camp for the mind. I was right." Another said, "Everyone took their work and others' seriously. . . . The ARI helps to stimulate positive critical thinking about your research and that of others."

Further information about the 1991 Institute can be obtained from Dean Leigh Estabrook at GSLIS. Application deadline: April 1, 1991.

Wedgeworth Named GSLIS Distinguished Alumnus

Robert W. Wedgeworth, Dean of the School of Library Service, Columbia University, has been selected to receive the 1991 Distinguished Alumnus Award from the University of Illinois Library School Association. Jeanette Holmberg (MS '83), President of the Library School Association, announced the Wedgeworth selection and has indicated that Wedgeworth plans to attend the commencement ceremonies of the Graduate School of Library and Information Science on May 12, 1991 to receive the award.

The Distinguished Alumnus Award recognizes GSLIS alumni who have made an outstanding contribution to the field, to the University of Illinois Library School Association, or to the School.

Wedgeworth was chosen for his career-long efforts to elevate the perception of the library profession. His broad interests include political, economic, and social influences on libraries; international relations; and the foreign book trade. Dean of the School of Library Services at Columbia University since 1985, he guided the school through its centennial, including a major symposium held in 1987 on the roles of libraries, librarians, and teaching faculty in library education. A recent article, "Some Thoughts on the Perils of Library Education: Real and Perceived," appeared in the January 1991 issue of Wilson Library Bulletin.

Robert W. Wedgeworth

After receiving his masters' degree from Illinois in 1961, Wedgeworth practiced as a cataloger, Assistant Librarian, Librarian, and Assistant Chief Acquisitions Librarian before serving as Executive Director of the American Library Association from 1972 to 1985. He was editor-in-chief of the ALA Yearbook from 1976 to 1985 and of the ALA World Encyclopedia of Library and Information Services, 1986 edition.

Betty Stone, ALA President 1981-1982, has commented: "When future generations look up at the 55th floor of the Huron Plaza and ask, 'Who's responsible for this great building?' ... When professionals using the ALA yearbooks and world encyclopedias ask, 'Who started these great reference sources?' ... When these professionals traveling abroad ask, 'Who was a prime mover in leading the ALA into the paths of international activity?' The answer will be one name, Bob Wedgeworth."

GSLIS Move Anticipated for Winter 1992!

As reported in the Fall 1990 Newsletter, the former Acacia fraternity house (corner of Fifth and Daniel, Champaign) is the future home of the Graduate School of Library and Information Science. The remodeled building will provide 13,000 square feet of usable area, compared to the 7,400 square feet GSLIS currently occupies in David Kinley Hall. A move during fall semester, 1991 is anticipated, although fiscal constraints for the State of Illinois and the University may cause delays in the schedule.

A valuable feature of the new building will be the classroom space. GSLIS has not controlled its own classrooms since it moved from the University Library in 1981. On the ground level, two electronic classrooms will provide an optimal teaching environment for library education. Additional benefits will include adequate office space, work areas for teaching assistants, and the unification of all GSLIS units under one roof.

Support to underwrite the expenses of furnishing and equipping individual rooms has been sought from library vendors, who will be recognized for their contributions. DEMCO of Madison, Wisconsin has "adopted" the first floor conference room, which will be used for public meetings and receptions, faculty meetings, and student activities. Commitments of support or contributions have also been received from Blackwell North America, C. Berger and Company, Gaylord, Mohawk Midland Furniture, and Silver Platter.

Opportunities to assist in equipping the new building remain open, including: small conference room ($4,500); seminar room ($6,000); Dean's office suite ($15,000); faculty offices ($5,000 each); main administrative offices ($50,000); 2 electronic classrooms ($50,000 each). Individuals or corporations interested in knowing more about "adoption" may contact Debra Park, GSLIS Director of Development.

Placement Services are Available to Students and Alumni

An online placement database, regular placement bulletins, maintenance of placement files, and on-campus recruiting are among the placement services available to current GSLIS students and alumni. In addition, the ALA Student Chapter sponsors a workshop series twice a year with sessions on resume writing, salary negotiation, and differences in job searches in public, academic, and special libraries. Shari Grindley of the Placement Office and Assistant to the Dean Curt McKay are happy to help alumni use these placement services.

Access to the online placement database is provided either in the GSLIS Learning Resources Laboratory or by dialup to anyone with a PC and modem. Currently, the only cost to users is the telephone charge. Alumni can request a free users' guide to the database from Shari in the Placement Office. Users can tailor searches for available positions using any combination of the following five criteria: place, library type, amount of expertise required, date available, and salary range. The database includes all positions sent directly to us as well as all listings in American Libraries, The Chronicle of Higher Education, and Library Hotline. Listings are left in the database until the day after closing or for 6 months if no closing date is given.

Placement bulletins produced from the database are also available to students and alumni. The 8-page bulletins may be received by sending $4.00 and 8 self-addressed, stamped, legal-size envelopes to the Placement Office. The printed bulletin lists positions by amount of experience required.

Alumni may open or update their placement credentials at any time. New letters of reference may be added to files; periodically, alumni should consider updating their placement files even if they have no immediate plans for changing positions. The charge for sending placement credentials is $3.00 per set, with a minimum deposit of $15.00 for 5 sets.

A number of libraries come to campus to interview for positions each year. Most available positions are in large public library systems, but both special and academic library positions occasionally become available. Recent interview opportunities have included Columbus, Ohio, Metropolitan Library; St. Louis, Missouri, Public Library; Library of Congress; Los Angeles Public Library; the Free Library of Philadelphia; Dow Chemical Company; Cape Girardeau, Missouri, Public Library; and the U.S. Air Force.

The ALA Student Chapter holds a placement workshop series in both fall and spring semesters. Workshops include resume writing, how to use the placement office, and a session on salary negotiation with Dean Estabrook. Librarians from the University of Illinois Library, the Champaign and Urbana public libraries, and local special libraries conduct sessions in which students learn about the hiring procedures followed by various types of libraries.

ASIS Student Group

The student chapter of the American Society for Information Science, with support from GSLIS and the ASIS Research Committee, will sponsor the Midwest Regional Student Research Mini-conference on Information Science on Saturday, April 6 at the Levis Faculty Center on campus. The mini-conference will include invited papers by advanced and doctoral students from around the Midwest.

After two successful years at Indiana University, the mini-conference moves to the U of I this year. Last year's conference attracted participation from as far away as the University of Western Ontario and Rutgers University. The mini-conference is designed to be a showcase for the best in student papers, to encourage research at all levels, and to provide an arena in which students can see that they can make a contribution to the field.

The mini-conference is scheduled just before the 1991 Data Processing Clinic and all Clinic participants are welcome to attend.

SLA Student Events

This year the Special Libraries Association student group sponsored several lectures and trips to promote special librarianship and inform GSLIS students on many aspects of the profession.

On November 17, SLA and ALA student members visited the Illinois State Library, the Illinois State Historical Library, Springfield Public Library, and the EPA Library, all located in Springfield. On February 15 and 16, SLA ventured a little further from home to visit OCLC, Chemical Abstracts, Ohio State University Libraries, and the Columbus Metropolitan Library. SLA welcomed two GSLIS alumni as guest speakers this year, Judy Seiss (MS '82) of Bailey Controls Company and Cindy Yi (MS '87) of Boston Consulting Group.

Officers for the 1990-91 academic year were: Scott Drone-Silvers, President; Marybeth Charters, Vice-President; Ann Scholz, Treasurer; and Lora Lennertz,

Sutton Looks at Long-Range Planning

Planning for the long-range future is a complex project for public libraries. In a study supported by the Coalition for Public Library Research, GSLIS assistant professor J. Brett Sutton and the GSLIS Library Research Center are looking at the experiences of public libraries as they undergo the planning process.

Brett Sutton

Identifying common difficulties and their solutions, Professor Sutton explains, will be helpful to all libraries undertaking long-range planning. The library as a community, with its own organizational culture, is of particular interest to Professor Sutton, whose background is in anthropology. The study's methodology therefore utilized both quantitative and qualitative approaches, including questionnaires with closed- and open-ended questions, site visits, and interviews. "It was important to remain open to things we didn't expect to find," says Professor Sutton.

Interviews were conducted in summer, 1989 at four large public libraries; site visits and data-gathering took place in spring 1990. Professor Sutton is synthesizing the mountain of paperwork he has gathered while the LRC continues to process and analyze the data. A preliminary report on the project was issued in January 1991. A full report is in progress, and a monograph on the study's findings is also planned.

Dalrymple Investigates End-User Searching

Universities across the country are undergoing a period of transition, according to GSLIS Assistant Professor Prudence Dalrymple, and how to get students comfortable with the change is a major concern. More and more, students and faculty are using the library from remote locations, and that means they are far away from the resources and assistance traditionally offered by a librarian. Users need to develop their own skills in end-user searching and become acquainted with the plethora of available software.

Toward these ends, Professor Dalrymple is working on a project to enhance students' understanding of the fundamental concepts of information storage and retrieval. Her work in this area grew out of her overall research interest in how people understand information concepts, as well as her experience teaching courses in online information systems. Such systems utilize Boolean logic, a "logic" which is in fact somewhat abstract and counterintuitive to the beginner. With support from an "Apple Seedlings" grant, Professor Dalrymple is part of a team working on computer-based instruction to demonstrate concepts of Boolean retrieval to students. "All GSLIS students," she explains, "should graduate with a basic understanding of these concepts." Her methodology includes experimentation, field study, and the use of transaction logs that record all exchanges between a computer and its user. Brian Levine, a graduate student in the UI College of Education, is designing the software, and GSLIS Associate Professor Martin Siegel is co-principal investigator on the project.

Dear Friends:

My first meeting with Dean Downs occurred at a reception held for me shortly after my appointment as dean. At that time, I said how pleased I was to meet him and promptly spilled a glass of champagne in his lap. The courtesy and charm with which he dealt with that embarrassing episode typified my subsequent encounters with him as well as with his wife Jane.

Dean Downs continued to take an active interest in the School—in its curriculum, faculty, and students and in such programs as the Windsor Lectureships. It was at his urging that they were reinstated this past fall. He often sent me memos on a variety of topics. His last was a lamentation on the decision to close Columbia's School of Library Service and a reflection on how pleased he was with GSLIS's current role in the university.

Many of you must have rich and valued memories of him. I hope you will pass along his legacy to those who did not know him.

GSLIS Alums Share Their Memories

Planning continues for the celebration of the GSLIS Centennial in 1992. In last fall's Newsletter message, Dean Leigh Estabrook asked GSLIS alumni to share their memories of life at the University of Illinois. We've received some wonderful responses and even photographs. Mrs. Eleanore Cammack (BS '29) of Greencastle, Indiana, sent us some of her reminiscences, which she has graciously permitted us to excerpt here:

"Your message in the recent Newsletter has stirred memories. My class was 1929. There were about 55 members ... Miss Simpson taught 'History of Libraries'; there was a lot of outside reading; she always kept us until the last minute ...

Rose Phelps impressed me with her intelligence and knowledge of reference work ... Miss Ambuhl was kind; I had difficulty with classification ... I did my best in 'Book Selection' under Miss Boyd, my favorite. Her demands were given with a sweet smile. Her knowledge of the subject matter was tremendous ... Dr. Windsor must have lectured a time or two. I remember his distinguished appearance, particularly the goatee ... After the rewarding Chicago excursion to visit educational institutions—mainly libraries—papers were required. That year Lorado Taft unveiled his Alma Mater—exciting!"

HENDERSON NAMED MOST OUTSTANDING GRADUATE TEACHER

By Curt McKay

Literally thousands of students have experienced the phenomenon of a course taught by Professor Kathryn Luther Henderson since she joined the GSLIS faculty in 1965. Among those thousands there is strong agreement that she is a remarkable teacher, one of that rare breed who transforms her students' lives by her caring and knowledge. It will come as no surprise to them to learn that in April Professor Henderson was named the second recipient of the prestigious Campus Award for Excellence in Graduate and Professional Teaching that was established last year.

"I know each student," says Professor Henderson, adding, "I know my field and the specialties that are my responsibilities." But it is more than knowing that makes Professor Henderson outstanding. She knows, but she also cares deeply and enduringly about her students, librarianship, and the School. And because she is a master teacher, she is able to share both the knowledge and the caring with each student in the four courses she teaches each year.

These hallmarks of caring and knowledge are readily apparent in the comments submitted by former students in support of her nomination for the award. A 1970 graduate wrote, "Beyond doubt, Professor Henderson has been the major influence in my professional career. I have repeated many times the fact that I did not mind working 60 hours a week as a graduate student. Mrs. Henderson was obviously devoting 80 or more. She provided detailed feedback to each student and at the same time she conveyed her love of her profession and the endless excitement she found in it."

A 1990 graduate focused on Mrs. Henderson's extension of caring beyond the classroom when he said, "If my case is typical, and I believe it is, it can also be said Professor Henderson's influence extends beyond the classroom and into her former students' personal lives. Her end-of-the-semester parties, concern for students' families, and offers of help in times of crisis (e.g. ice storms and power outages) set a standard of care which is valuable in both library work and life in general. Combined with her obvious skills in teaching, Professor Henderson's personal relationship with her students puts her into the small class of teachers who can claim lasting impact on their students' professional and personal lives."

The care Professor Henderson consistently gives to her courses provided a focal point for the faculty nomination for the award. It mentioned her careful design of classes to use the teaching methods that are best suited to the material included. She redevelops her two cataloging and classification courses each time they are offered to make certain that they are completely current and contain the newest readings in the literature. Professor Henderson explains, "I write extensive syllabi for each course (200 pages or more) that include narrative contextual content, bibliographic essays, and learning experiences, all of which are updated each offering."

Centennial Celebration Set for September, '92

Mark your 1992 calendars now for the GSLIS gala centennial celebration. The weekend of September 25 & 26, 1992, is a definite MUST DO in Urbana-Champaign. This is a great opportunity to renew acquaintances, show your support for library education, learn something new, and have a lot of fun.

The Centennial Celebration Committee is already hard at work planning this once-a-century event. Watch your mail and keep an eye on future issues of this newsletter for details.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES HELP TEMPER LIBRARY SCHOOL BLUES

By Dave Micko, M.S. Student

Library school could be difficult, filled with esoteric books, strange computer systems and demanding professors. Life at GSLIS could be stodgy, tame and time consuming. But for an intrepid group of culinary adventurers, life during library school is anything but a grind. Rather, it's filled with the dramatic, satisfying smack of the softball hitting the bat, the delicate slide of a burrito down a hungry gullet and the intoxicating sounds of cocktails being sipped after a long week.

GSLIS has several extracurricular groups that meet on a regular basis to practice their favorite sport, be it eating, drinking or hitting a softball around the field. These are groups that have nothing to do with the library school officially. They are comprised of people (often friends and family are included) who just want to see what their classmates look like outside the classroom, on the softball field, in a restaurant or at a bar. Although not an official part of the School, they play an integral part of the life that a graduate student leads during a very brief stay at the University of Illinois. The people who participate in these groups come away with a better understanding of their classmates and their profession.

The Dewey Decimators are actually a team of University Library personnel who are willing to take volunteers from the GSLIS ranks, often having graduate assistants from the Library swelling their ranks. They play on a regular basis during the softball season and can often be seen in local establishments after the games celebrating their victories and bemoaning their defeats.

Weekly happy hours, after being a student tradition for years, had recently slipped by the wayside because of a lack of institutional memory. Luckily, it's hard to keep a good tradition down, and the Friday Happy Hour has been resurrected with attendance on the rise. No longer limited to Coslow's, each week a new location for libation is chosen by a mysterious process and word is sent out over the electronic grapevine. Attendees gather to discuss the week, the weather and the condition of the School and raise a toast to the week to come.

Weekly dinners are another School tradition, one that began with HEIDI HOHMAN (MS '88) and a group of students who met each week after their humanities and social science reference class. This tradition has been attended to quite carefully. Every week a band of tasteful explorers gathers to test the culinary waters of the surrounding cities. Expensive to (more often) inexpensive, no dining experience is too obscure, no dive too low, no joint too greasy for these courageous testers of tastebuds. Repetition is the bane of their existence, and they have managed to keep it to a minimum, venturing as far forth as Fiesta Cafe in downtown Champaign and Jolly Roger's in downtown Urbana.

In the coming academic year with an influx of new students with different interests and fresh ideas, there are bound to be groups forming new and better traditions and more people continuing the old ones. Who said life at library school has to be a grind!

Henderson Noted for Teaching Methods, Accessibility, Depth of Knowledge, Concern for Students

The nomination also speaks of Mrs. Henderson's accessibility to students and her skill at advising them. It notes that she is in her office at least eight hours a day except for time spent in class or meetings and that she makes students welcome at any time they need to discuss course work, professional issues, or personal concerns.

Another 1970 graduate said of Professor Henderson's teaching style, "There were over 30 students in LS 407, but the class was structured to give the students the advantages of a small seminar. There was an enormous amount of material which Kathie developed herself and constantly revised. There were parts of assignments that all were required to complete and other parts that allowed students to follow particular interests. Kathie responded personally and at length to our assignments. To do so took an incredible time commitment, but that typified her commitment to the class and to her students."

A student from a decade later wrote of her teaching, "In addition to being demanding, Professor Henderson is also an unusually giving instructor, one who spends many, many hours with students every week. Her incisive comments fill any blank spaces of the pages her students submit, and suggest further reading, further analysis, different approaches. Her method of teaching—an incremental approach somehow combined with total immersion—provides students with a period of carefully monitored apprenticeship rare in contemporary graduate education."

Professor Henderson recalls with pleasure a student comment that aptly expresses her reasons for teaching. The student said, "This course got more out of me than I ever thought I could give; it made me be more than I ever thought I could be." Therein lies the core of Mrs. Henderson's success. Her caring, knowledge and hard work combine again and again to help students be more than they ever thought was possible.

GSLIS SEEKS TO SUPPLEMENT STATE FUNDS WITH FIFTH PHONATHON

As state support of higher education continues to dwindle, we must rely increasingly on our alumni and other sources for financial support. Contributions of alumni and friends will provide funds for 35 percent of the School's graduate research assistantships and all faculty travel money this fall.

To help raise those funds, students will begin telephoning alumni on the evening of October 6 in the School's fifth annual Phonathon. GSLIS students will make evening calls from October 6-10 asking for alumni pledges of support for the School's Annual Fund, which also provides aid for student ALA, ASIS, and SLA chapter activities and curriculum development. Students working with the University Foundation will make additional calls October 14-30.

Our call will provide you an opportunity to bring us up to date on your professional and personal activities and to share any concerns about the School or profession. Students who serve as callers also benefit from the opportunities for networking with a wide variety of professionals from across the country. Also, they learn how a phonathon works, a useful skill as more and more libraries are forced to develop new sources of funding.

Lily S. Schopp Trust Supports Research Assistantships

Five GSLIS students have been named Schopp research assistants in honor of Lily S. Schopp (nee KIOVISTO, BS '28). We are grateful for this bequest from the Lily S. Schopp Trust.

Information about deferred giving is available from Louis W. Rice III, Trust Relations Associate for the University of Illinois Foundation, 244 Illini Union, 1401 W. Green Street, Urbana, IL 61801, 217/244-0473.

Message from LSA President Joe Sciacca

The next several years will be an exciting period for the Library School Association (LSA) and GSLIS. As we begin the 1991-92 LSA year, I want to take this opportunity to review some of the recent activities of your alumni association, preview coming events, and encourage your support and involvement.

LSA is an official constituent organization of the U. of I. Alumni Association (UIAA). All graduates who join the UIAA automatically become members of LSA. Part of your UIAA dues goes to support LSA activities. As a new or renewing member, be sure to indicate your LSA affiliation on your application. You may contact GSLIS or any LSA board member for more information about joining LSA.

The goals of LSA are to advance the interest of librarianship, promote the interests of GSLIS and the Alumni Association, and to maintain communication with alumni. LSA sponsors two awards to recognize the contributions of outstanding LSA members. The Distinguished Alumnus Award is for an outstanding contribution to the profession. The Distinguished Service Award recognizes outstanding service to the LSA and GSLIS. LSA also sponsors the Distinguished Speaker program, which in recent years has helped bring speakers such as Herbert White, WILLIAM JACKSON (MS '51), John Berry,

Charles Robinson, and ROBERT WEDGEWORTH (MS '56) to campus for stimulating lectures on topics of professional importance. LSA hosts, with GSLIS, the annual alumni reception at the ALA Conference. LSA supports and participates in the GSLIS annual phonathon fundraising drive, and, with GSLIS, supports the production and distribution of the GSLIS Newsletter. During the coming year, LSA will be participating in the planning of activities to observe the GSLIS Centennial Year Celebration (1992-93), scheduled to begin in the Fall of 1992.

The LSA officers and board members invite your suggestions and participation regarding LSA activities. The 1991-92 LSA Board Members are: Joe Sciacca (MS '78)-President, 352-0047; Anita Johnson (MS '80)-President Elect, 337-3011; Ruth McBride (MS '72)-2nd Vice President, 356-9169; Frankie Mosborg (MS '72)-Secretary/Treasurer, 333-7150; Jenny Holmberg (MS '83)-Past President, 753-4947; Christine Guyonneau (MS '84)-Director, 317/788-3268; and Joanne Kelly (CAS '80)-Director, 384-3602. (Arca code is 217 unless otherwise indicated.)

We need to hear from you with feedback on things we have done and ideas for things you would like to see us do. Keep in touch and thank you for your support.

Message from the Dean

The University of Illinois, like many of its counterparts, has been engaged in developing a strategic vision for campus-wide priorities. A committee has just released its report, based on a review of the quality, cost, demand and role of schools and programs at the University. Since some of our sister programs in library and information science have closed or been "reorganized" as a result of similar plans, I wanted to report briefly on how GSLIS has fared in the UIUC review.

We have done well. Although GSLIS, along with all other colleges and schools in the university will be asked to take budget reductions over the next four years, the GSLIS reduction is substantially less than that required by a number of other schools on campus. Moreover, GSLIS faculty and students may well benefit from the University's reallocation of funds, some of which will go toward the library, minority education and graduate recruitment.

Informal conversations with administrators and with faculty on the campus-wide committee indicate that GSLIS is recognized particularly for the high quality of its students and faculty and for the connections that we have made with other units across campus. Some concern was expressed about the per student cost of our program; but enrollment has significantly increased this fall so that instructional costs are now at an acceptable level.

My thanks to each one of you for your contribution to this process--for the quality of the School is the result of decades of effort by many individuals. What Professor Bond, for example, taught to some of you affected your professional lives and your willingness to send good staff to our program. Having good students enables us to recruit new faculty of talent. And so it continues. We are dependent on one another not only for today's successes but for the excellence and success of GSLIS in the future. It is an exciting challenge.

Recent Grads Reunite at Atlanta ALA

June's ALA Conference in Atlanta saw many parties, including one that originated at a birthday party held during 1989's Dallas ALA conference. JUDY MACLEOD (MS '90) celebrated her birthday at a party for GSLIS students in nearby Fort Worth. Sometime during the revelry, JUDY volunteered her parents' suburban Atlanta home for another party when ALA met there.

JUDY's mother, Robin Macleod, came through for her daughter with flying colors and a wonderful picnic dinner for a group of recent alumni who swapped experiences and memories of the old days at GSLIS back in 1988 and 1989. Partygoers came from such far-ranging places as South Carolina, Colorado, Michigan, and Illinois and included MARK ANDERSEN, SHERYL BAILEY, BENNETT CROOK, JIM CUNNINGHAM, JULIE DOTHAGER, SCOTT HAMIEL, LORI OLING, DOUG RIPPEY, ANITA SCHUNEMAN (all MS '90); PATTY BARR (MS '89); and CURT MCKAY (MS '88).

LANCASTER TO RETIRE IN AUGUST 1992

Professor F. W. Lancaster has announced that he will retire from the GSLIS faculty in August, 1992.

Faculty, students, staff and friends will honor him at a retirement luncheon on Saturday, May 2, at the Radisson Suite Hotel in Champaign. Alumni who wish to contribute letters and memories to a booklet being prepared should send them to doctoral student Lorraine Haricombe in care of the GSLIS office.

Lancaster will continue to teach a doctoral seminar. A member of the GSLIS faculty since 1970, he has also taught courses relating to information transfer, bibliometrics, bibliographic organization, the evaluation of library and information services, and indexing and abstracting.

Lancaster is currently editor of Library Trends. The author of nine books, five of which received national awards, he was awarded Fulbright fellowships on three occasions for research and teaching abroad. A University Scholar for the period 1989-92, he also has been honored by the American Society for Information Science as a recipient of its Award of Merit and its Outstanding Information Science Teacher award.

Lancaster is presently editing a book on the future of libraries and is working on a revision of his text on information storage and retrieval.

Krummel Receives Prestigious University Scholar Award

Professor Donald W. Krummel was named a University Scholar in October 1991, joining only seven other senior faculty from both campuses of the University as recipients of the prestigious award.

At the award presentation ceremony, Vice President for Academic Affairs Robert Resek said, "We celebrate this new class of University Scholars with pride. They represent the very best tradition of teaching, research and public service to the U of I."

The award provides Krummel with an annual award of $12,000 for each of three years to support his scholarly activities. The money can be used to travel, hire graduate assistants, purchase research equipment, or otherwise further scholarship.

Krummel was honored for his work in the area of analytic bibliography; he has been described as one of the most distinguished bibliographic scholars in the

In her nomination for the award, Dean Leigh Estabrook said of his work, "He has changed international scholarship in his area and the ways in which other scholars think about problems in his field....Michael Ochs, Music Librarian of Harvard University

Nat Hentoff to Give Keynote Address

Nat Hentoff, outspoken champion of intellectual freedom, will deliver the Centennial Celebration Keynote Address on September 26 at 11 a.m. in Foellinger Auditorium. In his address he will discuss whether or not librarians and other information providers should provide access to harmful, dangerous, or deeply offensive ideas.

Hentoff, a longtime advocate of libraries and a protector of all peoples' right to access to information, writes for such diverse publications as The Village Voice, The New Yorker, and the Washington Post.

Also an award-winning author of outstanding fiction and nonfiction for both youth and adults, Hentoff's wide-ranging titles include: This School Is Driving Me Crazy (1975), The First Freedom: The Tumultuous History of Free Speech in America (1980), and The Day They Came to Arrest the Book (1982).

Hentoff is also an adjunct professor at New York University.

Katharine Lucinda Sharp

Centennial Publication

The title of the forthcoming centennial publication, Ideals and Standards: The History of the University of Illinois Graduate School of Library and Information Science, 1893-1993, derives from the Katharine L. Sharp memorial plaque by Lorado Taft which hangs in the University Illinois Main Library. Her "standards and ideals" for library service cited on the plaque became apparent when she began as director of the new library school and the library at Chicago's Armour Institute of Technology in September 1893. Ideals and Standards is a collection of essays by present and recent faculty members, alumni, students and others closely linked to the Graduate School of Library and Information Science, the direct descendant of the Armour school.

Walter C. Allen, Associate Professor Emeritus at the School, and Robert F. Delzell (MS '51), Director of Personnel and Professor of Library Administration Emeritus in the University of Illinois Library, are the editors.

The book will be published by GSLIS by Fall 1992. Pre-publication announcements will be available by ALA Conference in June.

LSA To Facilitate Alternative Housing for Centennial Weekend

The Library School Association will coordinate a lodging clearinghouse for the Centennial Weekend for those who would like to explore the possibility of staying with an alum or a friend of GSLIS rather than in a hotel/motel. We can't make any promises, so you might want to book a hotel room also and then cancel your reservation if you obtain alternative housing through the LSA clearinghouse process.

Distinguished Service Award

Spring 1993 marks the appearance of the LSA Distinguished Service Award. This honor will be extended to friends of LSA or GSLIS who have served either group in an exceptional way. The nominee need not be an alumnus of GSLIS nor a member of LSA.

If you know a person deserving this award, please forward your letter of nomination to the LSA in care of the Dean by November 1, 1992.

LSA Annual Meeting

You will have an opportunity to submit nominations for the LSA awards at the reception and annual business meeting of the LSA on June 28 at ALA in San Francisco along with meeting friends from GSLIS and catching up on the activities of your alumni association, the LSA, and GSLIS. The meeting will be at the Mechanics Library, a beautiful and unique library located at 57 Post Street in San Francisco. The business meeting will begin at 6:30 p.m. and the reception will be from 5:30-7:30 p.m. Come early, renew old acquaintances, meet new friends and learn more about the LSA. Your ticket for the GSLIS/LSA Alumni Reception is found on page 11. Present this ticket at the door. All alumni are encouraged to attend.

LSA to Coordinate "Dinners by Decades" for Centennial

Saturday, September 26, will offer a special chance to visit with alumni who attended GSLIS when you did. The LSA is arranging "Dinners by Decade," providing alumni the opportunity to dine "dutch treat" at area restaurants with others who graduated during the same decade as they.

Ruth McBride (MS '72), Frankie Mosborg (MS '72) and Joanne Kelly (CAS '80) are coordinating this event. Alumni for classes through 1949 will be considered one cluster, and subsequent decades will be considered separately. Registration forms will be included in the June invitation to alumni.

Terry Weech (MS '65; PhD '72) has volunteered as a member of LSA to compile the list of those seeking housing and then circulate the list to area alums and friends of GSLIS. The actual invitations to stay will come from area alums and friends.

The clearinghouse will NOT coordinate reservations for commercial businesses. You must contact those facilities directly. A selected list of local hotels/motels is found on page 7.

If you are interested in placing your name on the list for possible housing with an area alum, please fill out the form at the bottom of this page and send to: Terry Weech, 410 DKH, 1407 W. Gregory Drive, Urbana, IL 61801 BEFORE May 16, 1992. If you have questions, call Terry Weech at 217-333-0646 or leave a message for him to return your call at 217-333-3280.

Yes, I would like to be included on the list of those seeking alternative housing for the Centennial weekend.

Centennial Endowment Fund Seeks to Establish Professorship

Lionelle Elsesser (MS '67) and Stephen Kochoff (MS '73), co-chairs of the Centennial Fundraising effort, have contributed personally to establish the GSLIS Centennial Endowment Fund. Goals are to secure funds to endow a Centennial Professorship in library and information science by September 1993 and to achieve 100 percent participation for alumni, "100 percent for 100 years!"

Please present this ticket at the door for the annual alumni reception at the American Library Association conference in San Francisco. The reception will be at the Mechanics' Institute Library, 57 Post Street, on Sunday, June 28, 1992, from 5:30-7:30 p.m. All alumni are encouraged to attend this free reception.

Message from the Dean

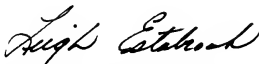

We are moving to our beautiful new space!! In our fall, 1990 Newsletter, I announced that the School would be moving to 501 East Daniel; but shortly after that the governor froze remodeling money because of budget crises in the state. The funds have now been released and we now anticipate moving by the end of fall, 1992.

The new building is truly wonderful—light and airy with sufficient space to house three classrooms, an expanded computer lab, offices for faculty (including visitors and emeriti), the Library Research Center and the Publications Office. For the first time in many years all GSLIS staff and units, except the Library and Information Science Library, will be together. The University will completely refurbish the building and will add air conditioning, an elevator and telecommunications services appropriate to our electronic future. We have received some significant gifts from vendors and Mrs. Maybelle Swanlund (BS '32) to purchase furniture for classrooms and offices. Faculty are developing proposals for funding electronic classrooms and group decision support software.

The building's central campus location will facilitate our efforts to work collaboratively with many different departments on campus. Bringing the Center for Children's Books to the University of Illinois will help us expand our relationships with the College of Education and its Center for the Study of Reading. We will be closer to the College of Engineering and the Beckman Institute ("north campus") with which faculty and students have also been working.

We do not expect to move until after the September centennial celebration, so we will have one more excuse for a party next year. I assure you we will tell you much more about our move. We hope to welcome many of you to campus to celebrate our good fortune.

LRC Surveys Library Issues in National Opinion Poll

Americans want libraries to promote reading, but they also want to have a say in the kind of reading libraries promote, according to a new national public opinion survey on library issues.

Conducted by the University of Illinois GSLIS Library Research Center, the National Opinion Poll on Library Issues "gives us a national snapshot of public opinion about services, collections and governance of libraries, against which individual librarians can check the opinions of their community," said Dean Leigh Estabrook, survey director.

The survey found that 93 percent of the 1,181 people interviewed believe public libraries should provide literacy programs for adults, close to 70 percent said that certain kinds of reading material—including Playboy and Penthouse and books on how to commit suicide—should be kept out of the library altogether. Almost half (44 percent) believe that records and tapes with sexually explicit language should not be available in public library collections.

You may obtain a copy of the survey results by contacting Shari Grindley in the Library Research Center at 217-333-1980. There is a $10 postage and handling fee.

Celebration Weekend Inaugurates School's Hundredth Year

"I love a celebration!" was one alumna's reason for coming to the September 25-27 Centennial Celebration Weekend. And what a grand (and thought-provoking) occasion it was.

Inaugurating the School's centennial year, the event provided nearly 200 alumni experiences ranging from a serious look at our First Amendment rights to the reunion fun of seeing old friends. It also included drizzly tours of several campus libraries, lectures on library science research, a wonderful Levis brunch, a quiz to tax alumni memories, and the initiation of recent graduates into the original chapter of Beta Phi Mu.

Formal programs began on Friday evening with lectures by Anita Schiller and Guy Garrison (PhD '60) honoring the 30th anniversary of the founding of the Library Research Center. A reception in the great hall of the Beckman Institute for Advanced Science and Technology followed the talks.

Saturday dawned gray and gloomy, with alumni braving the rain to tour a sampling of University Library units, including the Mathematics Library in Altgeld Hall and the Library and Information Science Library and Rare Book Room in the Main Library.

Later, several hundred gathered in Foellinger Auditorium to hear Nat Hentoff's keynote address on First Amendment free speech rights. Centering his speech around the U.S. Supreme Court decision in R.A.V. vs. The City of St. Paul, Minnesota, Hentoff posited that Justice Antonin Scalia's opinion striking down a city ordinance punishing hate speech is among the most important Supreme Court decisions of this century. Hentoff said that the decision "extended and deepened the First Amendment."

In the case, a white supremacist was convicted of violating a city hate speech ordinance for burning a cross on the lawn of the only African-American family in a St. Paul neighborhood. Though many civil rights organizations supported the law, the Court ruled that it was overly broad, saying that "no categories of speech are entirely invisible to the Court." Hentoff said that even though the government does have the right to regulate some speech, including that known as "fighting words," it must remain neutral in doing so. It cannot discriminate in favor of certain groups who may consider certain words demeaning to prohibit that speech. Prohibiting such speech, even though many deem it abusive or destructive, Hentoff said, "is a way to destroy the essential freedom that gives breathing room to everyone."

After lunch Associate Professor Emeritus Walter Allen provided information on former faculty who were unable to attend. Later in the afternoon, participants were greeted by Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs Robert Berdahl and his wife, Peg, at a cocktail party in the home of University President Stanley Ikenberry. Food and drink flowed as alumni toured the house and chatted with current students and old friends.

That evening, many alumni gathered for Dinners by Decade, hosted by the

Placement to Change

The School is completing negotiations with the campus Career Planning and Placement Office to take over servicing of active credentials files.

The cost of having a file sent to a prospective employer will increase to five dollars. Those alumni who have active files will receive details on changes in service as soon as the change is implemented.

All other placement services, including the JobSearch database, placement bulletins, salary survey for new graduates, and resume, interview, and salary negotiations counseling and workshops will continue to be offered by the GSLIS Placement Office. Assistant to the Dean Curt McKay is happy to answer any questions concerning placement.

Energizer® Rabbit Raises $$ for Centennial Fund

The GSLIS Energizer® Rabbit will raise money for the Centennial Endowment Fund for a second time during ALA Midwinter at the Downs Intellectual Freedom Award reception, 5:30-7:30 p.m., Saturday, January 23, in Denver's Westin Hotel's Continental Ballroom A.

The bunny brought in 500 dollars at a Centennial Weekend auction. The purchaser then gave the rabbit back to the School for auction again.

Star of a series of television commercials, the rabbit was donated by Ralston as the result of negotiations by Lionelle Elsser (MS '67), co-chair of the Centennial Fund Committee. She also arranged the gift of a second rabbit to the School as a reminder that GSLIS is the School "that keeps on going," just like Energizer® batteries.

Library School Association. Seated with other former students from their GSLIS decade, alumni compared experiences with one another.

Sunday, a few hardy souls gathered for golf, and most had brunch at Levis Faculty Center. Following was a session orchestrated by Professor Don Krummel, where several alumni shared memories of their library school days. Bob Delzell (MS '51), Anders Dahlgren (MS '77), Dena Epstein (BS '39, AM '43), Elaine Estes (MS '60), Carolynne Myall (MS '74, CAS '78), and Boyd Rayward (MS '65) recalled their experiences at GSLIS, both tender and hilarious. Though all affirmed the value of the Library's collections, it was the people they remembered most.

BOB talked about the large number of professional notables he was able to meet while a student here.

DENA came to Urbana in the midst of the Depression to enter library school. She told of running out of money before she had finished her degree and of going to her job in the Library bindery, not knowing what to do. "The bindery was supervised by that wonderful woman, Josie Houchens, who also taught the history of printing and binding in the Library School. When Miss Houchens learned about Dena's problem, she "smiled and said, "Fortunately, I am chair of the Library School Student Loan Fund. I'll have a check for you Monday morning to cover your expenses for the rest of the term. You can repay the Fund when you are able. Please don't let this spoil your weekend."

And ANDERS convulsed the audience with his memory of Professor George Bonn's collection of umbrellas. The professor, he said, would go to lunch in the Union. If it were raining when he finished, he went to the lost and found and said "I've lost my umbrella; oh, there it is," and point to one of those there. Then he used it to get back to his office, where he added it to his collection.

pha chapter of Beta Phi Mu, which was founded at Illinois. As part of the induction ceremony, Professor Kathryn Luther Henderson (BS '48, MS '51), who was initiated into membership as one of the founding members, provided a history of the honorary society.

Former Editor of WLB to Receive Downs Award

Mary Jo Godwin, former editor of Wilson Library Bulletin, will receive the School's 1992 Robert B. Downs Intellectual Freedom Award, supported by Greenwood Press.

Godwin resigned in protest after H.W. Wilson president Leo Weins directed her to fire columnist Will Manley. Manley, a WLB columnist for 14 years, was fired because of a column in the June 1992 issue featuring a tongue-in-cheek questionnaire of librarians' sexual attitudes and practices. Five other WLB columnists resigned with Godwin. Godwin will be honored at an ALA Midwinter reception, Saturday, January 23, 5:30-7:30 p.m. in Denver's Westin Hotel, Continental Ballroom A. Alumni are invited to attend.

The Downs Award was established by the faculty of GSLIS to honor former Dean Robert B. Downs. It is presented annually to an individual whom they determine has furthered the cause of intellectual freedom. Greenwood Press provides a $500 honorarium.

Shirts, Bags Available

Special commemorative Centennial T-shirts and book bags bearing the image of Katharine Sharp are available by mail. The ALA Student Chapter sells the shirts for $10; book bags are offered by the ASIS Student Chapter for $7.50; postage must be added for either.

Orders for shirts and bags may be called in to Curt McKay at 217/333-3280 through the end of March.

Phonathon Yields $26,000

Increasing enrollment and University budget cuts made donations to the sixth annual Phonathon more critical than ever. Student volunteers called alumni in early September for donations to this Annual Fund Drive. Their effort provides funds for graduate assistantships, student chapter activities, curriculum development and faculty research and gives us the opportunity to stay in touch with alumni and their professional activities. This year's callers from the student chapters of ALA, ASIS, and SLA and from the Student Forum and the Learning Resources Lab raised over $26,000.

News from the Library School Association

Message from Anita Johnson, President

Many members of the Library School Association (LSA) participated in the Centennial celebration. Over 130 of them met friends and classmates at the LSA sponsored "Dinner by Decades." Planned by a committee of alumni, the dinner was held in the dining room of the Illinois Street Residence Hall. We are grateful to the members of the committee for providing this opportunity to share food with friends. Members of the committee were: Sally Duchow (MS '86), Joanne Kelly (MS '70; CAS '80), Ruth McBride (MS '72), Dale Montanelli (MS '82), Frankie Mosborg (MS '72), Debra Park (GSLIS Development Officer), Carol Penka (MS '68), Joan Walton (MS '73), Eunice Weech (MS '69). Thanks also to all the alumni who served as hosts for the dinner, and a special thanks to Bob Mosborg, husband of Frankie, who was our photographer for the evening.

We were honored to have three alumni attending who have been past recipients of the LSA Distinguished Alumnus Award. They were Edward Holley (PhD '61), Ralph McCoy (BS '39; MS '50; PhD '56), and Robert Wedgeworth (MS '61). The Distinguished Alumnus Award is given every year to a graduate of GSLIS who has made a significant contribution to the profession. I invite you to nominate recipients by requesting a form from an LSA board member or by contacting Dean Estabrook.

This year, for the first time, we are pleased to be giving a Distinguished Service Award. This recognition will be given annually to a GSLIS faculty, staff, friend, supporter or alumnus who has made a significant contribution to GSLIS or LSA. Graduation from GSLIS is not required. Nominations for this award may also be made by obtaining a nomination form from an LSA board member or the office of Dean Estabrook.

Along with carrying out activities in support of GSLIS, promoting opportunities for alumni to get together, and recognizing outstanding alumni with awards previously discussed, the LSA is your representative association with the University of Illinois Alumni Association. When you join LSA, you also join the U. of I. Alumni Association. If you are not a life member or if you have not paid your alumni dues this year, please do so now. Your support is important!

Membership Meeting of the LSA at Centennial Celebration

Taking advantage of the many LSA members gathered together for the Centennial Celebration, President Anita Johnson called a brief business meeting of the group at 3:00 p.m. on Saturday afternoon, September 26, in the Illini Union. The primary business of the afternoon was to vote on a By-Laws change to separate the office of secretary-treasurer into two offices, those of secretary and treasurer. The change had been introduced at the annual meeting in July at the ALA conference. The By-Laws change, approved on a motion by Donna Gilbert (MS '70), is as follows:

Article VII - Officers

Section 1. The officers shall be a president, a first vice-president, a secretary, a treasurer, and three directors, one of whom shall be the retiring president of the association.

President Johnson introduced other officers who were present: Ruth Mc-

Bride (MS '72), first vice-president; Christine Guyonneau (MS '84), second vice-president; Frankie Mosborg (MS '72), secretary-treasurer; and Joe Sciacca (MS '78), former president of the association. Johnson briefly commented on the state of the association and described the three awards given by the group: Distinguished Alumnus, Distinguished Speaker, and Distinguished Service. She concluded the meeting by urging all graduates to join LSA.

Message from the Dean

The headline in the Champaign-Urbana News-Gazette read "Library school proud of past, set for future"--a wonderful summary of my feelings about the School at this time. The Centennial weekend, during which that article appeared, provided many opportunities for alumni and faculty to reflect on the significance of GSLIS in their lives. People commented on the ways their education has made a difference in their professional lives. Alumni also remembered particular teachers who had found fellowship money at crucial times or inspired them to service or helped them realize special talents.

At the same time we look forward. We anticipate with delight moving into our new building. The newest generation of students has high expectation for their education and for the profession. Many indicate their seriousness toward their professional education by involvement in School committees and active concern that we find ways to encourage students' technological competence, creativity and leadership.

GSLIS is unique and wonderful. I cherish the opportunity to be its dean during this milestone year.
